X-Ray Drive Will Show 400 Beds Needed Here

New Tuberculosis Cases to Top That Figure by October, Dr. Coulter Says

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter
(Second of Two Articles)

The crux of the problem facing the District upon completion of the mass chest X-ray survey is adequate bed space.

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director of the District Health Department's Tuberculosis Control Bureau, has estimated from 400 to 500 beds will be needed by October 1.

He rules new building out as a possibility. First, it would take at least two years to complete such a project, and the cost would run from $8000 to $10,000 a bed, a prohibitive price, he said.

Just what the answer will be is unknown, Dr. Coulter said. Most likely, unless some drastic action is taken shortly, it will be an extension of the present practice of hospitalizing the very worst cases and keeping many other dangerous ones at home, he declared.

Recovery Difficult

Recovery under these circumstances is difficult, if not impossible, and spreading of the disease is a constant danger, according to Edward K. Funkhouser, executive secretary of the District Tuberculosis Association.

Rushing headlong into planning of a hospital or expanding a present one is inadvisable for two reasons:

1. The present crisis has resulted from the bringing to light of existing cases. Whether the need will continue as high is problematical.

2. The introduction of streptomycin in treatments has raised a new factor which may drastically alter present hospitalization methods and needs.

More than 5000 Washingtonians are expected to learn that they have past or present evidences of tuberculosis as a result of the chest survey. They will require varying degrees of care, ranging from home assistance to full hospitalization.

200 Beds Now Unused

But one thing is possible to ease the situation. Almost 200 beds have been "closed" at four Greater Washington institutions for various reasons. They are:

Glenn Dale Sanatorium, 60 beds.
Gallinger Hospital, 52 beds.
Freedmen's Hospital, eight beds.
Upshur Street Hospital, 71 beds.

Glenn Dale lacks resident physicians, ward workers and nurses. All three of these groups have complained that rates of pay are the same there as in District institutions although three hours a day are lost in traveling back and forth to the Maryland sanatorium.

At Gallinger, the problem is a lack of nurses and physicians, while at Freedmen's it is a shortage of nursing personnel, according to

William Tell Shot Misses Cigarette But Not Jaw

William Tell had nothing on Frank Addy, 28, of 5418 Branch ave. se.—except that William was a better shot.

To prove it, David L. Whittle, 24, of 1430 Belmont st. nw., was sporting a bandage last night where a .22-caliber rifle bullet had bounced off his jawbone.

Either lacking an apple or considering one too easy a target, Whittle agreed to hold a cigarette in his mouth while Addy marched off 50 paces to try his skill, police related. This was in the backyard of a friend at 5052 Temple Hill rd., Temple Hill, Md.

Result: Whittle and Addy were turned over to Prince Georges County police last night after Whittle, a salesman for the Jewel Tea Co., was treated at Providence Hospital.

Marriage at 111, remarriage at 130, and a life span of 146 years, are possibilities medical science can eventually achieve, delegates to the National Health Assembly here were told yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of 800 of the Nation's top health authorities, Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp, noted authority on old-age problems, said this country "hasn't even begun to think seriously about the medical and sociological problems of old age."

Heretofore, he said, medical science has specialized on the child. Now it is time, he insisted, that attention be turned to the person 45 years and over.

In the last 80 years, he pointed out, the proportion of persons 45 and over in this country's population has risen from 13.1 per cent to 26.5 per cent.

Sees 40 Per Cent by 1980

Even without further medical discoveries to prolong life, Klumpp predicted, 40.3 per cent of our population by 1980 will fall within the 45 and over age group.

The percentage of persons more than 65 has risen from 2.7 in 1860 to 6.8 in 1940, Klumpp pointed out. And again, even with medicine remaining in status quo, by 1980, he said, 14.4 per cent of America's population will be over 65.

Klumpp, president of Winthrop-Stearns, Inc., New York chemical company, and also president of the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, told the delegates of a Danish sailor who actually lived for 146 years—from 1626 to 1772.

"Christen Jacobsen Dragenberg," he said, "went to sea when he was 13, took part in the wars of three kings against Sweden, served many nations in merchant navies, when nearly 70 was taken prisoner by Algerian pirates, was sold as a slave, escaped slavery after 15 years, and at 84 again went to war against Sweden."

"At 111 he married a woman of 60, outlived her, proposed at 130 to several women, but was rejected.

"Mastering his disappointment," Klumpp said, "he lived on for 16 years."

Dragenberg, he declared, did not settle down to a "quiet respectable" course of conduct until he was 141 years old.

"If one man can live a life as

Cry of Unification Still Far Cry From It

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Confusion over the Nation's military needs is further confounded by a strange double-barreled contradiction:

1. Unification has not unified the armed services.
2. Many members of Congress and most citizens assume that it has.

The result of this situation is an understandable impatience with the military establishment at its inability to get together and advise the country with some unanimity what it needs for security. Having given the armed forces what was termed unification, Congress and the public expect it to work but find that it does not.

What the armed services got, of course, was a compromise. It was a compromised compromise at that, very different from the sort of unification from which so much was promised back in 1946.

It started out as a compromise of seemingly irreconcilable differences between the Army and Navy. It was further compromised in committees of the House and Senate. Still more compromises were written into the bill on the floors of both houses. And finally it was radically compromised in conference to adjust differences between versions passed by House and Senate.

As it was ultimately enacted and signed by President Truman July 26, 1947, this compromise unification measure bristled with assurances that nobody would be hurt by it. The Navy was guaranteed its Marine Corps (for which there had previously been no statutory provision) and its aviation. The Air Force realized its dream of a quarter century and was set up as a separate arm.

Asked No Guarantees

The Army, which had fought the unification fight from the outset, received no guarantees and asked for none. And it had compromised out of the bill what it considered absolutely essential to the success of unification.

That was a chain of command within the military establishment, headed by a Chief of Staff and coordinating the efforts and activities of all three services through a joint staff with members from all three. Lack of such a chain of command, Army officers now contend, was responsible for the criticism heaped

Tornadoes Kill 10, Injure 38; Loss Is Million

Destructive Storms Rip Through Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes that ripped through Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri Saturday night killed 10 persons, injured at least 38 and caused an estimated one million dollars in property damage.

The dead included five at Bernice, Okla.; three at the Lake of the Ozarks in southern Missouri; and two near Erie, Kans.

Thirty-one persons were injured in the storm that slashed Bernice, Whiteoak and Grove, small resort towns in the Grand Lake area of northeastern Oklahoma, about 200 miles south of Kansas City.

Five persons were injured in the twisters that hit near Erie, 60 miles north of the Grand Lake area. Two persons were hurt at St. Thomas, Mo., a small town about 20 miles south of Jefferson City, when another tornado demolished a church and other buildings.

The dead at Bernice: Alva N. Forney, 37, Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Rose Wallen, 60, and Mrs. Opal Wallen, 30, Route 3, Afton, Okla.; Jack Berger, 24, Vinita, Okla.; Latrelle Casey, 6, of Bernice.

Near Erie, Kans.: William H. Pemberton, 76; Archie Kinnie, 75, of Shaw, Kans.

Historic Church Badly Damaged By Intruder

Richmond, Va., May 2 (AP).—The interior of historic St. Paul's Church and parish house was all but wrecked today by an early-morning intruder.

Valuable stained-glass windows were smashed, furniture overturned and broken, portraits defaced and doors knocked out.

Police arrested a 20-year-old Chicago sailor, Michael E. Whitting, and charged him with breaking into the century-old buildings and damaging church property.

The Episcopalian congregation voted at morning services today to employ stained-glass experts to make what repairs are possible.

Heir to British Title Weds Clerk After Proving His Worth

Wakefield, England, May 2 (U.P.).—The Hon. John Cokayne, 27, brother and heir of Lord Cullen of Ashbourne, took a bride yesterday. He married the daughter of a Salvation Army worker after he served six months as a valet to prove his worth.

His courtship of Anne Clayton, 27, a clerk, began when he came here to find scientific data for a private experiment. He decided instead to experiment with a job and went to work laying out the clothes of Dr. G. W. Black, an eminent surgeon.

The girl, who someday will be Lady Cullen of Ashbourne, met Cokayne when she came home from work one day and found he had rented a room in her house.

"I always thought no one should marry unless he can earn his own living," Cokayne explained.

"I wanted to show her my worth as a man. I wanted her to know she wasn't just marrying a title."

Miss Clayton worked in an aircraft factory during the war. Cokayne, a graduate of Eton, did not complete his university education because of illness, which also kept him out of uniform.

His experience as the son of the first Baron of Ashbourne made him an ideal "Jeeves" for the doctor, who never suspected his valet's identity until the wedding yesterday.

The bridegroom said he hopes to continue earning his own living and might consider running "some kind of shop" in Nottinghamshire.

The Cokayne family motto is "Courage in Adversity."

Questions Prepared About His 'Latest' Stand on Draft, Defense Measures

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Members of the House Armed Services Committee last night were preparing a list of questions—some of them embarrassing—to ask Defense Secretary Forrestal this morning.

The group finished consideration of a 19-through-25-years-old draft bill on Friday, but delayed voting on it to obtain Forrestal's views on the measure. A motion was made and adopted at a closed session of the committee to wait and get "Forrestal's latest stand" on the question.

Proponents were a bit caustic, pointing to the fact that Administration views on the defense program have changed several times in recent weeks, on such matters as the draft, UMT, and on the 55-66-and-70-group air force.

Congressmen on the Armed Services Committee told reporters they would ask Forrestal to reconcile several of the positions he has taken. Particularly they planned to inquire about his testimony warning against imposition of economic controls in view of President Truman's proposal last winter for such controls.

The House committee, at the insistence of several members, voted to hear Secretary Forrestal in open session this morning. Normally defense chiefs are asked to comment on pending bills—particularly after having given public testimony—behind closed doors. In fact, the entire procedure of asking for Forrestal's comments at this stage of the proceedings is unusual.

Surprise Move May Bring UMT Debate This Week

By the United Press

Universal military training, given up for dead in the House at this session, may reach the floor for debate this week through a surprise legislative maneuver.

Representative Towe (R., N. J.) yesterday said he might offer a delayed-action UMT plan as an amendment to the 19-through-25 temporary draft bill when it reaches the floor. Towe wrote the original UMT bill, which has been pigeon-holed in the House Rules Committee for nearly a year.

The House Armed Forces Committe is expected to vote final approval of the draft bill today. Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) has predicted it will reach the floor late this week.

Voting Begins Tuesday

The Senate Armed Services Committee will start voting Tuesday on its own, different bill, which "combines" the draft and UMT. It calls for simultaneous induction of "draftees" and "umtees."

Towe said his plan is to set up UMT to go into effect automatically when the draft dies after two years.

Andrews indicated that he favors Towe's plan, and other UMT supporters said it would at least bring the politically explosive measure before House members for a vote.

But some other members of the Armed Forces Committee, who did not want to be quoted by name, voiced fear that the result of the maneuver might be to kill both the draft and the UMT.

Fines Don't Scare Operators

Police Say Jail Sentences Needed to Break Up Gambling

Spurred by impending grand jury investigations, police heads here were reported directing their efforts yesterday toward shaping fool-proof methods of cracking gambling rackets in Washington.

Law officials, it was said, were concentrating on ways of getting evidence that will stand up in courts. Jail sentences for offenders convicted on court-proof evidence, it was agreed, would do most to hold down gambling operations.

One of the principal problems under present police methods against operators of numbers establishments and horse race booking is to secure convictions on felony charges, said Acting Police Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott. Mere possession of numbers slips or the finding of gaming paraphernalia on the premises results in misdemeanor charges, punishable by fining, he pointed out.

"And fines don't scare off the operators," he said.

District Court Justice David A. Pine is scheduled to impanel a special Federal grand jury on May 17 to probe the city's illegal gambling industry. United States District Attorney George Morris Fay, who directed the jury call, estimated gambling in this area to be a 100-million-dollar-a-year business.

Inspector Truscott said that though police heads are studying present procedures, no radical changes will be made without direction of Police Superintendent Maj. Robert J. Barrett, who returns to duty today after going on short leave following the death of his mother.

Another phase under consideration, he said, may be redistribution of police manpower to concentrate forces against suspected gaming headquarters.

But the real problem, he explained, is the inability of investigators to "make plays" with marked money, the department's present best means of securing felony convictions against offenders.

That was borne out Saturday in the statement of Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the police vice squad, who said his undercover agents had tried repeatedly to place bets at a store at 902 Florida ave. nw., suspected of fronting a $100,000-a-year gambling business. The attempts, he said, were fruitless.

A reporter from The Washington Post last Friday found the Florida ave. establishment doing a brisk numbers' business, accepting plays without attempt to disguise the activity.

The shop, with newsstand, cigar counter, bootblack chairs and other airs of legality, was operated by William H. T. (Sunshine) Boldware, neighborhood numbers king. Boldware was killed Thursday when one

Another United States Shift On Palestine Expected in U. N.

Lovett Calls Aides To Sunday Parley

By The Associated Press

Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett called State Department officials into a Sunday conference yesterday to go over reports from strife-ridden Palestine.

The reported judgment of British military officials that the situation there is rapidly growing worse apparently is shared by American officials.

There was no immediate indication as to what was discussed with Lovett, but authorities assumed the plight of some 4000 American citizens in Palestine figured in the conference.

The State Department has acknowledged plans are ready to evacuate them when it is decided conditions call for such a move.

With that possibility in view, a new United States consulate was opened last month at Haifa, the port city since wrested from the Arabs by the Jews. It is a major

See LOVETT, Page 3, Column 8.

Trusteeship Plan Seems Hopeless

New York, May 2 (AP).—A strong belief prevailed among United Nations delegates today that the United States is about to shift its Palestine policy again.

If any such move is planned, however, it is a closely guarded secret. The United States delegation continued to deny any change is contemplated.

No delegate claimed any concrete information on United States plans, but several said they had no doubt that a new American formula would be brought forward within the next week.

A typical comment came from a delegation spokesman who said it was difficult to see how the United States could continue much longer to support the plan for a Palestine trusteeship.

After more than two weeks' debate in the special Palestine Assembly, this spokesman said, it is obvious that the trusteeship scheme

Jews and Arabs Agree to Truce In Fighting for Katamon Quarter

Jerusalem, May 2 (AP).—An estimated 1000 British troops in full battle dress arrived in Haifa today from Cyprus as the vanguard of new forces the British said they were speeding to Palestine to cope with a "seriously deteriorating" situation.

In Jerusalem the Jews and Arabs agreed to a 48-hour truce in their three-day battle for Katamon quarter. Sir Henry Gurney, chief secretary for the Palestine government, intervened to effect a cease-fire order. He expressed the hope the truce would be extended to include all of the Holy City.

The new arrivals were part of a force of marine commandos, infantry tanks and guns the British army said was on its way from Malta and Cyprus.

Planes Scout Area

The announcement made no mention of reports yesterday from Jewish and Arab sources that Palestine had been invaded by Arab armies from the north and south.

The Royal Air Force sent reconnaissance planes over the entire northern frontier area and reported "No Syrians in sight."

The troops arrived in Haifa aboard the troopship Empire Test. A high officer with them said they will be used "in the most necessary areas where trouble develops." It was the first time since the British began large scale evacuation that major reinforcements were sent to Palestine.

"As long as we have the mandate until May 15 we certainly will keep order in the big cities," the officer added.

A small detachment of Royal Marine commandos arrived in Haifa recently from Bengasi.

The army statement on the new arrivals blamed the deterioration on "unwarranted aggression" in Jaffa by Irgun Zvai Leumi, a Jewish underground force. A military source in Haifa said the new units might be used to replace those serving in the Tel Aviv-Jaffa area.

Irgun launched an attack last Sunday on all-Arab Jaffa. Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, joined the assault later in the week. British troops stepped in and drove the Jews from a part of the territory they won, and are now enforcing a truce in the area.

"This theater has now assumed an operational priority over some other commitments in the Middle East," the army statement said. "As a consequence considerable reinforcements of infantry, tanks, guns and Marine commandos had to be dispatched to Palestine in the cause of general security."

(In London a War Office spokesman said the decision to move

Japan Warned To Guard Its New Freedom

Nation Can Become Citadel of Democracy, MacArthur Declares

Tokyo (Monday), May 3 (AP).—General MacArthur today warned the Japanese to guard their constitutional freedom against despotic forces which he said were on the march throughout the world.

The occupation commander issued a long message commemorating the first anniversary of Japan's new postwar constitution.

He called no names but declared:

"While the great majority of the peoples of the earth seek freedom, the forces of despotism, composed of willful minorities, are on the march in every land.

"Whether they be of the extreme left or of the extreme right makes little difference, for their purpose is to destroy freedom."

He warned the Japanese that "the lessons of contemporary history make it unmistakably clear that when peoples or their leaders shrink or yield before such pressure or permit invisible controls to be superimposed upon representative government by any minority groups whatsoever, governments fall and freedom perishes."

Summarizing the state of new Japan, MacArthur said:

"Japan today is a land of relative calm and purposeful effort in a turbulent and confused surrounding. . . . A new and impregnable citadel of democracy in the East will provide its people with the blessings of a truly free way of life, and thereby prove a factor for stability in a world torn by the uncertainties of confusion and fear."

To the Japanese he gave this definition:

"The very essence of democracy lies in the reservation of the maximum of political power of the people for exercise up through the smallest political subdivision of the government."

For this reason, he said, "ceaseless vigilance must be maintained to insure that the maximum of local autonomy is preserved if democracy, now firmly planted, is to survive."

MacArthur noted that the Japanese "have reoriented your economy toward a system based upon

Price Freeze Is Clamped Upon British

New Order Carries Stiff Penalties For Violations

London, May 2 (U.P.).—The widest and most drastic price freeze order ever imposed in Britain becomes effective at midnight tonight.

It fixes prices at the December-January level for nearly every manufactured item from tablecloths to typewriters. It also restricts profit margins of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

The only goods wholly exempt are jewelry, books, newspapers, tobacco, automobiles, liquor and a few imported items. Food prices are controlled already.

Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, announced plans for the price freeze in February. It was scheduled to go into effect March 15, but was postponed twice at the request of manufacturers and shopkeepers.

Carries Stiff Penalties

The freeze, which carries penalties up to two years in prison and a fine of $2000 for violators, became effective among these other developments:

1. Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council and leader of the Commons, said there can be no real freedom for the people while there are great private economic empires.

He said "one of our reasons for being Socialists is that we stand for freedom. So long as great private economic empires free of communal control exist, there can be no assured and real freedom for useful people in society . . ."

2. Emanuel Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power in the bitter winter of 1946-47, admitted that nationalization of coal mines "has not worked out too well."

Shinwell, now Secretary of State for War, said "there was far too little detailed preparation in the formulation of schemes of nationalization . . ."

"When the mining industry was nationalized—and this had been on the Labor Party program for 50 years—we thought we knew all about it," he said.

"The fact of the matter was we did not know all about it. In the preparation of legislation, we found ourselves up against extraordinary difficulties and now that

Guided Missiles Fired by U. S. Sub In Battle Tests

Vallejo, Calif., May 1 (U.P.).—First effective use of high speed underwater submarines and one capable of firing guided missiles under simulated battle conditions was announced today by First Task Fleet headquarters here.

A high ranking officer, whose name was not disclosed, said the underwater vessels' attacks against other ships and shore positions were "highly effective and better than expected" in maneuvers held last week off Point Mugu, south of Santa Barbara, Calif.

"The successful operations of the submarines show that the advantage of attack now is all with underwater craft," the officer said.

The two high speed subs used were the Pomidon and the Diodon, converted at the Mare Island Navy Yard here. Although their actual speed is a carefully guarded naval secret, they are believed to be capable of at least 16 knots under water.

German type V-1 and V-2 rockets were launched from the submarine Cusk, against ship and shore targets. The missiles are fired while the sub is surfaced.

Red Officer Who Fled Bremen Reported Probably Here Now

Hamburg, Germany, May 2 (AP).—A Soviet officer who disappeared from Germany on the eve of his scheduled return to Russia probably is in Washington now, an informed Allied source said today.

(In Washington, an Army spokesman said no information is available at this time.)

It was disclosed yesterday that the Russian, Lieut. Col. J. G. Tessajew, voluntarily left Bremen with a British agent April 23. The Russians have accused American agents of kidnaping him. Tessajew had been chief of a Soviet team supervising reparations at Bremen.

The informant said Tessajew was introduced to a Russian-speaking British agent at his own request. The British aided the Russian's flight because he had a previous contact with them, the source continued, "but the Americans are likely to be most interested in what he has to tell."

Tessajew dropped out of sight after attending a tea in the home of Stanley A. Clem, American director of the port of Bremen.

Berlin Says Officer Hasn't Been Sent Here

Berlin, May 2 (AP).—Official American sources denied emphatically tonight that Lieut. Col. J. G. Tessajew had been sent to Washington or otherwise was under American control.

An American official in Berlin said this report was "completely untrue." He declined to comment further, but other unofficial sources implied any announcement on the missing Russian would have to come from the British.

Truman's 'Freeze' Saves War Plants

Order of April 8 Retains Over 100 Marked for Sale

By the United Press

More than 100 war plants earmarked for surplus sale will be saved for future defense production as a result of the 30-day freeze ordered by the White House April 8, informed sources said yesterday.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman instructed the War Assets Administration to hold up the sale of war plants and machinery until May 8, to give the Armed Forces Munitions Board time to survey the remains of World War II's "arsenal of democracy."

He acted after Representative Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.) had complained to President Truman that the Nation was demobilizing its war industry helter-skelter, at the same time it was planning to remobilize manpower.

The purpose of the freeze was to allow the Munitions Board to survey plants still in Government possession and decide which of them should be sold or leased to private owners under the "national security clause." This clause requires the private buyer or renter of a war plant to maintain it in such a condition that it could be returned to war production within 120 days.

At the time of the freeze, it was stated authoritatively that the War Assets Administration had 474 plants in its surplus inventory. Steelman said on April 8 that 150 of those already sold were covered by the national security clause.

Ike Takes Army Salute Of Farewell

By The Associated Press

General Dwight D. Eisenhower took his farewell salute from the Army yesterday and headed out into civilian life.

The Sunday morning departure from the old former cavalry post at Fort Myer was a quiet leave-taking for the general who in World War II commanded more troops than any other man in history.

Even the little ceremony was more than Ike wanted. He just hoped to get in his car and drive up to New York to make ready for assuming the presidency of Columbia University next month.

But when he came out the door of his quarters there awaited a detachment of ceremonial troops, a band, armored cars, the colors.

"Present . . . arms!" The slap of gloved hands on rifles as the detachment came to salute. Eisenhower, still in uniform, stepped into the waiting car with his wife, snapped a crisp salute and again held up his right hand in the old two-fingered "V" victory salute as he drove off.

Gen. Omar Bradley, who succeeded Ike as Army Chief of Staff on February 7, came over to see his old friend off. There was a bouquet from the Fort Myer personnel for Mrs. Eisenhower.

The general expected to arrive in New York late yesterday afternoon to start briefing on his new job. He has spent the greater part of the time since he left command last February in getting together his memoirs for a book on World War II.

Ike probably will don civilian clothes upon arrival in New York. He has been getting accustomed to them by stages during the last few weeks. But he still finds they feel a little strange—"they feel like a suit of pajamas," says the general.

Reporters for the Chanute (Kans.) Tribune said they had viewed extensively damaged or destroyed buildings on more than 60 farms. They estimated the damage at more than $500,000.

Three hours later, a tornado smashed the area between Catale and Whiteoak in Oklahoma. An hour later a twister lashed the Grand Lake towns of Bernice and Cleora.

The highway patrol reported that at least $250,000 damage was done in Whiteoak, Bernice, Grove and a small settlement near Ketchum.

Still another tornado lashed Missouri's Lake of the Ozarks. The Douglas brothers and Schwertz were in a boat about 3 miles from Bagnell Dam. They were drowned when their craft was overturned.

Another storm center developed in the Lake Michigan section where the United States Weather Bureau Sunday issued a northeast storm warning from Lake Michigan south of the Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and Frankfort, Mich., area.

of his expensive automobiles crashed into a streetcar.

Inspector Truscott said Saturday night that beginning today police would patrol the front of the Florida ave. store to keep it under business-hour surveillance. The practice, called a "short beat" in police circles, has seldom been used in Washington.

Similar "short beats" may be invoked against other suspected establishments, Truscott said.

Under police procedure, gambling places may be raided on the spot when police officers witness gaming, or may be raided with a warrant if gambling is suspected.

Warrants against suspected gambling operations can be obtained by police either at Municipal Court or through the office of the United States commissioner here, a dual means to lessen the danger of "leaks" or "tip-offs" on the contemplated raid.

Boldware

But whether the raid is made by police witnessing the placing of a bet or by warrant, police report they have had little success in convicting offenders on felony charges without the more tangible evidence of marked money.

The alternative has been to charge those arrested in raids not involving marked money with possession of numbers slips, or permitting gaming, or both. Such charges, however, are misdemeanors normally resulting in fines or probation, and don't carry the penalty of convictions on felony charges, such as operating a lottery or setting up and maintaining a gaming table.

ERP Plans Seen Threat To U. S. Needs

By The Associated Press

Two Republican lawmakers said yesterday that the billions-for-Europe program is developing in a way that threatens to take sorely needed supplies from America. A third said he thinks there are effective safeguards.

The two critics expressed doubt that the European Recovery Program can be worked out smoothly without resorting to a policy of "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Commenting on reports that at least two items in short supply are being shipped overseas, Representative Mund (R., S. D.) said:

"Nearly everything in this country is in short supply except table radios."

Mundt, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, added that Congress "put up a pretty good brake on ERP" by requiring the administrator to make periodic reports on the quantity and type of materials being sent abroad.

Outspoken complaints against ERP buying policies came from Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), presidential campaign manager for Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and from Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.).

Protesting what he termed "that strange plan of bleeding this Nation white," Miller said that Britain and France are both exporting farm machinery while receiving American farm equipment under ERP "free of charge." He said ERP shipments of farm machinery are denying American farmers the tools they need "to produce food to feed the world."

Brown's protest centered on persistent reports that 288,000 tons of Canadian newsprint has been earmarked by ERP for shipment to Europe. An aide to Paul G. Hoffman, head of the program, replied to the reports by saying no allocations of newsprint have been made or are in prospect.

Army 'Errors' Hit in Appeal On U. S. Policy

By the United Press

Twelve prominent educators, clergymen and civic leaders yesterday issued an appeal for a new United States foreign policy based on a drive for world government and universal disarmament.

They denounced military measures pending in Congress, particularly the draft and universal training, and said this country cannot build a constructive foreign policy as long as the army insists "that every new army demand is essential to national security."

Listing what was described as a series of army "mistakes," their joint statement called for a gigantic diplomatic and political offensive "to secure universal disarmament, establish world government and institute effective controls so that preparations for a third world war become impossible."

Among those who prepared and issued the report were Louis Bromfield, author; Robert Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago; Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, first head of the Tennessee Valley Authority; Dr. Gilbert F. White, president of Haverford College, Haveford, Pa.; and Dr. Paul N. Libert, president of Springfield College, Springfield, Mass.

Lack of Unity Clearest Point in Unification Confusion

upon the military establishment because of its unreadiness when called upon for a program to carry out President Truman's St. Patrick's Day request for strengthened military muscle.

What had happened was this:

Called upon to submit such a program, the military establishment had no central planning organization to draw it up on the basis of the Nation's over-all need and to compel compliance of all services with such a balanced plan. Instead, each service submitted the postwar program it had prepared after VJ-Day which, of course, was loaded in its favor.

Total Cost Nine Billions

The total cost of this three-headed monster was nine billion dollars. President Truman promptly whacked it down to three billion and told the military establishment to meet that figure. With no central planning organization, no joint staff, it simply could not be done in the limited time available, if at all.

So the Armed Services Committees of Congress, particularly that of the Senate, got the job of doing what should have been done by a unified military establishment. What they received from the military establishment was another compromise, hastily arrived at, unconvincing and supported with reluctance by the Air Force. Under pressure from committee members this unstable support collapsed and the unified military establishment was caught with its unity down.

Convinced that they had ended possibility of any such embarrassing contretemps when they unified the armed services last year, members of the committee and of Congress were outraged. Many were vociferous in denouncing armed force inefficiency and their cries were taken up by numerous special writers and radio commentators who also thought unification was a fact.

It was Congress itself, however, which had withheld from the military establishment the instrument of command, which is vital to military efficiency, and left in its place only the right to compromise, which is fatal.

First Presented in 1944

In order to understand the course of evolution whereby the present hydra-headed unification came into being, it is necessary to go back to 1944, when victory was in sight and the armed services began thinking of the future. The first recent plan for unification was presented to Congress then.

From April 24, 1944, until May 19, the House Select Committee on Postwar Military Policy held hearings on the subject. The Army presented a plan for unification; the Navy was noncommittal and recommended further study. The committee decided the time was "inopportune" for going ahead with unification.

During the hearings, the Joint Chiefs of Staff set up a committee with two representatives from each branch to study the matter. A year later, on May 15, 1945, former Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee suggested to the Navy that it go into the matter of an alternative to unification. On June 19, then Navy Secretary Forrestal appointed Ferdinand Eberstadt to make such a study.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff's committee reported April 11, 1945, that a majority favored a single military department, only Admiral J. O. Richardson dissenting. It also reported that a majority of Army officers consulted favored unification, as did almost exactly half of Navy Officers interviewed.

Eberstadt's report was handed to Forrestal September 25, 1945. It opposed establishment of a single department and favored three coordinated arms, each headed by a civilian of Cabinet rank and tied together by a system of committees and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Proposed Single Department

On October 17, 1945, the War Department presented a plan for unification to the Senate Military Committee. This plan proposed a single military department headed by a secretary of Cabinet rank, a civilian undersecretary, and three or more civilian assistant secretaries to coordinate research, procurement, legislative affairs, information and the like.

Militarily, the three services would be headed by a chief of staff with a joint staff to coordinate military functions. Each service, in turn, would be headed by a chief of staff and there would be a fourth Service of Supply and Hospitalization, also headed by a chief responsible to the Chief of Staff.

There, then, are the opposing views at the start, and the clear line of cleavage between Army and Navy thinking on unification. Debate between the services grew warm, then acrimonius. So bitter did this dissension over unity finally become that President Truman stepped in and, in a message to Congress, endeavored to find a point of agreement.

On December 19, 1945, he laid down a seven-point program for unification. His plan included the Army's single department and Chief of Staff. These recommendations were written into a bill, which also included many of Eberstadt's recommendations, by a Military Affairs Subcommittee and this bill was favorably reported by the full committee May 13, 1946.

This compromise, however, was vigorously opposed by the Navy in hearing before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, which did not report it out.

President Truman once more stepped in to halt the Army-Navy debate which now raged hotter than ever. He ordered the two departments to get together and stop their public quarreling.

So two officers were appointed by the services to work out a compromise. These officers were Maj. Gen. (now Lieut. Gen.) Laurie Norstad of the Air Forces, and Vice Admiral Forrest Sherman of the Navy. There was no Army officer, although Norstad was then War Department director of plans and operations.

Meanwhile, the Army-Navy quarrel had so broadened that it involved congressional committees on both sides of the fence. On May 15, Walsh and Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Naval Committee wrote to Forrestal that it was doubtful if Congress would agree on any bill providing for a single department. They were promptly chided by the Democratic whips in both houses for their "presumption" in speaking for Congress as a whole.

Although the subcommittee bill was revised, opposition continued so strong that Mr. Truman finally asked that it be dropped. Norstad and Sherman were still at work on their compromise.

War and Navy Agree

Then, on December 16, 1946, the War and Navy Departments announced agreement on a unification bill. The President pronounced it "an admirable compromise" and "a thoroughly practical and workable plan of unification." It was a compromise indeed, but how workable and practical time alone could reveal.

This plan contained 12 principal points, including a single department under a civilian secretary with a separate Air Force and secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force without Cabinet rank. There would be no chief of staff and no joint staff. A Council of National Defense, a National Security Resources Board, and a Central Intelligence Agency were provided for and the Joint Chiefs of Staff retained.

This compromise represented a horse trade between the Army and Navy on the single department and the chief of staff, the Navy accepting the single department in exchange for elimination of the chief of staff. The Navy's acceptance still was grudging, however, since the conferees reported that they were in disagreement over the single department.

The Air Force got its semi-autonomy, which was the largest single advantage derived from the compromise. The Navy swallowed the single department, but in considerably diluted form, and gained statutory recognition of its right to its own aviation and Marine Corps. The Army lost its chief of staff and gained nothing except the theory of unification.

Placed on Statue Books

This was the version which, after further compromise in Congress, was enacted and placed on the statute books. The present National Military Establishment functions under its provisions.

Contrary to widespread belief, the military establishment is an exceedingly loosely knit organization. Its chief, the Secretary of National Defense, exercises no real authority, since his supposedly subordinate secretaries of Army, Navy and Air may go over his head to the President at any time.

It has no military chain of command and no planning organization for the establishment as a whole, with the result that it is virtually impossible for it to act in any matter as a concerted whole. Without such a chain of command it is unwieldly, inarticulate and fumbling.

Ironically enough, Secretary of Defense Forrestal is one of the chief authors of his present dilemma. As Secretary of the Navy he fought real unification valiantly and long and now finds himself hampered by lack of the instruments he considered oppressive.

In testimony before the House Expenditures Committee April 24, 1947, he envisaged the difficulties in "the complex task of integration and unification of our defense establishment," but felt proper selection of the three secretaries o the arms would overcome them.

"There will be," he said, "no room for friction and, if it occurs disaster could be the result."

He finds himself now caught in friction so great as to generate a degree of heat hitherto unknown in relations between the services. And he is powerless to modify it without the proper instrument ready to his hand.

Nor is this pervading heat in any manner lessened by the belief, official and private, that unification has unified.

Final Approval

Bogota Pact Signed by Americans

Bogota, Colombia, May 2 (U.P.).—The economic committee of the Ninth Pan-American Conference wound up the work of the conference today by voting final approval of the new world economic pact.

U. S. Assistant Secretary of State Norman Armour and U. S. Delegate William D. Pawley signed the Spanish text shortly before noon in order to leave on schedule for Miami, Fla., in Pawley's special plane.

Members of several other delegations also signed the original documents rather than wait for translations.

Disagreement over several clauses of the economic agreement delayed its completion past the Friday deadline for other conference activities.

Soviet Demands Probe Of Immunity Breach

London (Monday) May 3 (U.P.).—Russia has formally demanded that Colombia investigate alleged "open violation of the immunity of Soviet diplomatic representatives" in Bogota, Radio Moscow reported tonight.

The broadcast said that the Russian charge d'affaires in the Colombian capital had informed the Kremlin that armed Colombians raided the residence of the legation staff on April 12, searched staff members and seized documents, money and personal belongings.

Bloody rioting broke out in Bogota April 9. The Colombian government said it was touched off by Communists acting on orders from Moscow.

Asuncion Is Said To Be Under Heavy Patrols of Police

Formosa, Argentina, May 2 (U.P.).—Heavy police precautions have been ordered in Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, apparently because of an uprising against the government of President Higinio Morinigo, reports reaching this Paraguayan border town indicated today.

Police with tommyguns were reported patrolling the city and manning points which control important streets.

Several political leaders reportedly had been arrested. Most of those seized were members of a faction opposed to Morinigo's Colorado Party.

The city was reported closed to river traffic, and travelers approaching by road were subjected to close inspection.

Morinigo, formerly war minister, was appointed President in 1940 after the death of President Jose Felix Estigarribia. He was formally continued in office in 1943 by an election in which he was the only candidate.

Finance Minister J. Natalicio Gonzalez was named to succeed Morinigo in a one-man election in February. Gonzalez does not take office until August 15.

Since Morinigo's victory over supporters of the Liberal, Febrerista and Communist Parties in the five-month civil war last year, his Colorado Party has been the only legal political organization in Paraguay.

State Funeral Set for Ladas

Athens, May 2 (AP).—A state funeral will be held Monday morning for Justice Minister Christos Ladas. He died last night from wounds suffered earlier in the day when an assassin threw a hand grenade into his car.

The assassin, Efstratos Moutsoyanis, 22, who was wounded by police fire after killing a policeman with another grenade, is expected to live. Police described him as a Communist.

Ladas' death is expected to lead to the arrest of important but relatively unknown Communist leaders.

The radio of Markos Vifiades, leader of the Communist guerilla forces fighting the government, described Moutsoyanis as a patriot, reports received here said.

Brigadier Constantine Tavoularis, who has been appointed military governor for the Athens area, banned public gatherings and publication of news about military operations. A surfew extending from 1 a. m. to 5 a. m. was imposed.

Writer, Wife Held by Slavs

Trieste, Free Territory, May 2 (AP).—Yugoslav civilian police detained my wife, Anita, and me for three hours tonight before permitting us to cross the border and return to the British-American zone of Trieste.

We were detained at a block post 10 miles south of the city of Trieste.

Border police confiscated photographic film we had exposed earlier in the day in the zone of Trieste occupied by the Yugoslavs. They offered no explanation for our detention or confiscation of the film.

We made an authorized five-hour tour of the zone yesterday with other American correspondenes. We were not bothered at any time during the tour.

Today our tour also was authorized. Unlike yesterday, however, we were stopped and questioned repeatedly in severol places.

At one point Yugoslav authorities threatened to strip and search us. We were searched several times and our jeep was inspected thoroughly for contraband articles.

We suffered no bodily harm.

Austria Values Properties Seized by Soviet at 90 Million

Vienna, May 2 (NYHT).—An Austrian government survey made public today placed a maximum value of $90,000,000 on property seized by the Soviet Union as former German assets.

This figure is 40 per cent less than the compensation demands which have been made by Russia in the meetings in London of the deputies of the council of foreign ministers, who are attempting to work out the basis of an Austrian peace treaty.

The survey disclosed the properties seized by the Russians have amassed a total indebtedness of $30,000,000 as a result of the "calculated and ruthless liquidation" of all profits of the enterprises and the incurring of loans from the Russian state bank in Vienna, which operates outside Austrian law.

Dak.) indicated that his Senate Armed Services Committee would revise the details of its combination draft-UMT bill.

The measure now calls for drafting 190,000 men 19½ through 25 into the regular armed services for two years. Another 161,000 youths, age 18 through 19½, would be brought in under a "modified UMT" program, giving them one year's training in the regular services, within the United States.

The compromise Senate plan was sharply denounced yesterday by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, chairman of the National Security Committee. Roberts said his committee is opposed to "the so-called draft-UMT compromise" because "it is not adequate to safeguard our national security."

"It is neither universal nor is it training," he said. "It is not the civilian-supervised program recommended by (President Truman's universal training) commission and indorsed by scores of patriotic organizations."

Soviet Mood Held Softening

By the Associated Press

Russia's comparative silence since the Italian election was interpreted by Senator Connally (D., Tex.) yesterday as indicating a possible softening of the Soviets' attitude toward the west.

Connally told a reporter that while he has no inside knowledge on which to base such a belief, he thinks the Russians may be taking stock of the world situation with a view toward changing their policies.

"If the Russians have any sense, they will realize that they are not getting anywhere with their tactics of trying to delay a settlement of the world's difficulties," the Texas Senator said.

As one of the Secretary of State's advisers to numerous international conferences, Connally has had a chance to observe the Russian operations at first hand. He said he now is more optimistic of a change in the Soviet front than he has been in the past.

fresh British troops into Palestine was made "in the field to meet an internal situation." Asked how this squared with the current evacuation of other British army troops from the Holy Land, he replied: "There are various kinds of troops for various duties.")

The announcement drew this comment from a Jewish Agency spokesman:

"This situation has only deteriorated in that the Jews have been scoring military success. As long as the Arabs appeared to have the upper hand there was little interference in their aggression, whether from within or by invasion by the Arab states outside."

Competent sources estimated the British army strength in Palestine now at about 25,000 troops, with only skeleton armored and gun forces.

The British plan to yield the mandate May 15 and get the last of their troops out of the country by August 1.

Haganah said tonight assaults by Syrian and Lebanese troops on five northernmost Jewish settlements in Palestine had been beaten off.

(Associated Press correspondent Joseph C. Goodwin today toured a wide area in northern Palestine where Haganah said the invasion had taken place. Goodwin said the villages of Dan and Dafne showed no battle scars. Arabs living within a mile of the villages said they heard no sounds of battle.

(High Arab sources in Amman, Transjordan, Said, Syria and Lebanon have denied that troops of those states have entered Palestine.)

An unofficial source in Cairo reported yesterday that Egyptian troops had struck across Palestine's southern border. Today Desouki Abaza Pasha, minister of communications, said he had heard nothing of such troop movements but added: "The concentration of big Egyptian troops on Palestine's border cannot be denied."

Gurney declared the cease fire in Katamon quarter was arranged so negotiations could be continued for a truce to affect all of Jerusalem.

Troops of the Highland Light Infantry moved into Katamon during the afternoon to enforce the truce. They were armed with two-pounder cannon and took up a line between the Arabs and Jews.

Outside Jerusalem the Jews and Arabs thrust at each other's lines of communications.

Pending a United Nations agreement on new measures to restore order in the Holy Land, American officials have been acting on these assumptions:

1. The British will carry out their announced plans to give up responsibility for order in Palestine two weeks hence.

2. The reported dispatch of new forces from Egypt, Cyprus and Malta is to safeguard the withdrawal of British troops already on the scene.

3. After May 15, if not before, the Holy Land faces the prospect of bloodshed on an even more tragic scale than at present.

To carry out an evacuation or other emergency measures to protect American citizens, the Navy has an estimated 2000 or more Marines aboard the aircraft carrier Philippine Sea and other ships of the Mediterranean fleet.

Dewey Intimates Red-hot Campaign

Portland, Oreg., May 2 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York takes off the gloves tomorrow night in what he intimated would be a bare-knuckle contest against Harold E. Stassen to launch his Oregon primary campaign.

The New York Governor flew here Saturday voicing readiness for an "old-fashioned campaign" against his lone rival on the Oregon Republican presidential primary ballot.

In the wake of Stassen's recent primary successes, Dewey came West for three weeks of strenuous campaigning that will take him into every village and town of any size in Oregon. And he expects to remain right up to election day May 21.

Dewey set the tone of his campaign Saturday night by taking a preliminary rap at the former Minnesota Governor—and promising more to come.

Without naming Stassen, Dewey injected into a public power talk an expression of "grave concern" over "hysterical suggestions" for handling communism, and announced he would devote an entire speech to it at a public rally tomorrow night.

Just one week ago Stassen addressed a similar Portland rally on that subject. He took the position communism should be outlawed.

Labor Chiefs Undecided On Nominee

By the United Press

The big leaders of organized labor had their problems yesterday trying to pick a favorite in this year's presidential election.

Many of them probably will wind up voting for President Truman without enthusiasm. A few will swing to Henry A. Wallace's third party. As of now, hardly any of them see anything attractive in the wide field of Republican possibilities.

A potent voice still to be heard from on the presidential race is CIO President Philip Murray. He reportedly is cool to Mr. Truman but may support him as the best in a doubtful field.

The politically astute President Dan Tobin of the International Teamsters' Union (AFL) was telling his membership in a signed editorial that they should keep their hands out of national politics "until we find out where we stand with both parties."

Tobin was a Truman man in the Democratic National Convention at Chicago four years ago.

South Revolt? No Such Thing, Says McGrath

By the United Press

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath yesterday denied the existence of a Southern Democratic revolt against President Truman and his racial rights program.

Instead, he said, there is merely an intraparty difference of opinion on which the Republicans have tried to capitalize.

McGrath, who is a Democratic Senator from Rhode Island, also said in a broadcast (WEAM), that the President never had any intention of invading the constitutional rights of the Southern States by proposing the program.

His statements were made almost on the eve of the first primary election test in the South on the racial rights issue. Alabama Democrats go to the polls Tuesday with that the uppermost question, along with support for Mr. Truman himself.

"There is no revolt—there never was," McGrath said. "There have been differences of opinion, and some differences of interpretation. But isn't that a good sign?"

"How do we ever in this country get to the roots of a problem unless we have differences, air them in public and reach sensible, clear conclusions?"

The chief complaint of "rebellious" Southern Democrats has been that the President's anti-lynching, antipoll-tax and antidiscrimination proposals would be a Federal invasion of States' rights.

McGrath said that Mr. Truman "is for States' rights, he is for the Federal Government acting only within the limits of the Constitution, and according to those regulations which affect interstate commerce."

Taft Confident on Ohio Vote

Cleveland, May 2 (AP).—Supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft cut to six today their private estimate of presidential delegate losses to Harold E. Stassen in Tuesday's Ohio Republican voting.

On the basis of what he said are "evident gains" in his ward-visiting campaign here, Taft told a reporter he will be "personally disappointed" if he loses any convention delegates to the former Minnesota Governor.

But there were signs that Taft, battling to keep his presidential hopes alive, would be well satisfied if Stassen candidates win in only six of the 23 contests they have entered. Thirty delegates pledged to vote for Taft on the first Philadelphia ballot will be chosen without contest.

The Taft camp's claims were disputed immediately by Earl Hart, Ohio campaign manager for Stassen.

"There is the same groundswell for Stassen here in Ohio that there was for him in Wisconsin and Nebraska," Hart said.

Stassen has claimed he will get at least 12 delegates—a total that generally would be credited as a major victory in the Ohioan's own back yard.

Taft told a reporter he thinks his hardest fights for delegates lie in Cleveland, Akron and Dayton districts. These are industrial areas which Stassen especially wants to win to demonstrate that he is strong with the workers.

Taft said that while he thinks many Republican members of organized labor may try to take it out on him at the polls for sponsoring the Taft-Hartley Act, he doubts that many Democrats will cross party lines in such an effort.

Scientist Foresees 146-Year Life Span

full as this," Klumpp asserted, "there is no reason why science cannot make it possible eventually for many more of us to marry at 111, propose and be accepted at 130 and live to 146."

The growing number of older workers in this country presents a problem of employment, Lumpp declared, for which no plan has been worked out.

Question of Adjustment

Involved is the question of adjustment of the number of workers to the number of jobs available.

Klumpp predicted that this problem would lead to the 30-hour work week in the United States during this generation.

To attempt to strike a balance in employment by compulsory retirement of the older employe as is done now is "an unfair penalty on age and experience," Klumpp maintained.

He indicated also that obviously with the growing numbers of older persons it would be economically unsound because of the great burden that would be placed on those who work.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that someone must support those that we retire to idleness," Klumpp pointed out.

Time Cut Held Vital

"One of the most important steps in solving this problem," he asserted, "is the successive reduction in working hours for all workers rather than by reducing more and more older workers to a state of parasitism.

"I venture to say that you and I will live to see a 30-hour week in industry," he predicted.

Even though new technologies, particularly in electronics, will increase man-hours of available work, it is extremely doubtful if those added man-hours will take up the whole supply of those willing and able to work, Klumpp said.

"What to do about those over 50 or 60 whom we now regard as older workers?" queried Klumpp.

"We can't plow them under as we used to plow under corn, potatoes, tobacco and little pigs in accord with what was once Henry Wallace's advice.

"Pipe Dreams" in Past

"And I am equally certain that we can't just turn them out to pasture and expect them to enjoy life. People are not happy when they are idle and this is particularly true of older individuals.

"Youth can loaf content with opiate dreams of future achievements. But as we grow older the realities of life are more clearly seen and less easily denied and as we approach 50 and 60 we can no longer derive solace from the pipe dreams of future achievements.

"Age plays for real stakes, not pastimes. It wants something to do, and it must be real. And the most real thing we have to sustain us in this life of ours is useful work."

Vigorously attacking the present-day trend toward shelving the older worker, Klumpp declared that "our society is quite illogical and inconsistent in its attitude toward the older worker."

He said that although industry sloughs off the older rank-and-file worker, this Nation has no hesitation in electing and appointing older individuals to positions of the greatest responsibility in Government, business and the professions.

He pointed out that in the Seventy-ninth Congress, 32 Senators, or 41.3 per cent, were more than 65; 12, or 15.3 per cent, were 61 years to 65. In other words, more than 56 per cent were over 60.

In the House in the same Congress, 35 per cent were over 60. A study of 500 top business executives, he said, showed that 44 per cent were over 60.

A system of selective retirement of the older workers, rather than the present "blind and unselective compulsory retirement rules," which affect fit as well as unfit were urged by Klumpp.

Employes, Klumpp declared, will have to adopt more realistic retirement benefits, and a way must be found so that the worker can transfer from one job to another without loss of a portion of his retirement accumulation.

For those not covered by voluntary retirement programs, he said, the present token social security benefits must be increased.

There is such "an unutterable sadness" about compulsory retirement of an employe who has been on the job for 30 to 40 years, Klumpp told his audience, that "it sometimes makes me think it would be kinder to shoot the old fellow."

And biologically, he noted, a man who is suddenly shaken from his accustomed orbit will suffer serious consequences.

It is true, Klumpp said, that Nature tends to get rid of any organism that has relinquished its usefulness, a truth that partially at least accounts for the reason so many die shortly after they retire.

Medical science has not even scratched the surface of the diseases of old age, Klumpp insisted. When it does, the percentage of older persons in the population will increase again.

Enemy number one, he said, is hardening of the arteries.

There is a new and hopeful theory that the cause of arteriosclerosis is in the blood an undue amount of cholesterol, a constituent of butter, eggs, cream and other fatty foods, Klumpp told his audience.

If this ultimately turns out to be correct, he said, "it will mark one of the greatest medical discoveries of the twentieth century," he said.

Concluding his speech, Klumpp declared that old age is not a disease but the disabilities arising from it are. If these can be overcome, much of the suffering and sorrowing that comes with old age can be defeated, he said.

14 Panel Sessions

The 800 delegates, all leading authorities in the health field, spent a hard-working Sunday with 14 panel sessions on various phases of the health problem.

The maternal and child health section yesterday adopted a statement calling for a national plan "to put health opportunities and safeguards within reach of all mothers and children, white and Negro, urban and rural, rich and poor."

The present antivivisection campaign was termed "a dagger pointed at the heart of medical research," in Section 7 on the Nation's Need for Research in the Service of Health.

The panel is headed by Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, famed for his research contributions in the fields of the gastro-intestinal tract, the brain, peptic ulcer, etc. He is vice president of the University of Illinois.

The panel heard a subcommittee report that most of the knowledge possessed today regarding the function of the organs of the body, nutrition, and the prevention and control of disease has resulted from animal experimentation.

Virtually every surgical operation today, the report said, includcluding the new "blue baby" operation, was tried on a dog before it was tried on a human.

"The control of such diseases as diabetes, pernicious anemia, smallpox, pellagra, scurvy, rickets, beri beri, diphtheria, typhoid and thyroid disease, was derived from experiments on animals," the subcommittee reported. The group advocated an intensive national educational program to acquaint the public with the value and uses of animal experimentation.

Middies' Chief Terminates Play as Too Salty

The lines of the Middies' production of "Boy Meets Girl" were too salty for even such a hardy old sea-dog as Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Holloway

And so the admiral, veteran of the North African invasion and numerous Pacific engagements, rang the curtain down on showings scheduled for next Friday and Saturday at Mahon Hall.

Cancellation of the show, a production of the Masqueraders, academy dramtic group, was revealed by public relations officials yesterday in issuing a statement from Holloway that "the manner in which the play was presented (Friday night) did not seem suitable for the Naval Academy."

A snafu was apparent at the opening performance Friday when, at the end of the second act, the admiral rose steamed up the aisle to the exit.

It was learned that before the third act started, members of the cast were hurriedly warned to delete any profanity from their lines.

In the preceeding act, a performer had referred to an illegitimate child with a legitimate, but harsh sounding noun. This line was in the original script, an academy source said.

The play, a Broadway hit of prewar days, concerned the tribulations of a girl who finds that because a Mexican divorce was invalid, she is not legally married to the father of her child.

Dr. Royal S. Pease, who supervised the show, said the play had been approved by the academy executive department, of which Commandant Frank Ward is head.

Capt. Jesse Wallace, aide to Holloway, said yesterday that he doubted if any disciplinary action was contemplated.

World Health Unit Vital, Says Fishbein

AMA Editor Urges U. S. Adherence If ERP Is to Succeed

The United States must join the World Health Organization if the Marshall Plan to rehabilitate Europe is to succeed, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, declared yesterday.

Dr. Fishbein told The Washington Post he will appeal to the House Rules Committee and to Speaker Joseph Martin (R., Mass.) today for prompt action this session to approve United States entry into the World Health Organization.

Forty-eight nations have now joined, Fishbein said. Latin-American nations, however, are apparently waiting to see if the Congress approves United States participation.

"It is folly to expect the European Recovery Program to produce real results in increased production," the medical leader declared, "unless the health of the people is improved at the same time."

A sick people, Fishbein pointed out, cannot produce, because they lack the energy and vitality to work. Thus the whole program, designed to increase European production and put Europe back on its feet, is jeopardized unless the World Health Organization can become a functioning body.

The American people should be the first to realize, the medical author declared, the relation between health and achievement, remembering that before the Panama Canal could be built the problem of malaria had first to be solved.

It is vital," Fishbein said, "for the United States to join this great effort because we have obtained leadership in world health. "This country has attained leadership in medical education, medical research, public health and more than that has more funds available for health purposes."

Other nations of the world need our leadership in this great enterprise, Fishbein insisted.

Held Definite Responsibility

"It should be a matter not only of pride but of definite responsibility to take this leadership," he said.

In the United States, the AMA editor asserted, tuberculosis, once the great killer, has moved down from first to seventh place. But in many other nations of the world, tuberculosis still leads the killer list. These nations need the benefit of United States knowledge and techniques, Fishbein said.

All the world must unite its efforts against certain of the great killer diseases and plagues, he maintained.

Although this country has learned how to control malaria, one third of the world is still ravaged by the malaria plague, Fishbein declared.

Fishbein, one of the founders of the World Medical Association, said this organization and the World Health Organization together could be expected to standardize health practices, control drug addiction at the international level, standardize biologicals and also promote the interchange of medical students and scientists throughout the world.

May Overcome 20-Year Lag

Better and quicker dissemination of medical information will result from approval of the World Health Organization, Fishbein said, and may overcome the lag of 20 years between medical discovery and its use by private physicians throughout the world.

"The objectives of the World Health Organization are those of peace," Fishbein said, "and it is one organization in which the whole world can unite and in which political considerations play no part."

Fishbein scouted suggestions, sometimes voiced in congressional quarters, that participation in the World Health Organization will mean surrender of some part of the sovereignty of this Nation.

"The American Medical Association," said Fishbein, with a dry smile, "does not propose to advocate anything which would permit an outsider to come in and tell us what to do within our own borders."

Individual Rights Stressed

He smiled because only a few minutes earlier he had been explaining AMA opposition to any form of compulsory health insurance in this country, on the ground that such a program would interfere with the rights of the individual, both doctor and patient.

His whole emphasis in discussing the World Health Organization was upon its function in making available the best information the world over to all people. The whole program, he said, is one of furnishing leadership and assistance, not of interference and compulsion.

In response to a question, Fishbein said it was possible, of course, that the Russians might try to stymie United States efforts in the World Health Organization.

DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Red Interference Futile

That is one field, he said, in which Russian interference will be absolutely futile because it is this country which has the knowledge, the skills and the abilities to furnish leadership.

Russian medicine, said Fishbein, propaganda notwithstanding, is at a very low state. Health services in Russia today, he declared, are comparable to those of the United States in 1887.

The Russians, he said, are turning out a mass of doctors who are inadequately and improperly trained.

The AMA Journal editor said he was confident Congress would act favorably in the near future upon United States participation in the World Health Organization.

Spend Heavily

Baby Crop Puts Burden On Schools

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—American school systems are spending hundreds of millions of dollars preparing for the booming war and postwar baby crop.

School bond sales during the first quarter of 1948 alone totaled more than 106 million dollars, the Municipal Finance Officers Association reported today.

The Census Bureau predicts 2,750,000 first graders will enroll in United States schools next fall, a 300,000 increase over 1947. The total is expected to rise each succeeding year until the crest is reached in 1953 at about 3,750,000.

Other factors in the classroom crisis besides population growth are rapid urban expansion, putting the greatest strain on city schools, and wartime curtailment of school construction.

California leads all other States this year in bond sales for school improvements, with a total of $23,600,000 reported for January, February and March. Texas was second with $12,560,000, Ohio third with $8,660,000 and New York fourth with $7,050,000.

Communists Gain In Shantung Sector

Nanking, May 2 (U.P.).—Government troops have evacuated Changlo, 10 miles west of Weihsien, further weakening the government salient in Shantung, it was disclosed today.

Heavy fighting was reported at Hanting, just east of Weihsien. Hanting is the last government-held town in the Weihsien area.

Holy Cross Alumni Chapter Plans Dinner

The South Atlantic Alumni Club of Holy Cross College will hold its annual dinner at Hotel Mayflower Wednesday night at 7.

The dinner, honoring the Very Rev. William J. Healy, S. J., president of the college, will be in the nature of a reunion of graduates living in the District, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware. Guest speaker will be Representative Edward J. Hart (D., N. J.).

Reunion Subject Of Presbyterians

Plans for a reunion of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. and the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. (Southern) will be discussed at a meeting in Cincinnati Tuesday through Friday.

Committees on Cooperation and Union of the two church groups will attempt to draw up a final report on reunion at the sessions. If the report is presented to general assemblies of the two groups later this month, and if the assemblies approve it, it will be sent to presbyteries of the churches for a vote.

Demands Trieste Return

Valence, France, May 2 (AP).—Foreign Minister Georges Bidault today repeated his demand that Trieste be given back to Italy.

N. J. Forest Fire Laid To Pig Chewing Matches

Camden, N. J., May 2 (AP).—Five fires destroyed more than 100 acres of South Jersey woodland yesterday—and a farmer told wardens one of the forest fires was started by a pig chewing matches.

James Davis told Section Warden Frank C. Schramm one of the 100 pigs on his farm had gnawed matches in the midst of dried garbage. That blaze consumed 30 acres.

Warden Schramm said he was "skeptical."

Willging to Discuss Civil Rights Group

Dr. Eugene P. Willging, Catholic University library director, will discuss the President's Committee on Civil Rights at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Study Guild Catholic Library.

The President's Committee on Education will also be discussed by Dr. Willging. The meeting is open to the public.

When there's work to be done... Nickel is

"A Friend in Deed"

Father, it seems, is a little bit behind in his homework.

But the situation is well in hand. That's because father has a real friend working for him...always bright and ready to lend a hand.

It's your friend Nickel...the metal that's such a faithful servant in your modern kitchen.

When it comes time to tidy up, you'll find Nickel in the automatic dishwasher that whirls and sprays your troubles away. And in the Stainless Steel pans and silvery sink that shine up like new. Yes, even in the rustproof Monel water heater tank that sends you clean, hot water.

And when you put your next meal on your electric range, Nickel-chromium heating units sheathed with Inconel, cook it with quick, clean heat...while Nickel alloys in the thermostat and timing device make sure it's done to a turn. And "Your Unseen Friend," Nickel in the electric coffee maker and toaster helps complete the meal.

Why do these modern miracles serve you so long and well? Because Nickel alloys, like Monel and Stainless Steel, fight wear...laugh at hard knocks...don't chip or rust.

In many places around your home INCO Nickel serves you Unseen, because it's combined with other metals. That's why Nickel is called "Your Unseen Friend."

Health Assembly

If the 800 delegates now in Washington for the National Health Assembly lacked evidence of the failure of the American people to make the best use of their resources for health, they could find a ready example in the results of the local tuberculosis survey. The current estimate, based on 375,000 chest X-rays, is that about 5000 residents of Greater Washington have, or have had, tuberculosis—a disease that can readily be prevented. But, of course, there is ample evidence of a similar character before the National Health Assembly. Indeed, Washington, with all of its shortcomings, is a very healthy place compared to some other sections of the country.

A statement by the agenda committee of the medical care section of the assembly shows a great disparity between the medical treatment available in different parts of the country. New York provides more than three times as much hospital care and general service from physicians on a per capita basis as does Mississippi. Connecticut has an infant mortality rate much less than half that of New Mexico. Everywhere there is an appalling wastage of human life and health because known methods of fighting disease are applied on an inadequate scale. In his talk to the assembly President Truman spoke hopefully of great new discoveries in medical science. But even without any new discoveries a vast number of lives could be saved each year by a better distribution of medical talent and hospital facilities. Only a few of the States have given the health of their people the importance it merits, and even these have a long way to go before they can say that human life is not needlessly sacrificed.

The existence of wide disparities between the health care offered by the various States makes it the more important for the Nation to do its part. There is as yet no agreement as to what the national responsibility is in this sphere, but it is good to see so many experts working toward a national health program. President Truman's flexibility in assembling a distinguished group of doctors and representatives of public health and social service augurs well for the development of plans for extending medical care that will prove generally acceptable.

Red Rider

The House of Representatives furnished another instance on Thursday of the mischief entailed in attempts to determine policy through appropriation measures. It attached to the appropriation bill for the Federal Security Agency a rider forbidding the payment of salary to any employe belonging to a union whose officers do not sign anti-Communist affidavits. And on the same day, spokesmen for the House Appropriations Committee openly threatened to hold up all funds for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments as a means of blackmailing the Administration into surrendering the FBI file on Dr. Edward U. Condon. In either case, such use of the power of the purse would amount to an indefensible encroachment upon the orderly processes of government.

The rider to the FSA appropriation is aimed primarily at a labor union, the United Public Workers of America, in which a number of Federal employes hold membership. Its leaders have refused to sign non-Communist affidavits. The purpose of the rider, according to its author, Representative Keefe, is to force the union members to change their leaders. Desirable as it is to relieve any union of Government employes of Communist leadership, we do not think this is the right approach. Congress, after consideration by the appropriate legislative committee, provided in the Taft-Hartley Act that unions the leaders of which did not sign non-Communist affidavits could not have the privilege of appealing to the National Labor Relations Board. The present appropriation bill would, in effect, amend the Taft-Hartley Act so far as Federal employes are concerned. It would deny Government employment to all members, Communists and non-Communists alike, of any union the leaders of which failed to sign non-Communist affidavits. That is an overly drastic remedy which cannot be justified on the ground that the aim is desirable.

The effort to compel surrender of a confidential executive file by the withholding of needed funds is a naked piece of coercion. Congress can at any time, of course, apply its appropriation power in such a way as to destroy the Government. It can, if it chooses, make the pressure on the President still stronger by refusing to appropriate money for the armed services. It can, through its hold upon the purse strings, subvert both the judicial and the executive branches of the tripartite American system.

But to acknowledge that it possesses the power of a Samson is not to say that it ought to use that power irresponsibly to wreck the temple of which it is but a coordinate part.

Basing Point

The Federal Trade Commission won a notable victory last week in its fight against the basing point system of pricing when the Supreme Court upheld the commission's contention that the cement industry's multiple basing point delivered price system was an unfair trade practice that the commission could suppress. Under the single basing point system formerly used by the steel industry Pittsburgh was the basing point, and the Pittsburgh price of steel was the base price. The price at which deliveries of steel were made to any point from anywhere else was the Pittsburgh price of the product, plus freight charges from Pittsburgh to the delivery point. The result was to create uniform delivered prices in every locality where deliveries were made, regardless of the producers' different freight costs. Under the cement industry's multiple basing point system the sellers likewise quote identical delivered prices in a given area, regardless of differences in their production costs and in freight charges. "Thus," as the court says, "the multiple and single systems function in the same general manner and produce the same consequences—identity of prices and diversity of net returns."

It is important to note that in outlawing the multiple basing point system of the cement industry the court based its decision on its finding that the cement companies had been parties to a combination acting collectively to maintain a sales technique that restrained competition. The FTC order which the court sustained is by its terms directed solely at concerted action. As Justice Burton pointed out in his dissenting opinion, the court did not pass on the question whether an individual producer, acting independently, would be justified in absorbing freight charges to meet lower prices of competitors having an advantage in respect of such charges. Consequently the present decision does not mean that all individual cement producers must in future quote f. o. b. mill prices, adding the cost of freight to the delivery point in all cases. However, it is an open question whether individual companies owning plants in various parts of the country can hope to maintain delivered price systems for their own establishments in future without running afoul of the law. Furthermore, a number of suits are now pending involving the validity of the multiple basing point system in various industries, and the FTC is currently conducting hearings before a trial examiner on the steel industry's multiple basing point that might result in the issuance of a restraining order similar to that which the Supreme Court has just upheld in the cement case.

It is not surprising, therefore, that many agitated industrial leaders are urging congressional action to prevent the possible dislocation of pricing systems that have been in effect for many years. Arguments both for and against the basing point system are persuasive. The system itself is undoubtedly subject to abuse and lends itself to collusive practices that, quite apart from questions of legality, are socially undesirable. On the other hand, this system of pricing has done away with some of the evils of cutthroat competition and has widened markets for many products, whereas the system of f. o. b. mill prices tends to set up local monopolies based on the advantages of geographical location.

Probably the most important objection to sweeping away the basing point system is the fact that to do so would entail serious disruption of established industrial relationships. The danger is not immediate, perhaps, but it looms as a threat for the future that calls for serious consideration. It seems to us that Congress ought to take a hand in solving this difficult problem instead of leaving it to the courts to decide the issue on strictly legalistic grounds. No system that has stood the test of time is either all good or all bad. There is, no doubt, need for Government supervision and control of pricing policies that entail restrictions on freedom of competition, as the basing point system unquestionably does. But that is not a conclusive reason for indiscriminate scrapping of such systems and substitution of an enforced system of free competitive pricing that might prove to be less well adapted to the needs of the time, the place and the particular industry affected.

Ohio On The Eve

The principal significance of the primary election in Ohio tomorrow is that the political destinies of Senator Taft are at stake there. Mr. Stassen, even if he makes a poor showing, or even if he does not manage to obtain a single delegate, will nevertheless remain a formidable candidate for the Republican nomination to the Presidency. But unless Mr. Taft makes something very close to a full sweep of the Ohio delegates, he can be pretty definitely counted out of the race; indeed he would scarcely have sufficient trading strength to make him an important figure in the Philadelphia convention. Even worse, a relatively weak showing by Mr. Taft in the Ohio primary might encourage some ambitious Ohio Republican to challenge him in the senatorial primary of 1950.

Accordingly, on the eve of the election, Mr. Taft has asserted his confidence that, of the 53 delegates who will be chosen, not less than 52 will be men and women pledged to vote for him. It is certain in any event that a substantial majority of the Ohio delegation will be Taft supporters. Mr. Stassen has chosen to contest with Mr. Taft in only 23 of the 53 electoral districts, and in at least half of these Mr. Stassen's hopes are at best very slender. But it must also be remembered that Ohio is Mr. Taft's own State, and that if he does not make an impressive showing there he will scarcely make one elsewhere.

Thus, if Mr. Stassen picks up more than a half dozen delegates in Ohio, it may be set down as another considerable victory for him. Mr. Stassen, indeed, is predicting that he will receive at least 12, and his managers, who have less need of caution in such matters, are talking of 15. Their hopes, however, are placed mainly upon the Republican voters in the larger industrial centers where the Taft-Hartley Act has naturally been made the chief issue.

The primary campaign has been conducted on both sides in a carnival spirit with some suggestions of an old-time camp meeting revival. This has put Mr. Taft at a considerable disadvantage. Political theatricalism does not come easily to a man of his blunt and forthright personality, while Mr. Stassen has many of the gifts of the natural showman. That Mr. Taft could have been persuaded to make such a campaign shows how he has been maneuvered into a completely defensive position. For even if he wins a clear victory tomorrow he will be no better off, so far as the presidential nomination is concerned, than he would have been if Mr. Stassen had not chosen to give him battle in Ohio.

Treachery, Inc.

Ernest Burger and George Dasch, two of the Nazi saboteurs who were landed from a submarine on the Long Island coast in the early summer of 1942 and captured soon afterward, have been released from prison at the order of President Truman. They will be sent back to Germany to live in the American zone of occupation under such conditions as may be decided upon by General Clay.

The two men had been spared from the fate of their companions, because they provided the testimony on which the others were tried before a military tribunal, sentenced to death, and executed at the District Jail. In announcing the release of the two men, Attorney General Clark stated that the Government's motive was > to indicate publicly that persons who have been employed by foreign powers for espionage or sabotage have everything to gain by disclosing details of the conspiracy to proper officers of the Government.

This statement pretty clearly indicates the character which international communism has imposed on twentieth century politics. Of course, since the rise of modern nationalism, all governments have employed spies and all have been willing to pay generously for the betrayal of military or diplomatic secrets of other nations or of the activities and memberships of subversive groups within the state. But until now no government has openly advertised for such information.

This business in betrayals was developed to fantastic lengths in pre-revolutionary Russia. Many secret agents were simultaneously in the employment of the Okhrana, or Tsarist secret police, and in the confidence of revolutionary conspirators. The most celebrated example perhaps was Roman Malinovski, an associate of Lenin, and at one time leader of the Bolshevist deputies in the Duma while he was also in the pay of the Tsar. After the October revolution of 1917, the Okhrana itself was reorganized into the Cheka and became the principal instrument of terror in the war of extermination conducted against the bourgeoisie, Mensheviks and Social Democrats. It has continued into our own times, on a steadily expanding basis, under the successive titles of GPU, NKVD and MVD, and some say that its operations are now on a world-wide basis.

In any event the businesses of conspiracy and counterconspiracy are being conducted on a scale which has invested the whole world with the atmosphere of a novel by the late E. Phillips Oppenheim or Sax Rohmer. All this, however, serves to raise the question whether any sort of society, except the society of a prison state, is possible where at least some loyalties cannot be taken for granted.

Smarter Robots

It's wonderful how we make progress! A lamp has now been invented that will turn on when we tell it we want light. All we have to do is to stand within three feet of it and say "Bright!" in clear resonant tones, and on it goes! Thus has the electric eye principle been extended. Heretofore we have had doors that would open when an electronic beam was broken and fire alarms that would sound off when they smelled smoke. But this is the first robot guaranteed to obey our spoken orders—and make us feel executive and important. Having learned to boss the beasts and even some of our fellow beings, it is most fitting that our vocal sovereignty should be extended to inanimate objects. Perhaps eventually we shall be barking out orders like top sergeants at all our surroundings.

Another advance in robots is also announced—remote control hands that can slice an orange, light a cigarette, write a name, break an egg. These mechanical hands, which at a distance from the operator can operate machine tools or perform delicate chemical experiments, were invented for use in radio-active areas in handling radio-active matter. While the "hands" will be used in peacetime atomic energy activities, yet they would also be extremely useful in dealing with the aftermath of an atomic bombing. At least if the worst comes, we shall have some very efficient robots ready as allies. It all goes to show that robots—even if not their creators—are getting smarter and smarter.

DAR And Immigration

I read with interest Randolph H. Carter's April 28 letter. In gallantly rushing to the defense of the illustrous ladies of the DAR in their insistence that America disregard her clear moral responsibility to afford worthy refugees and displaced persons the opportunity to rebuild their lives here. He suggests indirectly that Herblock's striking cartoon of April 24 was unduly severe on the ladies of the DAR..

Mr. Carter points out that the ancestors of the DAR lady in the cartoon came to this country to build a new Nation by their sweat and toil and to clear the great forests.

I should like to suggest to Mr. Carter that this great country of the DAR's and ours still has a great many forests to clear away, some 300 years after the Mayflower reached the New England shores. One of the most formidable of these forests which blocks the full realization of our democratic ideal is that of racial prejudice and intolerance, which the ladies of the DAR not only countenance but further through their organizational policies and pronouncements. It will take a great deal of honest sweat and consecrated toil on the part of thinking Americans for some generations to come to clear away this forest. And until it is cleared away, our success in convincing other nations of the validity of our democratic way of life will of necessity be limited.

HENRY B. COX.

Very interesting that Mr. Randolph H. Carter's letter re immigration should appear in the same edition bearing the announcement of Mr. William Knudsen's death.

Our Seamy Side

Mr. Robert E. Reardon's letter of April 24 criticizing Mr. North's review of John Steinbeck's new book on the Russian people is neither here nor there. Yes, it's common knowledge that America has its good and bad features and so does every spot on the globe and each individual thereon.

Dusting off the pages of the Grapes of Wrath which is again brought to the front isn't helping to gain a balanced viewpoint. When attempting to employ it as detrimental propaganda and insisting it is representative of American life and then again giving notes of praise to the USA isn't consistent. Also, it is implied that too little publicity of the ugly side is being poured forth. If Mr. Reardon will merely look at the pictures in popular magazines or attend a contemporary art exhibit he should inhale enough of the sordid and give his eyes the chance to open.

The gruesome, powerfully written incidents which are huddled together in the Grapes of Wrath more than likely represent a multitude of people combating or yielding to the filthy, cruel happenings which exist all over the country. They are massed around a few characters who are so depicted to convince the world this is the usual way of American life in certain sections of our country.

I cherish a wish that Mr. Reardon and writers in general would grab the "silver lining" and put their energy toward promoting the brighter, cleaner side of living. That too, exists, thank heavens, as is only too casually and condescendingly admitted.

We could use more hand clappers and shrill whistlers to exploit the contagiousness of good and promote more flame fanning for the merits of our wonderful hopeful country, to which the world looks for help.

AN AMERICAN.
Washington.

"Triumph Of Law"

I was much interested in your April 25 editorial entitled "Triumph of Law." I hope you are correct in your conclusion that the second lesson handed out by Judge Goldsborough "appears to have been effective." I wonder if this is true when the miners by three hours' work could pay off the $1,420,000 fine?

When the miners meet the operators on June 30 next for an increase in wages what they have to gain makes the fine appear insignificant. An increase of $1.00 a day in wages will pay the fine in four days and that increase of $1.00 will continue for an indefinite number of days. An increase of 1-cent an hour will pay the fine in less than 10 weeks. As usual Mr. Lewis has played his cards effectively. There is no possibility of his losing.

FRANK LYON.
Washington.

Transit Fares

As we are not U. S. Government workers and not represented by any civic organization, we are taking this opportunity to express our views on the proposed increase in Capital Transit fares.

Until recent reports that Capital Transit fares would be raised to 15 cents per ride without a pass, we had always considered the means of transportation as a public service.

We are wondering how such an increase will affect the majority of Washington inhabitants whose salaries are far below the theoretical average; secretaries, clerks, those engaged in part-time jobs only to make ends meet, and day workers who attend night school with a view to raise their level of living, etc.

With the former weekly pass of $1.25, we did not hesitate to shop around for sales, see an occasional movie, hear a free concert, or visit friends. If the fare is raised again, we shall be obliged to make trips less often. However, disregarding the secondary effects of an increase upon stores, restaurants, and theaters, the moral letdown of having to give up the few recreational activities available to us, the burden will fall upon those of us who can least afford it and cannot escape the necessity of four or more trips a day.

With due respect for arguments about inflation, we object to a raise in the cost of transport hurting the mass of people who are less able to pay and are obliged to use "public" transport to exercise their various duties several times daily. Those who can afford these fares are left untouched since they have cars of their own or prefer a taxi.

THIRTEEN CAPITAL TRANSIT PATRONS.

Union Pallbearers

I refer to the James J. Donnelly, jr., incident as reported in the papers of April 28. Is this truly the America for which the young marine gave his life after Bougainville, Guam and the days at Iwo Jima?

That the eight marines from Bayonne Naval Base were barred from service as pallbearers by the AFL United Funeral Chauffeurs and Helpers Union of Jersey City is base and unthinkable. When organized labor has the power to rise above decency and individual rights, it is time indeed for the people to fight any such organizatio. Oh, yes, in fairness to the union and its pallbearers, the marines were permitted to hold a flag over the casket as it was being lowered into the grave.

RHEA NACHMAN.

American Aggression

Reading Senator Vandenberg's speech before the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, wherein he repeated in capsule form the liturgy of United States foreign policy, I was struck again, as I have been so many times in these postwar years, by the unrealistic quality of these commonly invoked phrases.

"We do not covet an inch of alien territory . . . no aggression by us is feared by any other people." That may be perfectly true, Senator Vandenberg, but then why cannot you, or some other of our statesmen go on to say: "American aggression is of a different kind. America stands for democracy, the most inspiring, progressive political ideal in the history of man. It is an ideal for which people have lived and died for thousands of years; and within our own generation this country has helped this political idea spread to new parts of the world."

Of course Russia fears aggression by the Western democracies. Not the aggression of military forces, surely. But an aggression against which no iron curtain of censorship can for long prevail. Of course Russia fears the Western democracies—because the democratic idea of the importance of man himself is the most revolutionary, the most contagious, expanding idea in the world.

Until Senator Vandenberg and others reacquire the American faith that if democracy is represented by Jonah, it is Jonah who will swallow the whale—and think in terms of how a settlement with Russia can be arrived at which recognizes this fact and its meaning to Russia—our foreign policy will continue to have the sterile, brittle quality that it has already begun to assume. We may win the war—but we will surely have lost the opportunity—a tremendous one as I see it—of winning the peace.

If, on the other hand, Senator Vandenberg and others continue to believe that "we are realists" simply because we have recognized a military threat in this age when the additional—and infinitely more complex—threat of indirect aggression has appeared to challenge the ingenuity of statesmen on both sides of the world, then it seems to me the "settlement" of this war will turn out to be as brittle as the last, and as easily shattered.

FRANCES L. VAN SCHAICK.
Washington.

Federal Aid To Schools

Our public schools were intentionally placed under the control of the State governments instead of the Federal Government, and they are about the only remaining bulwark of local self-government which the Federal Government has not taken under its sponsorship.

The Taft bill, passed recently by the Senate, which is now pending in the Committee on Education and Labor in the House of Representatives, propose to give Federal aid to the States in support of the public schools.

Nearly every State in the Union is better off financially than the Federal Government. Many States have large surpluses on hand and are fully capable of paying larger salaries to the teachers, and are prepared to improve their educational equipment without this Federal aid.

Where does the Federal Government get its money to pay to the States for the education of the children? It gets it from the people back in the States by direct and indirect taxation, and every dollar the Federal Government gets from the States to hand back to the States has lost 40 per cent of its value in the transit, due to governmental administrative expenditure. Any State that does not take care of its own affairs belonging to it and depends upon the Federal Government, is short-sighted on finances.

Whatever the Government subsidizes, the Supreme Court ruled, it has the right to control and regulate.

The Possessed

LENIN: A BIOGRAPHY, by David Shub. (Doubleday, $5.)

"Great men," wrote Lord Acton to his friend Bishop Creighton, "are almost always bad men, even when they exercise influence and not authority." Vladimir Ilyich Ulianov, known to history as Lenin, has had an influence on the imaginations of men scarcely less powerful than Mohammed's, and continues to exercise authority from his tomb. Mr. Shub in this admirable history makes it clear that the historical role of Lenin was essentially that of a religious prophet. It does not matter that from the age of sixteen, when, having been converted to atheism, "he tore the cross violently from his neck, spat upon it comtemptuously and threw it away," Lenin was a hater of religion as he understood the word. He served his own god, which he called the class war, with an unflagging and selfless devotion, sacrificing to it all sense of pity and every scruple. His disciples who, as Mr. Shub tells us, canonized him at his death and ascribed to his writings the "character of Holy Writ," understood him better than he understood himself; for Lenin had transformed the stuffy Marxist rationalism into a kind of demonic mysticism and had infused into communism an Oriental genius.

Mr. Shub, now a writer for the Jewish Daily Forward of New York, is eminently qualified to be the biographer of Lenin, for he is himself an old Russian revolutionary, evidently of the Menshevik persuasion, who served time in Siberia. He had personal acquaintance not only of Lenin but of many other great figures of 1917, including Miliukov and Karensky. Mr. Shub is apparently very widely read in Russian revolutionary literature, and shows us among other things how profoundly Lenin had been influenced by the teachings of two earlier and relatively obscure revolutionists. One of these was Sergei Nechaiev, a nihilistic disciple of Bakunin, and by all traditional measurements an utter lunatic. Nechaiev held that since morality was part of the social order it must be destroyed with the rest and all means of destruction, including murder, theft, treachery, slander and terror were equally honorable. He was author of the dictum, afterward paraphrased by Dr. Robert Ley, the Nazi, that "Everything which promotes the success of the revolution is moral, everything which hinders it is immoral." A pamphlet prepared by Nechaiev and Bakunin and quoted by Mr. Shub reads like the parody of a tract on the monastic life. The revolutionist may have "no private interest, no affairs, sentiments, ties, property or even a name of his own. His entire being is devoured by one thought, one purpose, one passion. He has severed every link with the social order and with the entire civilized world."

From Nechiaev, then, Lenin obtained his notion of a revolutionary priesthood; it was from Peter Tkachev that he obtained the idea of the consolidation of power in the hands of professional revolutionaries and the wholesale eradication of enemy classes. The overthrow of an established government, wrote Tkachev, is merely the prelude to revolution. The class-conscious minority, "having freed the people from the yoke of fear and terror, provides an opportunity for the people to manifest their revolutionary destructive power. Supported by this power and skillfully directing it toward the elimination of the enemies of the revolution, the minority demolishes the bulwarks of the old government and deprives it of the means of counteraction. Then utilizing its authority, the minority introduces new progressive Communist ideas into life. In its work of reformation, the revolutionary minority need not rely upon the active support of the people. The revolutionary role of the people ends the instant they have overthrown the tyrants and exploiters." From the revolutionary hierachy it was but a step to the revolutionary pope, that is to Lenin's dogma that, pending the advent of the classless society and the apocalyptic "withering away of the state" a personal dictatorship may be necessary for the conduct of the class war. Thus the Communist Party acquires the character of a church militant extending its influence and its power, not by charity, but by coercion and conspiracy.

Lenin, even in his years of obscurity and exile, can scarcely be said to have had a private life. But the man who in his days of public power was ruthless to a degree that shocked even some of his disciples, was in his personal life gentle, amiable and in a sense almost humble, a devoted son to his mother and a grateful if not always faithful husband to Krupskaya. To judge by Mr. Shub's extensive quotations from Lenin's writings, he was hardly a man of great intellectual endowments. The quality of his thought was wholly pragamatic and expedient; in esthetic matters he was like Hitler, a complete Philistine. It was this defect, almost as much as his immoralism, that scandalized the Menshivik leader Plekhanov. For all of Lenin's pride as a dialectician, the movement of events often caught him by surprise; when the news of the March revolution of 1917 was brought to him at Zurich, he refused for a time to believe it. It appears, then, that Lenin's greatness was rather of the will than of the mind. But to ask whether, without benefit of the cataclysmic blunder of Bethmann-Hollweg and Marshal von Ludendorff, his will could have carried him to that height of power from which he shook the earth, is to raise one of the unanswered questions of philosophy. One thing is certain: the arrival of Lenin at the Finland Station in Petrograd in April, 1917, is one of the decisive moments of human history.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Senseless Sabotage

THE NEXT few weeks will bring a concrete and most significant test of the condition of the Republican Party. Will the men who are manifestly the most popular with the mass of the Republican voters—Stassen, Dewey, and Vandenberg—be upheld or repudiated in the field of foreign policy by the Republican organization in Congress?

Lippmann

The test will come before June 12 on the question of extending the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which expires on that day.

Since it was first passed in 1934, the Act has four times come before Congress for renewal—in 1937, 1940, 1943, and 1945. On all these occasions it could fairly be said that, though there were many Republicans who supported it, it was a measure of the Democratic Party, based on its traditional views in favor of moderate tariffs, and therefore one which the Republican Party, long committed to high protection, could reasonably oppose. But this is no longer the case. The Republican Party can no longer oppose the extension of this Act without repudiating its own solemn and precise commitments, now the law of the land and an integral and essential part of the Nation's foreign policy.

The Economic Cooperation Act was passed by the Senate on March 13. The vote was 69 to 17. It was passed by the House on March 31. The vote was 329 to 74.

This law says (Section 115) b (3) that the participating countries are required to conclude agreements with the United States providing among other things for cooperation "to reduce barriers to trade among themselves and with other countries." If the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act is not renewed or is nullified by destructive amendment, this country will not be able to negotiate and conclude the agreements which the law of the Economic Cooperation Act requires.

THE LAW itself will have been nullified by the Congress which passed it. The great policy on which is staked so much of our hope of security and peace will have been repudiated. What Congress did with its right hand, it will have undone with its left. The damage will be irreparable. For by an act of this Congress, made after full deliberation, the good faith and honor of the Nation are now fully and wholly engaged in carrying out the letter and the spirit of the European Recovery Program..

How could a default, anullification, a repudiation be explained? How could the moral credit of the Government in its dealings with foreign powers be restored? On what ground should we then stand in opposing those who, having made solemn international commitments, resort to devious ways of evading, avoiding, and subverting them?

IT MUST not be supposed, it cannot be presumed, that the Republicans in the House who are involved in this matter are conspiring to subvert the foreign policy of the United States. Almost certainly they have not yet understood what they are doing. They have not yet heard from the national leaders of their party, from the men among whom, if they expect to win the election, they will select their candidates. These men are bound to speak to them promptly and unequivocally, and to make them realize that they are no longer dealing with the traditional domestic issue of high and low tariffs but with a crucial element of a policy in which the vital interests of the Nation—its peace and its security—are directly involved.

THE OPPONENTS of an extension of the Act are, of course, entitled to make their case. But if they make their case in the open, we shall see that they are trying to protect themselves against imaginary injuries. The chief producing interests behind the opposition in Congress are not now suffering from unemployment, or from severe competition in the domestic market, or from cutthroat prices, nor are they doing unprofitable business.

Quite the contrary. A compilation made by the National City Bank of New York of the net, income of the leading corporations in the industries supposed to be affected adversely shows that never have they been so prosperous. The 44 leading companies making chemical products earned over 17 per cent on their net worth last year, after charging off depreciation, interest, taxes and other charges and reserves. For 45 cotton goods companies the return was 36 per cent; for 9 woolen goods companies it was 21 per cent; for shoes and other leather products it was 21; for glass products over 17 per cent. These industries cannot argue that they are being hurt. All they can say is that they are afraid that they might be hurt some time in the future. That is not a sufficient reason for wrecking the foreign policy of the United States.

AS A MATTER of fact these fears are for the immediate future—that is to say for the next three or four years—demonstrably groundless. What is the economic trouble in Europe? Is it not the low productivity of Britian, Germany, and the other industrial countries? What is the best that we hope to see accomplished by the utmost exertion of the Europeans? Is it not that in the course of four years they may be able to produce enough to meet their own most urgent needs and to pay for the bare necessities which they must import?

How, then, can these American industries imagine that such feeble European industries are going to invade the American market and flood it with goods and ruin their profits? The trouble with Europe, which ERP is set up to alleviate, is that European industries cannot produce enough. And yet here are American lobbyists trying to argue that the productivity of Europe is about to ruin them.

THERE IS NO sense in it. And while it would be wrong to wreck ERP even if they lost some of their profits, to wreck it when their profits are enormous and their competitive position is invulnerable would be a most senseless piece of political sabotage.

Bishop Assails 'Individualism' Of Religion in 'Day of Chaos'

Boston, May 2 (AP).—The Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, today told Methodist Church leaders "deepening of Christian faith is needed to face the difficulty and tragedy of our times."

He told the Methodist General Conference:

"We have had, so far as religion is concerned, a rampant individualism. This may be possible in an era of optimism and progress. But this is not true in a day of transition and chaos. . . .

"It is in the knowledge of God that the church and the Christian will face international tensions, the fact of Russia and of Communism, the danger of nationalism. . . ."

He declared the Episcopalians had much in common with Methodism.

"We are both national churches and we are both democratic as to the processes of church government and final authority," he said.

X-Ray Drive Will Show Need For 400-500 Beds by October

Charles E. Burbridge, superintendent.

The Upshur Street Hospital, which like Gallinger and Glenn Dale is District-operated, is mainly a convalescent institution and therefore unused for serious cases. Since only the most serious cases are being hospitalized, recovery is slow and many beds are not used at Upshur.

Dr. Coulter and Funkhouser, discussing the problem, mentioned that in some communities a 10 per cent differential is added to salaries of nurses and wardmen working in tuberculosis wards. This is an added stimulus to attract such personnel and tends to offset the risk of contacting the disease involved in the duties.

The two tuberculosis experts also suggested that the pay for resident physicians be upped from the present $1200 a year paid under District regulations to the $3200 a year paid by the Veterans' Administration in its institutions.

In addition, Dr. Coulter proposed expansion of his staff "to permit complete follow-up of cases, or the fine results of this survey will go down the drain." He explained that unless workers were available to encourage and organize treatments at local clinics and to follow cases after the cure is considered completed, the benefits of uncovering the disease would be lost.

The Sum And The Parts

Rome.

WILL THE EUROPEAN Recovery Program make possible a real recovery in Italy, or can a free Italy survive only as a permanent pensioner of the United States? As the political placards are torn down, as the excitements of the election fade into memory, that remains the great conundrum, not only for Italy but for every nation of non-Soviet Europe. Moreover, with the Communists increasingly isolated, with a stable government at last in prospect, the European Recovery Program should have a fair test here.

Especially among Italian conservatives and nationalists, there are those who prédict flatly (and with an odd lugubrious pleasure) that the test is bound to fail. These gloomy prophets are by no means fools, and their reasoning is worth hearing. Its key is a word which the reporter in Italy always sooner or later hears in every conversation with an Italian, whether Premier Alcide de Gasperi or a chance acquaintance in a lobby. The word is "emigration." For as one observer rather brutally put it, "the Italians must export to live, and most of what they must export is Italians."

The facts are simple. There is a net yearly population increase of between 400,000 and 500,000 on this crowded peninsula. Except by emigration (or by those traditional methods, famine and war) there is no way in which this constant increase can be controlled, first, because this is at Catholic country, and second, because the Italian peasant or worker has always regarded a large family as a form of old-age insurance.

PREMIER DE GASPERI hopes to find living space abroad for 200,000 Italians every year. Yet even if this hope is fulfilled, the pessimists point out, the Italian population will still shoot up a million people every four years. And how can this poor country, they ask, a country without natural resources, hope to feed and clothe and shelter these people? Even now there are almost two million unemployed, many agricultural workers live little better than animals, and millions of industrial laborers work only part time, 20 or 24 hours a week.

The central and eastern European markets for Italy's delicious fruits and vegetables are largely cut off. The world's rich, squeezed by taxation even in the rich United States, no longer buy Italy's fine silk and Carrara marble and specially built luxury cars. Without native raw materials, Italy cannot hope to compete in world markets in heavy industry. And, above all, everywhere in the world the doors are closed or closing on Italy's teeming population excess. Italy could survive in the old world of open borders and open markets, but not today. Thus the European Recovery Program is no more than a means of postponing, for four short years, the inevitable catastrophe.

Thus argue the pessimists, in this immoderately cheerful country. There is a certain grim logic in their reasoning; yet it is interesting that not one of the hard-hearted American experts here subscribe to this reasoning. The experts do not maintain that Italy is certain to recover. But they are unanimous in maintaining that Italy can recover.

Much will, of course, depend on the Italians themselves. More than is generally realized has already been accomplished. Inflation has been controlled. Production is on the increase. Reconstruction of the vast war damage is under way. The Italians are eager to work; no one can spend even a week or so here without sensing the enormous vitality of the Italian people.

Much remains to be done, and Premier de Gasperi, although he expects opposition from the conservatives in his own party, is determined that it shall be done. He and his advisers speak of tax reform, land reform, irrigation schemes, plans for the reorganization of the chaotic Italian industry.

YET EVEN ALL THIS—and here again the experts are unanimous—will not be enough. Italy can recover, but Italy cannot recover alone, as a separate economic and political entity. To this extent the prophets of doom are entirely correct.

To a remarkable degree, the conviction is growing here that the European whole is greater than the sum of all its parts; that not only Italy but England and France and all the western European nations can only recover permanently as integral parts of a politically and economically unified western Europe. The more farseeing go further, predicting that the recovery of Europe, even after unification, will depend upon the political and economic organization of the whole non-Soviet world. Only thus, it must be admitted, can fundamental solutions be found for such problems as the Italian population surplus.

These ideas have already found preliminary expression in the Western Union, which Italy may soon be invited to join. Yet the Western Union is no more than a start. Italian Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza has remarked half jokingly that he expects Europe to be united "in about 80 years," some 70-odd years too late. Certainly there are immense obstacles to real western European unity. Yet the ruthless policy of the Soviet Union will continue to act as a lash driving the western European nations to unite. And the United States, in the European Recovery Program, has provided the means. Thus it is at last possible to hope. That is at least something of which Americans may be proud.

Reuther Assails Senate Move Against TEW Housing Bill

UAW-CIO Chieftain Walter Reuther, in his first public statement since the attempt to assassinate him, last night issued a blistering denunciation of the "surprise attempt to scuttle the TEW housing bill."

In a surprise move last Friday, Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) tried to have the Senate extend the home loan insurance provision of the present law for a year. This would rip this popular section from the Senate-passed TEW bill and weaken the bill's position in the House.

Public-housing minded Senators in a snarled session Friday succeeded in delaying a vote on the Cain proposal until today so they could marshal their forces.

From his hospital bed Reuther bitterly scored the attempt to take advantage of the absence of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and other leading supporters of the TEW measure and rush through the extension. The present authority for home loan insurance expired Friday but applications are still being taken in the knowledge the authority will eventually be continued.

The fiery Reuther centered his blast at those he called "the four horsemen of the real estate lobby," Senators Cain, Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wisc.) and Representatives Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) and Charles L. Fletcher (R., Calif.).

"It is surprising to me that these two freshmen Senators by bold tactics are able to abuse the legislative process and put in jeopardy the legislation which was passed by the Senate," said Reuther.

Secret Condon Case Quiz Is Disclosed

'Tokyo Rose' Seeks Trial For Treason

Tokyo, May 2 (AP).—The woman who says she is Tokyo Rose declared today she would welcome a chance" to clear her status by facing trial for treason.

"I am living a life of doubt. I want my case settled once and for all," Los Angeles-born Iva Ikuko d'Aquino said in an interview.

Her comment was occasioned by a story in the Nashville Tennessean that the United States Justice Department was contemplating her rearrest and return to America to face treason charges. Tokyo Rose was famous during the war for pro-Japanese propaganda broadcasts to American troops in the Pacific.

Atomic Experts, Other Witnesses Being Examined

By The Associated Press

Atomic experts and other witnesses are being quizzed secretly by the House Un-American Activities Committee about the case of Dr. Edward U. Condon, a committeeman said yesterday.

The committee is getting ready for public hearings, perhaps later this month.

Condon is director of the National Bureau of Standards. Some of its work is on military secrets. Condon also had a part in developing the atom bomb.

An Un-American Activities Subcommittee accused him in a formal report of having knowingly or unknowingly associated with suspected Russian spies. It said he was one of the weakest links in atomic security.

Condon has been cleared by a Commerce Department loyalty board. He said he would welcome hearings because he is absolutely reliable and that atomic secrets are safe with him. Fellow scientists have rallied to him.

The same subcommittee which issued the report on Condon now is questioning witnesses behind locked doors to lay the groundwork for the open hearings. A member who did not want his name used told a reporter it is firing questions at atomic authorities and various other persons who may have information on Condon.

It looks as if one document the committee wants for the hearings won't be available. That is a loyalty report on Condon which the FBI made to the Commerce Department.

The House even adopted a resolution directing that it be handed over. It got nowhere, on instructions from President Truman. He has ordered all Government agencies to keep loyalty files on employes strictly confidential.

"I am an American" Day

FROM AN EDITORIAL BY

William Randolph Hearst

PUBLISHED IN THE NEW YORK AMERICAN, FEBRUARY 24, 1935

Our fathers founded in this promised land a nation built on the eternal but newly recognized principles of liberty, equality and opportunity.

We have proved the fundamental value and validity of these principles by becoming, under them, in one short century, the greatest, the happiest, the richest, the most progressive, the most powerful, the most prosperous nation in the world.

We have had, and are having, some ups and downs, some variations in our development, but they are variations of progress; they are variations of prosperity; they are varying degrees of greatness and happiness.

We have never reverted to tyranny.

We have never relapsed to misery.

We have never starved by the millions.

We have never been murdered as part of a political program.

We have never hated and harried each other in bitter class divisions and distinctions.

We have never lost our upstanding American manhood.

We have never sacrificed our liberties, our right to breathe the wholesome, healthful, invigorating, inspiring air of freedom as free men.

We have never abandoned our national independence . . .

Let us press forward in peaceful progress to the further attainment of these ideals and objectives the founders of this nation hoped to achieve.

Let us be loyal to our own country and our own principles.

Let us keep the faith of our fathers.

Senator Freed On $100 Bond in Alabama Case

Birmingham, Ala., May 2 (U.P.).—Senator Glen H. Taylor, third party vice presidential candidate, left Birmingham today with a promise to return on Tuesday to fight the city's race segregation law to the United States Supreme Court.

The Idaho Democrat left by commercial plane in midafternoon, less than 24 hours after being arrested and booked on a disorderly conduct charge.

Taylor charged that he was roughed up by police who arrested him for trying to enter a Negro youth meeting through a door marked "Negroes." Police claimed he had framed the whole thing to get publicity.

Taylor was freed under $100 bond after being fingerprinted, and his trial was set for Tuesday night in Recorder's Court.

"The local segregation ordinance," Taylor said, "is unconstitutional and we are prepared to carry this fight to the United States Supreme Court."

City Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, however, pointed out that Taylor was not charged with specific violation of the segregation ordinance. His alleged disorderly conduct might be pinned on his insistence on entering the entrance for Negroes after a policeman had warned him not to.

However, four other persons had been arrested for violations of the ordinance earlier Saturday. They included Dr. James Dombrowski of New Orleans, executive director of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

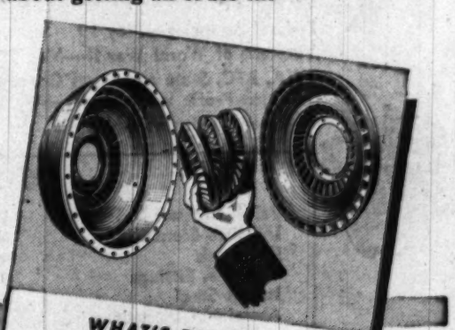
Looked at and looked up to

This is the one, of course, that you spot at a glance.
This is the one that sends a string of facts racing through your mind – if you know automobiles–the instant you see the name ROADMASTER spelled out on its fender.
Up to one hundred and fifty Fireball horsepower. Eighteen feet big – and spring-colt lively.
Gorgeously finished. Coil-spring cradled on all four wheels. Shod with oversize tires that take extra low pressures for added comfort.
Convenient too – with push-button controls not only for the top, but for door windows and the front-seat adjustment as well.
This, too, is the only passenger car in this country where the power plant does what gears used to do.
Here's the one place you'll find Dynaflow Drive,* in which liquid replaces not only the clutch and manually operated low, second and high, but mechanical gear-changers as well.
In short – here's liquid ease and smoothness in delightful new degree, through a sort of "magic muscle" that lets you forget about gear-changing practically entirely.
No wonder, then, this car is looked up to.
Looked up to for impressive appearance – looked up to for superlative ability.
Looked up to for what's newest in engineering advances.
If your standards call for a real performer – and for quality a cut above the ordinarily good – specify ROADMASTER when you see your dealer (with or without a car to trade) about getting an order in.
When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them


WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT DYNAFLOW DRIVE*?
To an efficient new pump (left above), Buick engineers have added a true turbine (right) and an ingenious new supercharging assembly (in hand) which produces a torque-boosting action in starting and accelerating. The result is the first device on any American passenger car which employs liquid to fill the function of both the clutch and the usual low, second and high gears. The clutch pedal is eliminated and a simple control gives you manual selection of power ranges and direction.
*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.
BUICK alone has all these features
★ DYNAFLOW DRIVE (Optional, Roadmaster Series) ★ TAPER-THRU STYLING (Super and Roadmaster) ★ VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE
★ HI-POISED FIREBALL POWER ★ SAFETY-RIDE RIMS ★ QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING ★ FLEX-FIT OIL RINGS ★ ROAD-RITE BALANCE

Democrats Pick Delegates In Fairfax

Fairfax County Democrats will name delegates to the May 10 county convention Monday at local conventions in each of the county's six magisterial districts.

Election will take place in precinct caucuses. Delegates have been allotted in the ratio of 1 for every 25 votes cast for the Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1945.

Actually, there will be contests in only two precincts, Annandale and Vienna. These are the only two of the 26 where more candidates have filed than there are delegates allotted. Votes may be cast only for the 47 candidates who filed with the county Democratic chairman by April 26.

Conventions will be held at 8 p. m. (EST) at the following places: Centerville, Clifton School; Dranesville, Herndon Municipal Building; Falls Church, Bailey's Crossroads Fire House; Lee, Burke School; Mount Vernon, Groveton School; Providence, Oakton School.

List of candidates follows, with the number of delegates allotted to their precinct:

Centerville (1), John J. McLaughlin; Clifton (2), John W. Ferguson and James Buckley; Herndon (4), Robert C. Lowe and Guy R. McGlincy; Thompson's (1), Maurice W. Fox; Thorton's (1) Jean S. White.

Annandale (4), Edward K. Uhler, John C. Webb, Edwin Lynch, Omar L. Hirst and Eleanor K. Morrow; Falls Church (10), John A. K. Donovan, Mandley T. Rust, Keith Price, Carolyn J. Newcomb, O. Kenneth Byerly, jr., Frances C. Strauss, C. B. Runyon, Anne A. Wilkins, John E. Taylor and John Koons; West End (4), J. W. Biggers, jr., C. N. Cockrell, Frad A. Moss.

Burke (2), Elma D. Brown; Groveton (new precinct), Andrew W. Clarke, George C. Landrith, W. F. P. Reid; Pulman's (2), Arthur I. Shaffer; Fairfax Courthouse (6), Hugh B. Marsh, Robert J. Mc Candlish, jr., L. M. Coy er, Langley (7), James Byrnes, Franklin S. Gicker, jr., Alfred W. Trueax, Paul Lee Gibson, John G. Turnbull, William Sweeney; The Lick (3), Lytton H. T. Finley; Vienna (6), Eula J. O'Sullivan, Jean Dunn Freeman, Charles E. Babcock, Jesse J. Ramey, Hubert J. Gerken, W. Alvord Sherman, Walter J. Dowling.

Senate Faces Fight on Oleo Tax Repeal

By The Associated Press

Senators, anxious to avoid repeating the bitter oleo battle staged in the House, face trouble all the same on the bill to repeal Federal margarine taxes.

The first round in the Senate may come when Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), the presiding officer, decides to send the tax repealer to either the Senate Finance or Agriculture Committees.

"There will be a fight no matter what the decision is," Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting Republican leader, told a reporter yesterday.

Senators Fulbright (D., Ark.), Maybank (D., S. C.) and others anxious to free oleomargarine from Federal taxes want the repealer to go to the Senate Finance Committee which normally handles tax measures. But Senators Aiken (R., Vt.) and Young (R., N. Dak.), who are from butter-producing States, insist that the Agriculture Committee get the bill.

The House finally voted 260 to 106 last week to knock out the taxes. It beat down a long series of amendments that would required special packages or shapes for margarine.

The House repealer would cut off about seven million dollars a year in Federal taxes which revenue officials say probably cost more than that to collect.

Langley Day Air Show To Be Held Sunday

Twelfth annual Langley Day Air Show of the Washington Air Derby Association, Inc., will be held next Sunday at Washington-Virginia Airport, Baileys Cross Roads, Fairfax County, Va., on Route 7.

Events will get under way at 1 p. m., with local pilots demonstrating the safety and practicability of private flying. Stunts in trick aircraft, parachute jumps and airplane-automobile acts will be featured.

Production Mark Set By French Industry

Paris, May 2 (NYHT).—French industry set new recovery records during March, boosting iron and automobile production to better than prewar levels for the first time since the liberation, an economic survey showed today.

The March raw steel output was 625,000 tons, or 7,500,000 tons for 12 months.

The March production figure was 120 in relation to the 1938 index of 100, an advance of 11 per cent over February.

CHRYSLER WORKERS
NEED A WAGE INCREASE—CHRYSLER CAN PAY IT—AND CUT CAR PRICES, TOO

Here's Proof:

THE CORPORATION'S PROFITS

1. CHRYSLER PROFITS: Profits of the Chrysler Corporation in 1947 were—(fasten your seat belt)—50% higher than the average for all corporations in the highly profitable automobile industry.

2. CHRYSLER PROFITS: Profits of the Chrysler Corporation in 1947, after taxes, came to 25.6% on its investment. The industry average was 17%.

3. CHRYSLER PROFITS: Profits of the Chrysler Corporation in 1947 were so great that each Chrysler worker produced 68 cents in profit for the Corporation every hour he worked.

4. CHRYSLER PROFITS: Profits of the Chrysler Corporation in 1947 were so great that it could have cut retail prices $145 on every car it produced last year and still have made 8% on its investment.

5. CHRYSLER PROFITS: Profits of the Chrysler Corporation in 1947 prove that the Corporation can grant every Chrysler worker a 30-cents-per-hour wage increase and still make 14¼% on its investment, after taxes. It can cut prices, grant the wage increase and still make a good 6% to 8% on investment.

THE WORKERS' NEEDS

1. THE CHRYSLER WORKERS: The Chrysler workers, like other American workers, have taken the rap for the reactionary crime of destroying price controls in the summer of 1946. Since that time, profits after taxes have gone up 57%—but wages and salaries have gone up only 18%. Profits rose over 3 times as fast as the income of the workers. Industry wanted the profits of inflation—and got them.

2. THE CHRYSLER WORKERS: The family of the average Chrysler worker must live on an income of $13 below the minimum weekly income fixed by the U. S. Bureau of Budget for a city worker's family of four.

3. THE CHRYSLER WORKERS: The average auto worker's earnings rose 12% between June, 1946 and January, 1948—but the cost of living went up 27%.

4. THE CHRYSLER WORKERS: The Chrysler worker's family could afford less than 90% of the food, clothing and other necessities which the breadwinner's paycheck could buy in the month price controls were destroyed (June, 1946).

5. THE CHRYSLER WORKERS: The Chrysler workers, through their union, repeatedly called on Congress and Big Business to roll back prices, and made it clear that they would prefer a price roll-back to a wage increase. Both Congress and industry ignored that call. Since prices were not rolled back, and since they will continue to rise, a wage increase is necessary. The Chrysler workers refuse to take the rap for the reactionary crime of inflation.

CHRYSLER'S OWN FIGURES PROVE UAW CASE

Here, from Chrysler's own 1947 annual report, are the figures that prove that the Chrysler Corporation can pay the wage increase asked by Chrysler workers and still make extravagant profits.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Fact 1 | Chrysler's payroll last year, including President K. T. Keller's salary, was | $259,148,583 |
| Fact 2 | Our 30c demand, with equivalent percentage increases for white collar workers, amounts to 21.1% of the total payroll, or | 54,680,351 |
| Fact 3 | Chrysler's 1947 profits before taxes amounted to | 123,657,346* |
| Fact 4 (Fact 3 minus Fact 2) | After a 21.1% payroll increase to Chrysler workers, Chrysler's profits before taxes would still be | 68,966,995 |
| Fact 5 | Income taxes would then take | 28,614,406 |
| Fact 6 (Fact 4 minus Fact 5) | Leaving profits after taxes of | 40,352,589 |
| Fact 7 | Stockholders' total investment in the corporation at the beginning of 1947 was | 282,912,028 |
| Fact 8 (Fact 6 as a percentage of Fact 7) | Chrysler's rate of profit, after a 21.1% wage and salary increase and after taxes, would be | 14¼% |

*This profit figure includes $5,166,126 charged by the Corporation for extraordinary depreciation. This deduction is inconsistent with the Corporation's past policy and probably will not be recognized by the U. S. Treasury for tax purposes.

Chrysler figured its tax payments at 41.49% of its profits before taxes. We used the same percentage.

THE A, B, C, OF THE CHRYSLER WORKERS' WAGE DEMANDS

A—THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION CAN INCREASE WAGES WITHOUT RAISING PRICES
B—THE CHRYSLER WORKERS NEED THIS WAGE INCREASE TO RECOVER LOST GROUND AND MAKE A LITTLE PROGRESS
C—THE ISSUE CAN BE SETTLED PEACEFULLY . . . ON THE BASIS OF THE FACTS

WILL THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION HEED THE FACTS?

Alexander's 271 Wins Open; Locke 6 Strokes Back

This Morning

Of Many Things:

THE 74TH RUNNING of the Kentucky Derby must go down in history as one of the most un-thrilling Derbies of the lot despite the tumultuous setting and post-race acclaim for Citation. Citation took the lead at his pleasure and won by a fur piece and the horse race with Coaltown didn't even develop. Even Clem McCarthy didn't get excited.

POVICH

The betting failed to reach $700,000 and was off more than a half-million from last year's Derby wagering. But the betting was notable for the fact that one of the biggest wagers was cashed poshhumously by Al Snyder the deceased Calumet rider, who had nearly $10,000 going for him if Citation or Coaltown won. Warren Wright matched the donation of Eddie Arcaro to the Widow Snyder and her child.

It didn't come to a minus pool, with the Calumet entry paying forty cents on the dollar, but it could be a minus pool in the Preakness this week end, if both Citation and Coaltown carry the Calumet colors. The Preakness distance, a sixteenth shorter, is in Coaltown's favor but with Citation now aiming for the triple crown and those big stud fees, the stable will be rooting for its Derby winner.

INCIDENTLY, I AM INTRIGUED by that de luxe $1400 televison set ordered by the District boxing commission for installation in the commission office. At first, I thought the taxpayers had a beef, but that is all explained nicely my Commissioner Henry, -er-Frank,-er, beg pardon—Thomas Borgan who says they can better observe the fighters who apply for licenses here. "It's all educational," he says. "I'm in favor of educated boxing commissioners."

Skip Alexander's 66 in the National Capital Open the other day after being in trouble all the way was something for the duffers to contemplate. Trouble for a duffer means a 95, you know. But Alexander explained it nicely with the comment, "I was getting into trouble easily and getting out of it easily."

Specs Hamilton, the former PGA man, who has been following the big tournaments for 20 years, has his own explanation for Bobby Locke's wondrous putting. "Locke is so steady on the greens because he's rarely in trouble off the greens, and doesn't have to sweat the hole out before he starts putting."

BING CROSBY, who reached dizzy heights on screen and radio, still likes to keep his feet on the ground. He won't fly, and the other day when he made his hotel reservations for the Celebrities Golf Tournament at the Columbia Country Club on May 16, he advised the Statler Hotel, "nothing above the fourth floor, please."

Carl Scheib, the Athletics' young right-hander with two wins over the Nats in two starts this season, has been in the majors six years despite the fact he just reached voting age this season. The A's signed him from the sandlots of Gratz, Pa., as a 15-year-old, on the tip of the grocery woman for whom he clerked. Isn't that cute?

A lot can happen in 48 hours, but Dutch Leonard is probably asking why they have to happen to him. On Saturday morning he was dreaming of a big season for the Phillies with two nice wins in his first two starts. That night, Brooklyn knocked him out in the first and you can say that all over again without being redundant, because yesterday Leonard tried it again and didn't last out the first inning.

There was some wonderment just before the season started when Connie Mack sold his good relief pitcher, Russ Christopher, to Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians. And now it is learned that the sale came as a surprise to Connie Mack, himself. "I had no idea of selling a pitcher to Veeck but he talked me out of Christopher," said Connie curiously.

Irving Bridgers Wins Title as 'Mr. Washington'

"Mr. Washington of 1948" is Irving (Soupy) Bridgers, Ambassador Club diver who holds the Junior National and D. C. lowboard championships.

A committee of experts on masculine beauty settled the issue last night at the Jewish Community Center. It was the highlight of the annual D. C. weight-lifting championships.

Frank Metzler, runner-up for the title, inspired almost as many whitsles as the winner from the dominantly feminine crowd of more than 600.

Weight-lifting crowns went to Bill Kidwell (132 pounds), Tony Cardinale (148 pounds), Joe Blaine (165 pounds), Sam Marshall (181 pounds) and Roger Johnston (heavyweight). All represented the YMCA. Cardinale and Marshall were the only defending champions to win.

Waivers Asked On Lavagetto

Philadelphia, May 2 (AP).—Waivers have been asked by the Brooklyn Dodgers on Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, 1947, World Series hero, so the 34-year-old third baseman can get his unconditional release.

Lavagetto returned to Brooklyn tonight, club officials reported. On Tuesday, when waivers expire, he will be free to dicker with other major league clubs.

Navy Dinghy Sixth In Providence Race

Providence, R. I., May 2 (AP).—Dinghy sailors from the Brown University Yacht Club retained the George Owen trophy today by defeating nine other college clubs in the annual intercollegiate regatta.

Brown ended the two-day series with 194 points while Yale was runner-up with 167. Other scores were MIT, third 158; Harvard, fourth 140½; Coast Guard, fifth 139; Navy, sixth 130; Army, seventh 99½; Princeton, eighth 91; Pennsylvania, ninth 84 and Dartmouth, 10 with 81.

Riordan's No-Hitter Beats Holy Trinity

Ray Riordan pitched a no-hitter as his St. Anne's team routed Holy Trinity, 25-0, in a CYO Junior Baseball League contest yesterday at Hearst.

Riordan struck out 14 men. In other games, Our Lady of Lourdes defeated Georgetown Prep, 4-2; St. Jerome's downed St. Martin's, 5-3, and St. Frances de Sales beat Campus School, 9-2.

Ted Homers, Drives In 5 Runs; Yanks Beaten, 7-1

Boston, May 2. (AP).—Ted Williams knocked in five runs with a two-on homer and a triple while the Boston Red Sox were defeating the New York Yankees, 7-1, for the odd win in a 3-game series today before an overflow crowd of 34,095.

Junior Stephens homered off relief pitcher Joe Page after Williams cleared the sacks in the eighth inning with his fourth circuit drive of the season.

Tom Henrich, Yankee right fielder had to leave the game in the sixth with a pulled muscle in his left hip. He limped off the field, and appeared unlikely to play in the series with the Browns starting Tuesday.

Williams also sparkled afield and limited the Yankees' scoring by playing rebounds on drives against his left field wall by Joe DiMaggio and Bill Johnson with uncanny skill. He held both to singles with rifle-like throws in the fourth inning.

DiMaggio managed to counter in that frame as George McQuinn forced Johnson. From then on, Dobson coasted along easily until Yogi Berra lashed him for a harmless triple with two out in the eighth.

Williams set up Joe Dobson's first win in three starts by belting starter Karl Drews for a deep center three-bagger after Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky both reached base with none out in the first.

Middlecoff, Al Houghton 'Soak' Ball

CARY MIDDLECOFF, the Memphis dentist turned pro, and Al Houghton, Prince Georges professional, literally got their feet wet in yesterday's final round of the National Capital Open.

Middlecoff smacked his second shot into a stream guarding the fifth green. Rather than take the penalty shot, Middlecoff took off his shoes and socks and tried to play the ball out of the water. His club hit a rock and before Middlecoff holed out he had used up seven strokes.

Houghton ran into the same trouble earlier and got out of it less expensively than Middlecoff. Houghton got his par, but also had to skidoo to the clubhouse for a quick change as his flashy-covered trousers and shirt were spattered with mud and water.

"GREATEST COURSE in the world and those four rough greens some of the boys complained about are beauts," said Skip Alexander after he had annexed the championship yesterday. "How can I complain about this course when I've never scored higher than 69 in my life?"

WHAT A DIFFERENCE a year has made to Lew Worsham. Washington's U. S. Open champion climaxed his poor play yesterday with a 71 for a final count of 292, 19 strokes off his pace last year. It netted him nothing . . . Lloyd Mangrum had 287, good for $400, but 18 strokes higher than last year when he won and $2000 less money . . . Jimmy Thomson, Al Smith, Johnny Palmer, Johnny Bulla, George Fazio and Skip Alexander used the tournament to qualify for the National PGA championships this month in St. Louis. Originally, the 25 low scorers qualified for the pros' big show, but when all the exempted players were deducted it was found that only those seven had made it

Tigers Beat Indians Again

Cleveland, May 2 (AP).—Freddie Hutchinson's thre-hit pitching and an eight-hit attack on Bob Lemon today gave the Detroit Tigers their second straight victory over the Cleveland Indians, 4-2.

Hoot Evers rapped a homer for Detroit, while Manager Lou Boudreau and Lemon hit circuit clouts for Cleveland before 57,450 fans.

Lemon also rapped a single to account for two of the first-place Indians' three safeties as Hutchinson hurled brilliantly for his initial triumph of the season. The Detroit right-hander had perfect control, walking none and fanning four as ahe faced but 30 hitters.

Evers' home run over the left field fence in the fourth inning snapped a 2-2 deadlock and proved to be the winning marker.

Hutchinson provided an "insurance" tally in the eighth when he beat out a bunt down the third base line.

The speedy pitcher continued on to third base on the play when Lemon threw wild into right field and Larry Doby bobbled the rebound for a pair of errors. Eddie Mayo's long fly then plated the unearned marker.

It was the second successive loss for Cleveland after the club surged into first place with six straight victories.

Mize's Homer Paces Giants' 5-1 Triumph

New York, May 2 (AP).—Johnny Mize's third home run of the season highlighted a four-run sixth inning today to give the New York Giants a 5-1 victory over the Boston Braves.

A crowd of 39,794 saw Right-hander Larry Jansen spin a five-hitter for his second victory of the season and his seventh over Boston in two years.

Jeff Heath spoiled Jansen's shutout bid when he poked his second homer of the season into the lower right-field stands in the second inning.

The Giants tied the score at 1-1 in the bottom half of the third when errors by Al Dark and Earl Torgesen surrounded a single by Bill Rigney. The New Yorkers knocked starter Red Barrett out in the sixth to clinch their only triumph in their three-game set with the Braves.

Sid Gordon opened the rally with a single and crossed the plate ahead of Mize's blast into the lower right field stands. Willard Marshall followed with a triple and scored on Walker Cooper's double. Jack Lohrke singled Cooper home.

Skip Closes Out With 68; Hogan Posts 280 for 3d

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Skip Alexander, who was tied with Bobby Locke for the lead Saturday, finished two hours and six strokes ahead of the South African yesterday to win the $14,000 National Capital Open Golf Tournament at Prince Georges.

Out to conquer the golfing world, Alexander breezed around his final 18 holes in 68 for a 72-hole score of 271, 17 under par.

Co-leader with Locke after 54 holes with 203, the 29-year-old former Duke golf captain had nines of 34-34 to add $2200 to his treasury. His score was one stroke better than his performance here last year when he finished in a tie for second place with Porky Oliver.

| ALEXANDER'S CARD | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Par out | 444 | 534 | 444 | —36 |
| Alexander | 344 | 534 | 443 | —34 |
| Par in | 544 | 434 | 534 | —36 |
| Alexander | 445 | 434 | 435 | —34—68—202—271 |

While Alexander continued his consistently brilliant performance, Locke suddenly lost his touch, much to the dismay of the 6000 galleryites who came out to see an expected dog fight between him and Alexander for the top prize.

Caught in the afternoon downpour, Locke came in in the dusk, drenched and in second place with 74—277, to win second money, $1600.

Beeline Ben Hogan, who trailed Locke and Alexander by three strokes before yesterday's pay-off trip around the 680-yard course, had his worst round of the tournament, 74, to finish third with 280. His feelings were softened, however, by a $1100 check, his share of the prize money.

The 220-pound Alexander, who actually lived on a golf course for many years in Durham, N. C., has certainly made himself at home for the two Capital Open tournaments.

His 68 yesterday was the eighth consecutive sub-par round he has scored on the County links and not once has he needed more than 69 strokes.

Skip in Trouble Only Once

For 144 holes in two tournaments he is 33 under par, and if that isn't a record of some sort it should be.

Playing with Jimmy Demaret, whose 281 brought him fourth place and $900, and Carry Middlecoff, Alexander rammed in a three-footer for a birdie three on the first hole. That gave him a one-stroke lead to which he added five more strokes as the faltering Locke fell inextricably behind.

The long-driving Alexander not only powdered the ball down the fairways straight and true, but also shone on the greens. He had nine one-putters, including a 40-footer on the ninth and a tricky four-footer on the eighteenth.

He was in trouble only once on the first nine, on the 485-yard fifth hole, where he hit his second shot into the woods, 50 feet from the green. His out was poor, but he got down in two strokes for his par. He finished the round in 34, two birdies and seven pars.

On the incoming side, he took a bogey 5 on the 439-yard twelfth when he overshot the green with his second, but he more than made

Nats Lose First, 4-3; 2d Called

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats won their fifth straight defeat yesterday with a witless piece of base running in the ninth and an abysmal failure to nudge the tying run home from third with none out.

Before they took a 4-3 beating from the Athletics before 20,737 customers, the Washington athletes raised a lot of false hopes, including their own, by getting the tying and winning runs on base.

They didn't lose the second game of the scheduled double-header because a timely rain washed out the Athletics' 3-1 lead in the second inning.

Facing a two-run deficit in the ninth, the Nats got a quick run and knocked Joe Coleman out of the box before he could get anybody out. Mark Christman led off with a double to center that Sam Chapman couldn't hold. Jake Early drew a walk and Coleman aggravated his own troubles with a balk that advanced them to second and third.

Screwy Bounce Helps

Pinchhitter Tom McBride banged a single through Coleman's legs to score Christman, but the A's got a break on that hit. The ball caromed off second base into the glove of Pete Suder, thus forcing Al Kozar, running for Early, to hold up at third.

And then the situation deteriorated rapidly for the Nats after Charlie Harris, stringy rookie right-hander, moved in to pitch for the A's.

Eddie Yost grounded to Suder with the A's infield playing close, and for reasons unknown, with none out, Kozar tried to score from third. He was cut down at the plate by Suder's throw and the tension eased for the A's.

Barney McCosky helped Harris over the big hump a minute later. He raced far into the left field corner for a one-handed grab of Sullivan's long drive for the second out. With nobody in scoring position when Gil Coan grounded to Suder the Nats were a gone gang.

Slight Oversight

They outhit the A's, 10-to-7, if that's important. Mickey Haefner went seven innings but was the victim of a sorry error by Mark Christman who neglected to cover first on a bunt in the opening inning to pave the way for an earned run. Joost led off with a walk, and all hands were safe when McCosky bunted to Haefner who found first base uncovered. Joost reached third on Haefner's throw to the unprotected bag, and scored on Majeski's infield single.

The Nats tied the score briefly at

Quantico Team Wins Golf Match

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Quantico piled up 57½ points to win the first match of the North Virginia Golf League round-robin tournament yesterday on the Quantico Marine Officers' course.

Second was Washington Golf and Country Club, with 31½ points, followed by Fredericksburg, Va., 29½ and Belle Haven, 25½.

Playing in heavy rain and high winds, the contestants had trouble keeping their scores down. Washington's George McCabe, shot a 75, however, to take low medal honors with Quantico's Capt. T. Leu a stroke behind with 76.

Leu and Col. J. L. Smith of the Marines were the only players to collect nine points.

Most spectacular achievement, was Wally Sezna's eagle three on the 595-yard second hole. Sezna, a member of the Belle Haven team, reached the green with two mighty shots and dropped a long putt for his eagle.

H. S. DANIELS shot an 81, 12—69 to win the low net prize at yesterday's breakfast club tournament at Congressional Country Club. Low gross award went to Billy Shea with a 72. Second low net was W. H. Leslie's 86—15—71, while M. P. Nolan had the second low gross score of 81. In the best-ball foursomes, George Hume, Dr. W. J. Evans, H. S. Daniels and Dr. M J. Kelley were deadlocked with Eddie Warner, B. L. Eberts, E. J. Hillock and R. A. Colgin. Both foursomes shot 65s.

PAUL SOUTHWELL, playing at Army-Navy with G. H. Krieger and W. W. Roberts, wagered his companions that he could birdie any hole he named before playing it. Krieger and Roberts said that they could do the same thing. The three men came to the eighteenth and Southwell predicted a birdie. Then he dropped a 5-foot putt for a birdie deuce. Krieger then sank a 40-footer for another birdie deuce. But Roberts failed to do what his friends accomplished and lost his part of the unique bet . . .

JOHNNY KRAFT won the kickers' tournament at Argyle with a net 71 and C. T. Maddern, E. C. Ingles and Len Burrage tied for second with 78s. Third prize was split among F. R. Mueller, Ray Stackhouse, R. E. Foley and J. P. Haltigan, all of whom scored 80s . . . C. R. Helmick made the first hole-in-one in Argyle's history when he dropped a five-iron shot on the par-three 170-yard third hole. Helmick was playing in a three-some with Colin Whittaker and W. J. Fisher. . .

INDIAN SPRING'S "throw-out" tournament in which the players could use pars on their three worst holes was won by Alan B. Mills with a 67. Second went to Harry E. Gerschenson with 69 and Sol Amanuel was next with 71 . . . Manor's 18-hole medal play handicap tournament was captured by A. M. Pickett, who shot an 82—13—69. Second was Earl McAleer, 73—3—70, and Tom Corwin came in with 80—9—71.

AT WOODMONT, Herman Neugass won the Class A sweepstakes with a 77—9—68, a stroke ahead of Howard Nordlinger's 72—3—69 and Cabot Feldman's 76—7—69. In Class B, Al Cohen shot 81—12—69 for first place and second was split between Bob Cramer, 85—14—71 and Lou Miller, 86—15—71. Dr. H. F. Bernstein was third with 84—12—72. M. C. Shapiro won Class C honors with a 92—25—25—67 and William Kopiowitz was second with 100—26—74.

FRED HALLAGAN and Tom Pickett took the best ball two-some tourney at Army-Navy with a 33—38—71. Pickett also teamed with W. S. Whitehead to tie for second place with L. W. Johnson and A. Cooley. Both pairs had 36—37—73 totals. Fourth place went to S. G. Smith and P. P. Clifford who had 35, 39—74 totals.

MORE THAN 150 entries for the Don Chamberlin Trophy play at Kenwood were disappointed when heavy rains forced a cancellation of yesterdays play. The match against par tournament will open next Sunday . . . The Treasurer's Cup Tournament at Chevy Chase started yesterday and the first round will continue through Saturday. May 23 is the date set for the final round.

Mel Queen Victor Over Blackwell

Pittsburgh, May 2 (AP).—Ralph Kiner found the home run range at Forbes Field today to pace his first place Pirate teammates to a 6 to 4 win over the Cincinnati Reds in the rain-soaked opener of a scheduled double-header.

The first game was played in a steady drizzle of rain and the second tilt was called off when the spring shower showed no signs of abating.

A damp crowd of 35,779 saw Kiner, who tied with Johnny Mize for National League home run honors last year with 51, smash out his second and third homers of the season to drive in four Bucco runs.

In winning, the Pirates finally solved the pitching slants of Ewell Blackwell who had defeated the Bucs twice this year and took every decision from them last season.

Grady Hatton hit a round tripper for the Reds with one man on in the third inning. Mel Queen was credited for the Pittsburgh win although he was relieved by Vic Lomoardi in the sixth.

A. A. U. Track Set Tuesday

The annual District of Columbia Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships at University of Maryland Tuesday evening provide an unusual array of entries.

While varsity men from Maryland, Georgetown, Howard, Catholic, American and George Washington Universities make up the bulk of the field, they'll be pestered in many events by entries from Quantico Marine Base, Cardozo High School, Georgetown A. C., Bison A. C. and Georgetown freshmen.

Bison A. C. consists of Howard students unable to represent the school in athletics because they are enrolled in the school of professions there. Georgetown A. C. consists of Georgetown students, ineligible, scholastically or otherwise, to compete with the Hoya teams.

The meet starts at 5 p. m. and will continue under the lights. It is being billed as an Olympic "trial" though winners do not necessarily qualify for the U. S. Olympic team.

Bums Trade With Phils, 9-6 and 0-2

Philadelphia, May 2 (AP). — Ken Heintzelman pitched a four-hit 2-0 win over the Brooklyn Dodgers today after the Philadelphia Phillies lost the first game of a twin bill, 9-6, before a crowd of 37,861.

The Phillies' hurler pitched no-hit ball for 6 2/3 innings before Brooklyn Centerfielder Carl Furillo got the first hit.

In the first game, Rookie Outfielder Ed Snider of Brooklyn pounded out two homers, a triple and a single while his teammate.

Hoyas Happy Flynn, Moskall Shuffled Off From Buffalo

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown is happy about the shuffle from Buffalo that brought it Pitcher Tommy Flynn and Catcher Johnny Moskal.

The up-state New York battery has played a large part in helping the Hoyas fashion the most impressive college baseball record around these parts. In 17 starts, Joe Judge's boys have lost only three and tied one.

Flynn, filling a pitching gap caused by injury to last year's ace, Billy Carroll, has won six of the games and lost only one. He had five straight before Penn State beat him.

Peppery Moskal has failed to hit in only two games and boasts a healthy .360 average.

The boys played together at Canisius High and both had the distinction of being chosen to represent the Buffalo area in all-star games.

Moskal, who was sporting a .550 average at the time, was named the best American Legion player and was a member of Esquire's All-East team at the Polo Grounds.

Flynn, 19-year-old 170-pound right-hander, was unbeaten in 13 high school starts and played on the "World" team in that "Brooklyn-against-the-world" series at Ebbetts Field in 1946.

Tommy holds decisions over Quantico Marines, Dartmouth, Fordham, Washington and Lee and beat Maryland twice. He also went all the way in the 4-4 tie with George Washington.

Moskal has hopes of following a professional baseball career. Only thing that may stop the Polish lad is his size. Although he weighs 160, he's only 5 feet 6½ inches. Johnny goes a long way toward making up in hustle what he lacks in stature.

Flynn, a pre-med student, is more interested in medicine.

Hoya Blues Whip Grays

The Blues did all the scoring, but the Grays showed flashes of brilliance yesterday as Georgetown University wound up its spring football drills with a muddy but exciting intrasquad game at the Hilltop.

Final score was 20-0 favoring the Blues, last year's lettermen. They opened the scoring in the first period after Tommy Graham intercepted Billy Conn's pass and ran it to the 13, Tony Beyer plunged to the 4 and Babe Baranowski plowed over.

In the second period, Lou Surman's pass to Al Sarashevitz went for 35 yards and another touchdown, and in the fourth Johnny Kivus plunged over from 2 yards out after a series of line plays from midfield.

George Banigni had two successful extra-point placements in three attempts.

Head Coach Jack Hagerty expressed satisfaction with the '48 Hoyas, but said a lot of work must be done. He was particularly pleased with the passing of Bob Barry, who, along with Chuck Mehmel, comes from the same Chicago high school as Baranowski.

Conn got off runs of 20 and 15 yards for the Grays before he was removed with a knee injury at the end of the first period and Dick Barba, his halfback running mate, went on jaunts of 15 and 12 yards for the losers.

Alexander Wins Open With 271

up for that with a birdie 4 on No. 10 and a birdie 3 on the last hole.

Although he had four strokes on Locke, who had 38 on the first nine, Alexander said he didn't feel safe about his victory until the thirteenth hole.

There he hooked his tee shot into the woods, overdrove the green into the woods behind the green on his second, but chipped up to within 18 inches and holed out for a par four.

"That chip was my best shot," the slow-talking, transplanted Philadelphian said after the tournament. "I thought if I could get by with a par three I had the money in the bag."

Locke Finishes in Rain

Locke, scrambling all day, lost his mastery on the greens, too. He was missing six-footers, easy meat for him normally, with disappointing consistency. On the eighteenth he accomplished a rarity—for Locke—three-putting from 25 feet. He played the last seven holes in a hard rain.

If luck had been with him early, Hogan could have posed a serious threat to Alexander. He missed birdie putts on the first two holes by less than an inch.

Probably resigned to the fate that this wasn't his tournament, Hogan got careless.

He knocked his second shot out of bounds on No. 5 and was lucky to finish the side in 37, one over par. He duplicated his performance on the incoming nine for his 74.

National Amateur Champion Skee Riegel of Upper Darby, Pa., led the simon-pures with 287, two strokes lower than Washington's Ralph Bogart.

Two Potomac Horses Win

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Potomac Riding Academy entries dominated the first member show of the Washington Bridle Trails Association yesterday at Equitation Field, in Rock Creek Park.

Dutchess, of Potomac Academy, amassed a total of eight points, winning the jumper class and placing in the hack event to lead for championship honors. In the reserve spot was Potomac's good hack Silver, well ridden by Dorothy R. Smith. Young Elinor Runge was aboard Dutchess.

The privately owned division found Jane Hathen's Modesty, in an owner-rider combination, emerging in top position with 7½ points. Runner-up was Mrs. Robert Watson's good jumper Goldacious, ridden by Stanley Jones, for 5½ points.

PRIVATELY OWNED JUMPERS—1, Jane Hathen's Modesty; 2, Mrs. Robert Watson's Goldacious; 3, A. J. Marzo's Lady Chief; 4, Fred Jackson's Lucky Lady.

RIDING ACADEMY HACKS—1, Silver, ridden by Dorothy Smith; 2, Duches ridden by Elinor Runge; 3, Lucas, ridden by Ruth Kavanagh; 4, Graystone, ridden by W. A. Hunter. (All owned by Potomac Riding School.)

JUNIOR HACKS—1, Joe Smith's Flicka; 2, Duchess; 3, Lucky Lady; 4, Lady Chief.

PAIRS—1, Lucky Lady and Goldacious; 2, Silver and Graystone; 3, Fred and Brownie; 4, Cattie and Lucas.

PRIVATELY OWNED HUNTERS—1 John Cairow's Melissa; 2, Madge Barclay's Monty; 3, Mrs. John P. Jackson's Firefly; 4, Modesty.

TOUCH-AND-OUT—1, Alden Crane's Tarlac; 2, Modesty; 3, Lady Chief; 4, Lucky Lady.

Mr. Taylor Triumphs

Groveton, Va., May 2.—Roger Grove's veteran open jumper, Mr. Taylor, romped off with championship honors yesterday at the Penn-Daw Volunteer Fire Department Show. Viarwood Stable's altitude was in the reserve spot.

Mr. Taylor, a consistent open jumper in this area for many years, won the scurry, knockdown and out, and the modified Olympia, second in the triple bar, and was fourth in the severe Barrien-springer class for his points.

WARM-UP—Won by Avon Shockey's Red Knight; second, Roger R. Groves' Mr. Taylor; third, A. S. Daly's Tiny; fourth, A. R. Howard's Bingo.

WORKING HUNTER—Won by Peyton Ballenger's Brandon King; second, Ballantrae's Stealaway; third, Cloughbane Stable's Jenifer; fourth, Betty Cannon's Golden Belle.

FINE HARNESS—Won by A. L. McDermand's Mercer's Copper King; second, A. L. McDormand's Mr. Bee; third, Percy Ellis' Woodland's Genius.

SCURRY JUMPER—Won by Mr. Taylor; second, Bingo; third, W. V. Viar's Altitude; fourth, W. C. Viar's Sen Satin.

KNOCK-DOWN-AND-OUT—Won by Mr. Taylor; second, Bingo; third, Tiny; fourth, Sen Satin.

FIVE-GAITED SADDLE—Won by Mr. Bee; second, Dr. Masino's The King's General; third, Mercer's Copper King.

Sandlotters Again Try To Open Play

Delayed two days by rain, Washington's five big sandlot leagues are scheduled to open today.

The Washington Post-Industrial League holds sway on the West Ellipse at 5:30 p. m. with the Heurich Brewers facing Naiman's Photos.

Federal Bureau of Investigation faces Naval Gun Factory in the Departmental League's 3:30 opening on the South Ellipse. Silver Hill meets George Washington Post, American Legion in the Recreation Department East League on the East Ellipse at 5:30.

The Recreation North League opens at 5:30 on the North Ellipse with Quarters I meeting Sacred Heart. And in the Recreation Anacostia League, Jet Motors tackles McKee Pontiac at Fairlawn, also at 5:30.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY

Rockville and Colesville moved into a tie for first place tie yesterday as they scored their second wins in two starts.

Woody Putnam socked a homer and double to lead Rockville to a 5-1 decision over Sandy Spring at Sandy Spring. Johnny Bonifant's triple and two singles paced Colesville over Wheaton, 10-3, at Wheaton. In the other league tilt, Potomac dropped Bethesda, 8-2, at Potomac.

FAIRFAX COUNTY LEAGUE

Art Lacey gave up only six hits as he pitched the White Sox to a 5-2 win over Falls Church in the Eastern Senior Division at Falls Church.

Germantown edged Forrestville, 8-7, and Lorton topped Lincolnia, 7-5, in Western Senior Division contests. In the Junior Division, Groveton defeated Vienna, 7-5. All these were Fairfax County League openers.

MONTGOMERY PARK LEAGUE

Dick Price struck out 10 and scattered five hits as his Silver Spring mates nosed out Atchison-Keller, 4-3, at Takoma Recreation Field. Tom Marlowe and Ralph Michlepohn each clubbed a homer for the winners. In the other league opener, Kensington Fire Department beat Veterans of Foreign Wars, 3-1, at Montgomery Blair High.

Jack's Cafe routed Pete's Tavern, 11-2, and Georgetown Vets edged Teehan's Restaurant, 8-7, yesterday in West End Softball League games at Georgetown playground. . . . Jimmy Smith hit a three-run homer as he led McLean Gardens to a 17-3 win over Rockville

Metro Track Meet Top Event on Highs' Schedule

The Sports Reel

Driskill's Stay Short At Oklahoma

Norman, Okla., May 2 (AP).—The University of Oklahoma has lost Walter Driskill—its recently reacquired assistant football coach.

Athletic Director Bud Wilkinson said Driskill, who was lured back from the University of Maryland only two months ago, is leaving to become general manager of the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference.

This is the second time the Sooners have had Driskill leave. He was assistant two years ago under Head Coach Jim Tatum and followed the latter to Maryland.

A successor is already picked—Frank Ivy, standout end on the Oklahoma team from 1937-39.

Schoolboy's 3d No-Hitter

Wilbur, Wash., May 2 (AP).—Dick Aubertin, Wilbur High School baseball pitcher, hurled his third no-hit, no-run game of the season today, blanking Almir, 6 to 0. In the seven-inning game, Aubertin struck out 18 of the 21 batters who faced him. He was effective at bat, too, smacking a two-run homer.

No, Berra Wasn't Catching

New York, May 2 (U.P.).—During the night thieves broke into the Boston Braves' clubhouse at the Polo Grounds and stole nine gloves, eight pairs of shoes, a windbreaker, a bat and five caps, it was learned today.

The New York Giant management loaned the Boston players equipment for today's game.

Lash Plans Comeback

Indianapolis, May 2 (U.P.).—Don Lash, formerly one of the Nation's leading distance runners, said today he was coming out of retirement to battle for a berth on this year's U. S. Olympic team.

Lash, whose long road to cinder fame began at Auburn, Ind., High School, has been out of competition for nearly 10 years.

W-L Favored In Wilson's 2-Day Show

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

On the basis of recent performances, at least seven records are likely to be broken Friday and Saturday in the fifth annual Metropolitan Washington High School Track and Field Meet at Wilson Stadium.

The Wilson-sponsored meet tops this week's schoolboy schedule, which includes 55 baseball games, 8 golf matches, 5 dual tennis matches, 7 track meets and 2 lacrosse games.

Fourteen schools are entered in the Metro meet with Washington-Lee of Arlington, last year's champion, favored.

Others entered are George Washington of Alexandria, Central, McKinley Tech, Anacostia, Roosevelt, Eastern, Wilson, Coolidge, Western, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Montgomery Blair and Maryland Park.

Off form shown in the past three weeks, records should be set in the 100, 220, 880, 120-yard high hurdles, 220 low hurdles, sprint medley relay, mile relay and pole vault.

Bespectacled Forrest Miles, Eastern senior, is expected to lower the mark in the two sprints. At Maryland's invitational last week, he ran the 100 in 9.8 seconds, 2/10 seconds faster than the Metro mark. He covered the 220 in 22.2, which is 5/10 seconds better than the Metro record.

Bobby Jones of G. W., who has set new 880 records in the Metro for two straight years, should do much better than his 2:02 of last May. He ran the distance in 1:57.7 at Maryland.

Harmon Brown of Tech and Elmer Landon of Eastern are the boys to watch in the high and low hurdles, respectively. George Washington's Keith McDonald, Arnold Levinson, Stuart Anderson and Jones have done better than the sprint medley team standard of 3:47.

Wilson and Eastern, tied for first in the Interhigh Baseball League, play in two of the top games of ern Thursday. Eastern invades the week. Wilson is host to West-Central Friday.

In other league games, Coolidge plays at Anacostia and Roosevelt at Tech on Friday.

Derby Notes

Arcaro's Ride Dispels Ugly Whispers

Scandal seekers received a kick in their proverbial pants, and perhaps in their bankrolls, when heady Eddie Arcaro rode Citation to victory.

For days, the boys looking for larceny agnles, pointed to the close friendship between Arcaro and Ben Whitaker, owner of My Request.

It was whispered about that Citation might get an unpretty ride—this was, of course a bad canard—some people even fell for the hooey that Coaltown would win because Citation, alone, was the winter book favorite and would murder big bookies.

Perhaps that had something to do with the rather unexpected $2.80 mutuel on the Calumet cannonballs.

ONE THING IS CERTAIN, play on My Request, that had him favorite at one stage of the betting, averted a minus pool, which would have been the third in a row for Citation, two in Maryland and one here in the Derby Trial.

Saturday's race brought a Derby record that was generally overlooked. When Citation and Coaltown ran one-two they established Bull Lea as the only sire to be represented by the victor and runner-up in the same Louisville classis.

Thus Bull Lea, eighth behind Lawrin in the 1938 running, finds himself outdone by his kids. The "win only" betting resulted in the Derby play being $584,624 under last year's record handle of $1,253,042 when 12 horses startel.

Betting on the other races for the day was only slightly under 1947.

DERBY DAY has produced some fantastic women's hats but Mrs. E. Dale Shafer of Lexington, was declared the all-time champ yesterday when she appeared with a headgear that had a race track motify, including running horses an adds-board—everything on it but a tout.

Jockey Arcaro's father operates a bar at Elranger, Ky. When he opened the place he had pictpres of Eddie's three Derby winners put on the front. "I told him to leave a space for another one and he did."

Eddie likes Citation bue he refuses to say at this time that the colt is the best horse he's ever ridden.

By the way, here's how the jockey money was divided on the Calumet entry: Arcaro, and Pierson, who rode Coaltown, split the 10 per cent of the winnings on both horses 5 and 5 and Owner Warren Wright gave Mrs. Albert Snider another 5 per cent or $4670.

Hydroplane II, the dam of Citation, has a chestnut foal by Whirlaway on the Calumet Farm and was bred back to Bull Lea this spring.

WALTER HAIGHT.

Citation Rated Shoo-In To Take Triple Crown

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Pardon the alliteration, but now that Citation showed without hesitation, that he could whip the Derby conglomeration and become the toast of the Nation, there's the temptation of premature jubilitation.

What I mean is, Citation may not be the greatest colt in our time, it being human weakness to hail the newest champion, but he'll do until another horse comes along to mow him down.

When the mahogany-hued son of Bull Lea went rocketing past Coaltown at the head of the Churchill Downs homestretch and continued skylarking to his Kentucky Derby triumph yesterday, he made it appear the subsequent gems of racing's Triple Crown would be in solitary settings.

Time makes more changes than a baby-sitter but, at this moment, it looks as though any lingering razor edge was removed from Pimlico's Preakness and the Belmont Stakes when Coaltown, Citation's playmate, staggered into second place lengths in advance of the closest of the four other 3-year-olds.

Fortunately there's a two-week interlude, instead of the usual one, before the ancient Maryland Jockey Club runs its $100,000 Preakness on May 15. It's fortunate for Pimlico that is, for by then something resembling a fair-on-paper field may be recruited to face the one-two Calumet brew.

It is likely that Ben Whitaker, the Texan, will send My Request, third yesterday, for a crack at Maryland's mile and three-sixteenth classic. Whitaker said last night, "Might as well run him as keep him in the barn."

Escadru Injured

On this quiet Sabbath—a failing clinker would sound like an atomic bomb here since Coaltown was beaten—it looks if other possible Preakness starters are: C. V. Whitney's Mount Marcy, A. J. Sackett's Gasparilla, Willaim Helis' Salmagundi, Greentree's Kilroy, William L. Brann's Escadru; and S. W. Labrot jr's Bovard.

Grandpere and Billings, of the Derby field, are not Preakness eligibles which is just as well.

Speaking of Escadru, the Maryland-bred suffered leg scratches and a flesh burn when he was squeezed into the fence at the first turn.

Jockey Arnold Kirkland escaped with a torn boot. However, Trainer Ed Christmas said, "Escadru will be O. K. I'm not anxious to run him after Citation in Maryland, but that's up to Mr. Brann.

Mount Marcy was the charging second to My Request in the Wood Memorial and won at Jamaica yseterday. Salmagundi won the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby.

Coaltown May Not Run

Kilroy and Gasparilla have been recent disappointments. Bovard, second to Citation in Havre de Grace's Chesapeake, won the Louisiana Derby last winter.

Trainer Ben Jones will ship Citation and Coaltown, along with Fervent who is headed for Pimlico's Dixie Handicap, to Maryland this midweek. He hinted that he might not start Coaltown, which would inch Citation closer to the second leg on the triple crown and might erase a minus pool.

Wisecracks were a dime a dozen here last night. One of the prizes was: "Now, it's on to old Pimlico where there will be no win betting."

Primo's Side Picks Mercer in Team Bout

"Capt." Primo Carnera of the unmasked wrestling team has added Marvin Mercer of Chicago to his ranks for Wednesday night's feature bout against the six-man "Panzer Division" at Turner's Arena.

Already on Carnera's team are Jesse James and Benito Gardini. He needs one more to bring his team membership to the limit of five. Carnera's crew is conceding the Panzers an extra man because of Primo's great size.

CHICAGO and COLORADO are just a restful ride apart

Rocky Mountain Rocket

Experienced travelers between Chicago and Denver-Colorado Springs agree that the best way to go is via Rock Island's fast, modern Rocky Mountain Rocket. Eastbound or westbound, the whole trip involves just a pleasant afternoon and a sound night's sleep.

Streamlined and Diesel-powered, the Rocky Mountain Rocket offers Diner and Lounge Car service that rivals the finest hotels. A Club Diner, pictured above, has lounge and beverage service primarily for coach passengers, but supplements the regular Diner for all. Whether you travel in a Sleeper, with choice of private room or sectional space, or in a Coach with soft reclining seats, you'll enjoy a generous measure of comfort.

So on your next trip between Chicago and Colorado, plan to ride the Rocky Mountain Rocket!

Fortunately, years have a wonderful way of improving some products.

Time has seen a real miracle wrought in these Northcool fabrics.

A SUMMER SUITING that is cool as an icicle to the touch . . . crisp and pleasing in its feel! . . . distinctive effects possible heretofore only in the most costly yarns and intricate weaving . . . traditional British overplaids, shepherd checks, bengalines, and stripes, until now, almost uncopiable. Also now in gabardines in your favorite plain shades.

Northcool is the new miracle summer suiting that reflects quality in the way it drapes. It guarantees untold satisfaction in the way it wears, holds its shape and press, and resists moths, wrinkles, and puckers.

Single and double-breasted models in every wanted summer shade—and, best of all, the price is only $35.

revolutionary facts

SMOOTHER—a specially perfected finish keeps the fabric smooth and wrinkle-free. Permanently impregnated into the very fibres, it is the scientific answer to every man's desire to stay neat, even when the mercury is crowding the top of the thermometer.

NON-CLING—these suits drape the way they should—they don't stick, cling, or twine. Twisting, riding, and other textile acrobatics are also ruled out. The smooth, cool fabric stays put.

MOTH-RESISTANT—the firm rayon fibres in these suitings repel rather than attract moths, an important feature that assures protection.

NO SHRINK—nor ever any stretch. Northcool suitings are dimensionally stable. They fit—always. Even in extra humid weather, the suitings absorb comparatively no moisture, which means they're pucker-proof.

Treasury Worker Goes Back to South To Be Re-Rebelized

STORY: A Southern lad who works for the Treasury had been looking forward for months to a vacation in New York City. His office colleagues suggested points of interest that he visit in the big city last Friday as his vacation was to start after work that day. About 4:30 p. m. the Southerner announced:

"I've just decided not to go to New York on my vacation: I'm going on back home in Alabama. All this civil rights talk around here compels me to go back down South to get RE-REBELIZED."

UPWA: A bloc of New York City members of CIO's left-wing United Public Workers plans to break from the union and to petition the national CIO for a charter. The issue, of course, is communism, plus Wallace's third party.

The break is being spearheaded by Patrick J. Brady, vice president of Local 111 in New York. Brady is quoted as saying, "We're definitely fed up, and unless we can obtain a charter from Philip Murray giving us permission to form a right-wing union, we'll take a good long walk."

MARITIME: Well-supported candidates for the GOP vacancy on the commission are Phil King, a former maritime employe, who is working with the Ferguson investigating committee, and A. B. Sides, former president of the New England Shipbuilding Co.

RETIREMENT: The Hagen Subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee will give its approval this week to a bill to permit the retirement at 50 after 20 years of service of any Federal worker in a "hazardous" occupation. Incidentally, the increased pensions provided in the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson Retirement Act are going to more than 100,000 retired employes for the first time this week.

ECA: Howard B. Myers, director of research for the Committee of Economic Development and a former Federal official, will join the overseas staff of ECA Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman. As tipped off here before, Commerce Undersecretary William Foster will be Harriman's deputy and Assistant Commerce Secretary David K. E. Bruce will be an assistant.

LAY-OFF BILL: The Civil Service Commission is attempting to breathe new life into the Langer bill to amend the lay-off system. That bill would prevent a veteran with less than 10 years of service from bumping from his job a career nonveteran with more than 10 years of service.

Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee has urged the commission to find a compromise that will be satisfactory to both veteran and nonveteran groups. The commission favors the bill. However, it would amend it to give veterans whose names come up for reduction additional retention points. In any event, no action on the bill is likely at this session of Congress.

ECONOMY can often prove to be expensive. Remember last year when the House Appropriations Committee boasted it had "saved" 800 million dollars by trimming Internal Revenue's estimate for tax refunds by that figure?

Well, it turns out that Revenue was conservative in its estimates of refunds—that 286 million dollars additional is needed plus the 800 million dollars. And what's more, Congress has finally approved the full amount, the final installment of 586 million dollars in the deficiency bill.

But Revenue must now pay 6 per cent interest on the full 586 million dollars and the interest will continue until the refund claims are settled. If Congress had approved this unavoidable sum last year that costly interest to taxpayers would have been saved.

ACTION: The Senate Civil Service Committee has approved a bill to increase the travel allowance of railway postal clerks from $4 to $6 a day. And there may be action soon in the House on the Senate-approved bill to raise the per diem of employes who travel on official business from $6 to $8 a day.

Representative Carter Manasco (D., Ala.), author of the House bill, will return here soon from his Alabama campaign. He promises to help get it out of the House Expenditures Committee. It costs the average Federal worker between $2 and $3 a day to travel. And that's a crime.

NOTES: The House Agriculture Committee has okayed the Senate-approved bill to have the Government pay salaries to the 3000 meat inspectors. These Agriculture employes are now paid by a levy on the meat packers. . . . Merrill Tozier is the new press chief at Federal Power. . . . A meeting of Civil Service's Loyalty Review Board will be held here today. . . . Bertha M. Robertson has retired from the Tariff Commission.

JOBS: Civil Service has announced tests for 16 types of jobs at the Washington National Airport. Get details at the airport. . . . Army activities in and nearby this city have announced Civil Service tests for a dozen different labor-type jobs. Get details in the concourse of the Pentagon. . . . Civil Service has an exam open for writers, editors, broadcasters and producers for State Department openings. The jobs pay from $7102 to $9975 a year.

53d Session Of Episcopal Diocese Here Opens Today

Monroney to Talk; Preconvention Service Held at National Cathedral

The fifty-third annual meeting of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington got under way yesterday with a preconvention service at the National Cathedral.

Sessions today will open with holy communion for the delegates at St. John's Church, 3240 O st. nw. At the morning meeting, delegates will elect the standing committee, executive council and delegates to the provincial synod.

At 2:30 p. m. the Rev. C. P. Toureille, pastor of the French Protestant Congregation in Washington, will speak. Representative A. S. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.), will talk on "The Need for Christian Leadership" at a fellowship supper at St. John's at 6 p. m.

The service at the cathedral yesterday was preceded by a procession of laymen, clergy and vested choirs from the 90 parishes and missions in the diocese.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, told delegates that "wherever help goes into a struggling mission or parish to maintain its ministry, to help it rise to new opportunities, strength is flowing from all who give to all who receive."

He pictured the "ever-widening circles of brotherhood" as evidenced by the coming Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Church in London in July and the August meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam.

"We look out upon our sick world and see it united by the inventive cleverness of men and divided by our spiritual disunity," he continued. "Amid a cold war and the threats of all-consuming flaming war, we see the deepest warfare is a warfare for the souls of men."

"It is plain to many of us that the cause of Christ and of all He represents has not been committed exclusively to a certain church" Bishop Dun concluded. "It has been committed to the whole people of God who in the brokenness of our divided communities tragically misrepresent what we are called to be."

Pratt to Enter 8th District GOP Primary

Arlington Attorney Charles Orlando Pratt has announced his candidacy for Republican nomination to Congress from the Eighth Congressional District.

Pratt, who will face Representative Howard Worth Smith (D., Va.) at the polls if he wins the GOP nomination in the August 3 primary, has lived in Arlington since 1935. He is a native of Washington County, N. Y.

Just a year ago, he was president of the newly revived Greater Arlington Association, which lost its fight against popular election of the county school board in referendum in May, 1947.

He also ran unsuccessfully as Republican candidate for Arlington Trial Justice in last fall's elections. He is a member of the County Chamber of Commerce, the Lyon Park Citizens Association, and is an active Arlington Republican.

Prior to the war, Pratt served as legal adviser to Nelson A. Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American affairs. Later, he directed merger of financial affairs of that office with the Board of Economic Warfare.

A married man with one son, he and his family live at 2812 N. First rd., Arlington.

Cancer Campaign Runs Until May 17

Extension of the $175,000 District of Columbia Division, American Cancer Society campaign to May 17 was announced last night by Robert C. Owers, general chairman. The campaign was to have ended April 30.

Owers said all indications point to achieving the goal.

Among the new contributions announced is $5000 raised to date by the campaign's women's division. Samuel Spencer, head of the special gift division, announced his division will turn in $15,000 it has raised on Thursday.

Montgomery Schools To Hold Music Festival

Two choral groups of 200 voices each will participate in a music festival given by Montgomery County schools Friday at 8 p. m. at Leland Junior High School, Leland and 44th sts., Chevy Chase, Md.

The groups will represent elementary schools in both the eastern and western school areas. The County Youth Orchestra and Band of 200 children from the fourth grade through high school also will appear on the program which is in honor of national music week.

More Than Usual

Pesky Tent Caterpillar Loose Again

1. The tent caterpillar lives in his tent—a webbed silk nest—for about six weeks

2. Having grown to nearly 2 inches in length, the Malacosoma Americana abandons tent in search of food and place to spin cocoon

3. In the next fortnight the "hairy cat" spins itself into cocoon and transforms into the pupa stage

4. Three weeks of this resting period and out of cocoon emerges reddish-brown moth. The moth deposits eggs on wild cherry twigs and they hatch the following spring as caterpillars

Wild Cherry Trees It's Special Delight

The tent caterpillar, a pest with a penchant for wild cherry trees, is on the loose again, in greater number than usual.

The nasty beastie has been disfiguring trees in these parts since long before the white man's arrival, and this is the time of year he gets particularly hungray and obnoxious.

Having grown to the ripe old age of six weeks, stretching out to nearly two inches, the Malacosoma Americana abandons his tent—a webbed silk nest—and takes off in search of new edibles and a pleasant spot to spin his cocoon.

Spraying with the proper insecticides will help some, say the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine experts. Patience, however, will be more effective in this stage of the caterpillar's four lives.

In the next fortnight, the "hairy cat"—that's what the Romans called him—will curl up, spin itself into cocoon and transform into the pupt stage; not to annoy trees and humans until next spring.

Three weeks of this resting period, and out of the whitish-yellow cocoon emerges a reddish-brown moth, which wastes little time selecting the twigs of wild cherry trees, for depositing masses of eggs. Each cluster contains around 200 eggs. With in the eggs, the larvoe develop and hatch in the spring as caterpillars.

The caterpillars form colonies and build silken tents, apartment-house-style, in crotches of their host tree. During the next six weeks they chew up the leaves and grow up into black wrigglers, with white and blue markings and a white stripe along the middle of the back.

The tent caterpillar is more of a nuisance than a menace. Orchardists have little trouble eliminating it by routine spraying. Agriculture Department experts say DDT and lead arsenate sprays, applied early in the tenting season, will provide effective control of the pest. The tents can also be burned out, but both methods require care and precaution.

Details on dealing with the crawler can be obtained in United States Department of Agriculture Leaflet No. 161, for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, at 5 cents a copy.

Mrs. Ramos Will Speak

Mrs. Narciso Ramos, wife of the Minister Councillor of the Philippines, will speak at a dinner of District alumnae of Kappa Phi, Methodist women's organization, Wednesday at 7 p. m. at the Kenesaw Hotel, 16th and Irving sts. nw.

Safe Raid Nets $400; Food Store Cash Stolen

War Bonds, Savings Stamps Worth More Than $1000 Taken From Private Home

Theft of $400 from a safe was reported to police yesterday by operators of Arrow Laundry, 1308 H st. ne.

Police said the thief or thieves gained entrance by breaking through a skylight at the laundry, but got into the safe without any force, presumably before dawn Sunday. Clerks of the laundry, police said, reported the safe was locked on Saturday closing.

A coke machine for employes there was reported broken open, but no coins taken, police said.

Snatch theft of $205 from the cash register of Food Fair Market, at 1420 7th st. nw., was reported by the store manager, John S. Gable, 36, of 9909 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, Md. He said a Negro youth, about 17 years old, grabbed the bills while the cash register was momentarily unattended, and fled out the front door late Saturday afternoon.

Loss of more than $1000 worth of war bonds and postal savings was reported by William J. Carroll, 50, of 1005 Douglas st. ne. Carroll said he discovered on returning home Saturday night that someone had ransacked his home, and removed the savings from a cash box kept in a bedroom dresser. A $65 watch was also taken, he reported

Lillian Hebron, of 518 48th pl. ne., told police a sneak thief entered her home through a basement window sometime between 5 and 7:30 a. m., yesterday. Stolen she said, were a wallet with $18 and two dressed chickens. The Sunday dinner fare, she said, was removed from her electric refrigerator.

Wife Watches Burglar, Lets Spouse Sleep

Mrs. Philip Menick of 1100 Third st. ne. cares more about her husband than money.

When she awoke about 2 a. m. Sunday to see a man creeping alongside the bed on all fours, in their bedroom over the grocery store they operate at the Third st. address, she didn't say a word.

She didn't move when $20 in bills was lifted from her husband's pants. But when the burglar started for a drawer containing the store's receipts in her alarm she sat bolt upright in bed.

That frightened the intruder the Menick's daughter, Phyllis, 24, told police, and he fled.

Then, danger past, Mrs. Menick awakened her sleeping spouse.

The burglar, who entered through a rear window from which the bars had been forced, also took 50 cartons of cigarettes and a dozen pair of socks with a total wholesale value of about $86.50, police were told.

Mrs. Menick described the man as a Negro, but was unable to give police a better description because the room was dark.

In another burglary case reported yesterday the intended victim did intercede—and suffered serious eye injury.

Isadore Seldin, 49, of 5620 Oregon ave. nw., told police from his hopital bed that he surprised a man ransaking his basement desk Saturday evening. Seldin said the intruder struck him in the right eye with a flashlight.

The victim was still under treatment yesterday at Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital for laceration of the eyelid and internal bleeding of the eye. He identified his assailant as a houseman once employed at the Oregon ave. address

Christianity's Spread Is Urged By D. C. Minister

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn sts. nw., yesterday called for spread of American Christianity.

Speaking at annual missionary Sunday services, he stated that the United States is "bound to influence the world. It is only a question of the kind of influence we shall exert."

He said that we impressed Japan with our materialism and our worship of wealth. "A far worthier kind of influence was exerted in Fiji, where, under the influence of Christian missionaries, a people was transformed from cannibalism to a steady and progressive community in less than a century. The fate of foreign missions may well be the fate of western civilization," he concluded.

Fellowship Day Set

May Fellowship Day will be observed by the Alexandria Council of Church Women Friday. They will hold a united worship service at the Second Presbyterian Church, Prince and South St. Asaph sts., at 12:30 and a luncheon and fellowship hour in the Westminster Building across the street from the church at 1 p. m.

First 99 Years Not Too Hard for Heitmuller, Warned at 24 He Had Less Than One to Live

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

Dean of Oldest Inhabitants Recalls His Life as Farmer on Capital Acreage

It took a long time to qualify, but Alfred Heitmuller yesterday had the thrill of cutting a birthday cake with "99" on it.

Heitmuller, for the past several years dean of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants, thus marked beginning of his 100th year of living—with many memories and but few regrets.

The old gentleman who was told at 24, when he developed a severe cough, by a long-dead doctor that he would die within a year, blew out the candles on his cake with one vigorous blow which spoke well for his lung power.

Friends and relatives gathered yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Berger, 1325 Gallatin st. nw., where he makes his home, to celebrate the birthday.

Offhand, he could think of only one thing that he wished he had done in the years behind him. He wished he could have revisited the West, by which he meant St. Louis—and pretty far west it was, too, when he spent two years there as a boy.

A recipe for living 99 years? His bespectacled, clear blue eyes gazed out the window as though he could see the big farm on 14th st. where he worked as a lad during Lincoln's Presidency.

Perhaps it was good, hard wook in the soil, and plenty of sunshine and fresh air, he said.

A farmer all his life, the white-bearded old gentleman has had plenty of those gifts of nature. The land he first worked, his uncle's, ran from Vermont ave. to Rhode Island ave. along 14th st. nw. There he used to see President Lincoln, who often rode by on horseback.

Good Washington farm land was priced at half a mill a foot, in the days when he took his bride to his own 65 acres of truck and dairy land "way out in the country" near Brentwood rd. and T st. ne. He continued his farming, on a smaller scale up to a few years ago.

Most of all, he misses his wife, who died more than 20 years ago. At that time, he thought he might go west again, but he was 77 and decided to stay in Washington.

Besides Mrs. Berger, Heitmuller's children, who live in the District, are H. Anton Heitmuller, Mrs. Pauline Bresnahan, Alfred Heitmuller jr. and William C. Heitmuller. He has three grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

Daylight Saving Time Begins With Little or No Confusion

...e Washington Post

WHICH IS RIGHT?—Joyce Hamilton, with Mary Tharpe looking on, checks her watch with Greyhound Terminal clock yesterday. Both girls live in Lexington, Va.

Daylight Saving Time stole into the District so quietly at 2 a. m. yesterday that some people didn't even know it was here.

For most of the absent-minded ones, Sunday being what it is the oversight meant only a slight adjustment in their day at home.

A few radio programs missed, a few tardy church-goers, possibly some loss of appetite in cases of Sunday breakfast eaten on Standard Time and dinner on Daylight.

For those out-of-step few who work on Sunday, it meant a sudden catching up with the times—or being an hour late. Such a catastrophe happened to two the The Washington Post's staff members—both girl reporters—who drew disdainful glares from their male colleagues.

Officials at transportation terminals said there was less confusion yesterday over the time than on the previous Sunday, when the District was out of step with most other Eastern communities.

However, at the Greyhound bus terminal, New York ave. at 11th st. nw., some people frowned when they glanced at the terminal clock and found it an hour behind their watches. It seems that, though Greyhound buses run on Daylight Saving, with a few exceptions, a separate organization runs the terminal facilities and they stick to Standard Time.

Across the street at the Trailways depot, where they operate on Standard but adjust most of the schedules to fit the fast time, a ticket salesman said things were a little confused.

The depot clock, which is on Standard Time, pointed to 1:30 at the time. A youth hurried to the ticket window, asked for the next bus to Luray and was told it would leave at 1:45. Glancing at his watch, the young man looked startled and grumbled, "It's already left, then."

"See what I mean?" said the ticket man after he had explained and the relieved youth had left.

Shotgun Blast Fells Woman; Husband Held

Burned Man Tells Police Wife Threw Pan of Hot Water

Personal violence traced largely to domestic differences were mingled in the police records of weekend crimes reported.

Mrs. Lula Harris, 27, of 429 5th st. se., was wounded critically by a shotgun blast police said was fired at short range by her husband, Isaiah Harris, 37. She was in Gallinger Hospital last night for operative treatment of the chest and one arm.

Police said the shooting occurred early yesterday inside the front doorway of the Harris home, almost directly across 5th st. from the Fifth Precinct stationhouse. Harris, who police said fired after his wife called him "vile names," was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Gordon Davis, 35, of 712 2d st. nw., told police his wife threw a pan of hot water at him during a Sunday quarrel. He was treated for second degree burns of the arms and chest, and released from Freedmen's Hospital.

Julius Williams, 38, of 63 Defrees st. nw., reported to police he was assaulted by an unknown knife-wielder in front of his home yesterday. He was admitted to Gallinger Hospital for observation, suffering cuts about the arm and chest.

Walter Conett, 35, of 1315 5th st. nw., another knifing victim, told police he was cut in an argument with a friend. Police were seeking the "friend" while Conett was being admitted to Freedmen's Hospital with cuts about the chest, face and throat.

12-Hour Drive Nets $15,200 for Jewish Appeal

A 12-hour fund-raising campaign by the men's division of the United Jewish Appeal yesterday netted a total of $15,200 from 580 contributors, Chairman Irwin Gensberg disclosed last night.

Solicitors, who began their operations at 9 a. m. yesterday, met with Chairman Gensberg at 9 p. m. last night at the Jewish Community Center in their first report meeting.

Gensberg expressed satisfaction with the amount of the average contribution—about $25—but said he was disappointed at the small number of contributors. Solicitation by the men's division of the United Jewish Appeal will continue until about 6000 contributors have been reached.

Gordon Slates Talks on Play

The role of organized play in the upbringing of children will be discussed in public meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday at Gordon Junior High School, 35th and T sts. nw.

Principal speakers will be Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of the District Recreation Department, and Dr. Henry H. Lichtenberg, medical director of Group Health Association.

It marks the first such activity to be sponsored by mothers participating in the District's Pre-School Play Centers, cooperative nursery schools now in operation at many of the ecity schools.

Christiansen will speak on "The Background of Play-Training," while Dr. Lichtenberg's topic will be "A Parent's View of Play-Training."

Two District Residents Are Killed in Auto Crashes

Patent Attorney's Daughter Dies As Car Overturns Near Baltimore

Two District residents were killed in automobile accidents yesterday, one of them the 22-year-old daughter of a patent attorney and the other a 61-year-old carpenter. The dead were:

Miss Priscilla C. Wisch, senior student at Goucher College and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wisch of 3903 Alton pl. nw., killed near Baltimore.

Frank Cecil Jones of 626 9th st. ne., killed near Mechanicsville, Md.

Overturns on Curve

Police said Miss Wisch was one of a party of four college students whose car overturned on a sharp curve on Old Pimlico rd. on the outskirts of Baltimore early yesterday The party was returning to Goucher College at Towson, Md., from a roadhouse when the accident occurred, police said.

Police said the three other occupants were not seriously injured. They identified them as Alfred H. Burnham 3d, 21, of Baltimore, a student at Maryland Institute; Miss Joanne Barben, 21, of Huntingdon, Pa., also a Goucher student, and William Young, 21, of Catonsville, Md., a student at the University of Maryland.

Besides her parents, Miss Wisch is survived by a sister, Emily, 23, student of music in this city.

Jones was killed about 3:30 p. m. in a collision that overturned his automobile. According to Maryland State Trooper G. F. Sanger at Leonardtown, an automobile driven by Norman Hancock, of Mechanicsville, Md., ran into the rear of Jones' car.

48-Foot Skid Marks

Two youths were hospitalized yesterday afternoon when they were struck by an automobile in front of 915 N. Capitol st. Police said the driver, Hardy Taylor, 27, of 612 Princeton pl. nw., said he was traveling between 20 and 25 miles an hour. Investigation at the scene, however, they said, showed skid marks of 48 feet.

Hurt were William Florimbio, 17, of Lanham Park, Md., with a broken left leg, and Edward Nordis, 20, of 1917 N. Capitol st., possible skull fracture and cuts and bruises. They were admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Police said the driver was notified to appear today in District Corporation Counsel's office, in Municipal Court, to determine if traffic charges should be placed against him.

Struck by Streetcar

Mrs. Flora Williams of 4441 B st. se. was in critical condition with internal injuries suffered when she was struck by a streetcar at 11:50 p. m., Saturday, on Benning rd. west of the railroad underpass, in Northeast Washington. Police listed her age as 50, the hospital listed her as 60, and neighbors said she is "near 70."

Operator of the streetcar was identified by police as Frank Howell, 23, of 516 73d st., in adjoining Carmody Hills, Md.

Highway Parley To Be Held Here Thursday, Friday

The second Highway Transportation Congress, sponsored by the National Highway Users Conference, will be held Thursday and Friday at the Mayflower Hotel, with its theme, "Better Highways for Better Living."

Several hundred delegates from highway user groups will attend sessions featuring discussions of highway problems and opportunities facing the Nation.

Particular attention will be given trends in highway taxation and finance and the need for planning on State and local levels.

Among speakers will be Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the National Highway Users Conference; Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, and Alexander Fraser, chairman of the Automotive Safety Foundation.

Steam Shovel Pawn In Legal Chess Game

An argument can get big and tiresome, particularly when an 84-ton steam shovel is shuttled back and forth from one-side of the road to the other by the disputants.

Well, the situation did finally reach the point where one disputant placed the steam shovel under special guard and took action—a matter of larceny.

Gill Equipment Co., it was, swore out a warrant against Joseph Fargo of Buffalo, N. Y., alleging larceny of the shovel, which rested yesterday in the firm's possesion at the Viers Mill Village construction site near Wheaton, Md.

Fago allegedly bought the shovel from Dow & Co. of Buffalo, on a conditional bill of sale. The Gill Co. says they then bought it from Fago, paying him $15,000. Learning of the conditional sale, the firm issued a nonresident attachment for the shovel and had it moved across the road.

The Gill Co. then withdrew the attachment Friday after buying notes on the machine held by the Dow firm. At this point, Fago had the shovel moved back, but the Gill Co. grabbed it again and posted the guards.

Rockville (Md.) Attorney Joseph B. Simpson, who represents Fago, said his client would return here from New York to accept service of the warrant.

Many Families Aided

A total of 330 families or 1638 individuals was aided by the Catholic Charities of Prince Georges County, Md., in 1947, according to the annual report of Miss Philemon McCoy, executive director.

An average of 156 families was aided each month in solving financial and social problems. The Catholic Charities is supported by Community Chest funds.

'Jail on Wheels' Here

A "jail on wheels"—to prove that crime doesn't pay—will be open to the public at Wilson blvd. and Highland st., Arlington, today and Tuesday.

The $15,000 vehicle, which has visited 201 cities across the country, houses an extensive collection of crime-detection and jail equipment, including an electric chair. The Nation-wide tour is part of a one-man crusade against juvenile delinquency by former Sheriff Edward Slavin of New Haven, Conn., founder of Boys Village, Milford, Conn.

Clearing Forecast Today

Most of Washington spent a sleepy, ho-hum day at home yesterday as light rains dampened spirits and streets.

Monday will begin pale blue, with the night's forecast showers, cloudy and mild weather continuing into the morning but will clear this afternoon. The mercury yesterday ranged from a low of 46 degrees at 3:30 a. m. to 56 at 9:50 a. m.

Sunday visitors to the Zoo were fewer than average, attendance at motion picture houses was off a bit, and parks were quiet. Only real scene of activity was the ball park, where 20,000 persons—a pretty good crowd—assembled to see the Washington-Philly double-header, then it began raining and they called the second game in the second inning.

2 'Thrill' Candidates

Two additional Washington fraternal groups have selected their candidates for Queen of the "Night of Thrills," the annual and Eastern Star Home, 6000 New Hampshire ave. ne., slated for June 18.

Miss Margaret L. Garner, of 2679 Rhode Island ave. ne., is the candidate of Cathedral Chapter,

Mrs. Gove Miss Gardner

Order of the Eastern Star. A Central High graduate, Miss Garner is a secretary for a law firm.

Mrs. Anne Carroll Gove, of 4425 14th st. nw., is the choice of Bethel No. 2, Job's Daughters; Ruth Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star; and Stansbury and Brightwood Masonic lodges. She is a department store employe.

The "Night of Thrills" will begin at 2 p. m., June 18, with a double-header baseball game, followed by coronation of the Queen, parade, 14-act circus, and fireworks display.

Elevator Traps Two

Two men were trapped in an elevator at their residence yesterday, but were rescued 15 minutes later by firemen.

The rescued men were Raymond and Roscoe Staley of Apartment 4, 2130 N st. nw. Firemen reported that shortly before noon yesterday the elevator stopped with the two men inside just before it reached the basement level.

Th men's cries summoned a neighbor, who called firemen. One truck company and a rescue squad car responded. Firemen found an external switch, which opened the elevator door, and the two men walked out.

Armageddon Approaching, Adventist Says

The world is "inevitably, surely, swiftly" approaching Armageddon, Elder J. Lamar McElhany, president of the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists warned last night.

McElhany

Speaking on "The Meaning of the Present World Situation" at Constitution Hall, he told Adventists that "the only lasting and permanent remedy for the present world condition is to be found in the personal and literal coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

"The earth will not be destroyed by atomic bombs," though "they will take a heavy toll of human life in coming wars," Elder McElhany predicted. "The forces which will destroy the earth will be released by God Himself in "the day of the Lord."

He stated that the Bible "clearly and unerringly" describes the present world situation and called for a "back to the Bible movement" and a "wholesome regard for its precepts and teachings."

A proper understanding of conditions in the light of prophecy would help people take a more considered and thoughtful view of the future, Elder McElhany noted.

"We are hastening on to that hour in the history of this world when God will miraculously intervene in the affairs of men and nations," McElhany said. He added that this is "the culmination of the age-long struggle between right and wrong."

Seventh Day Adventists for more than a hundred years have consistently believed and taught that the world would eventually become involved in the very situation that now exists," he concluded.

"We are to look beyond the turbulence and confusion of the last days and without fear wait for the coming of that day when Christ will appear, when sin and evil give way to righteousness, when the kingdoms of earth make way for the eternal kingdom of God."

2 Barbershop Quartets From D. C. Are Winners

New York, May 2 (AP).—Sedate Carnegie Hall echoed today with the razor-sharp melody of barber shop quartets.

Three quartets won the right to represent the Mid-Atlantic States district at the International Quartet Contest of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing, to be held at Oklahoma City, Okla., June 11-12.

They were:

The "Potomac Clippers" and "Diplomats," both of Washington, D. C., and the "Four Chords" of Newark, N. J.

Dr. Kinsman, Economics Teacher, Dies

Dr. Delos Oscar Kinsman, professor emeritus of economics at American University and author of the first successful State income tax law, died early yesterday at Suburban Hospital.

Dr. Kinsman, who was 79, was admitted to the hospital a week ago. He had been in poor health for some time.

Dr. Kinsman taught economics at American University from 1926 until he retired in 1939. He wrote books on economics, government, political science and civics.

In 1913, he drafted the Wisconsin State Income Tax Law, regarded as the first successful law of its kind. A dozen other States have since modeled income tax laws on it. After retiring he traveled widely and wrote. He lived at 9100 Old Georgetown rd., Bethesda.

Dr. Kinsman was born in Fayette, Wis., was graduated from Wisconsin State Teachers College in 1891, and received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1900.

His teaching career began in 1891 as principal of Stockbridge, (Wis.) High School. He was president of the Whitewater (Wis.) Bank from 1913-16.

He was a member of the American Economics Association, the Academy of World Economics, Pi Gamma Mu, and was a Mason and a Rotarian. He belonged to Metropolitan Methodist Church, Nebraska and New Mexico aves. nw.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Anna B. Kinsman; two daughters, Mrs. Georgia Loverud, 4540 45th st. nw., and Mrs. Ellen Seamonson, of Crown Point, Ind., and two grandchildren, Jo Ann and Allen Loverud.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday in the sanctuary at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

H. O. Kimmell Dead at 70; Served FBI

Harry O. Kimmell, 70, of 200 16th st. se., FBI employe for 23 years, died early yesterday of cancer following a lengthy illness.

Mr. Kimmell, who retired in September, 1943, was known to many as "Pop" Kimmell.

He was a member of St. John's No. 1, Masonic Order, the Almas Temple, St. John's Chapter of the Eastern Star and the Scottish Rite. He did water colors as a hobby.

Three sons survive. They are: Frank P. Kimmell and Charles E. Kimmell, of Washington, and the Rev. Elmer L. Kimmell of Bourne, Mass.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

James C. Willson

New York, May 2 (AP).—James C. Willson, 63, a pioneer in the commercial aviation industry and a representative of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation in England during the war, died today.

He was the founder of an investment banking concern in Louisville, Ky., bearing his name. He was a director of the Curtiss-Wright companies and the Symington-Gould Corp., chairman of the board of the Irvin Air Chute Co. and a trustee of the National Planning Association.

A native of Richmond, Ky., Willson came to New York in 1925.

Governor-Elect Long Arrives in Capital

Governor-elect Earl K. Long of Louisiana arrived yesterday for a round of conferences with Government department heads and members of the State's congressional delegation.

Long said he probably would return to Louisiana tomorrow night.

F. W. Kneessi Funeral Set For Tuesday

Funeral services for Frederick W. Kneessi, 88, retired leather goods merchant and a Washington resident for more than 80 years, will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

Mr. Kneessi died Saturday night at his home, 713 Longfellow st. nw., after an illness of six months.

Born in Newark, N. J., he was brought here as a child and at the age of 9 began work in his father's harness and leather store at 425 7th st. nw. He took over the business about 30 years ago and retired about 1930.

He belonged to the Elks, the Masons; the Eagles and the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Kneessi leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Kneessi; five sons, Fred K. of 2520 10th st. ne.; Charles A., 1918 Glen Ross rd., Silver Spring, Md.; George F. of the Longfellow st. address; John A., 5829 N. Washington blvd., Arlington; William D., Riverdale, Md., and two daughters, Mrs. John McKay, Cobb Island, Md., and Mrs. Margaret Washington, Riverdale.

Wilhelm von Opel

Wiesbaden, Germany, May 2 (AP).—Wilhelm von Opel, 76, German automobile manufacturer who once was called the "Henry Ford of Germany," died today.

Von Opel was former head of the huge Opel automobile works which he founded in 1897 at Russelsheim, near Wiesbaden.

He was required by law to resign as chairman in 1946 because he once was a member of the Nazi Party. The Open plant, now controlled by the General Motors Corp. of Detroit, is under Allied custodianship.

A son, Fritz, last was reported living in New York City.

Mrs. W. M. Brodie Dies at 82; Daughter of D. C. Governor

Mrs. Walter M. Brodie, 82, daughter of Washington's first and only Governor—the late Alexander (Boss) Shepherd—died yesterday in Columbia, S. C.

Mrs. Brodie was born here in 1866. Her body will be brought to Washington today for graveside funeral services at 10 a. m. Tuesday in Rock Creek Cemetery, the Associated Press reported.

Her father became Governor of the District after Congress created a territorial form of government here in 1871. First as executive officer of the board of public works and then as head of the government, he was credited with improving and beautifying the city far beyond its notoriously run-down and unsanitary condition.

When taxes piled up, however, the local populace turned against him.

Shepherd then went to Mexico and made a fortune in a silver mine. He died in 1902.

In Washington, the territorial government was replaced with the present Commissioner government in 1874, the same year Shepherd was deposed.

Mrs. Brodie leaves a daughter, Mrs. William M. Barnett; a granddaughter, Miss Barbara Brodie Manning, and a grandson, W. Sinkler Manning, all of Columbia.

Mrs. Zita Clexton

Requiem mass will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday at St. Agnes Church, Cherrydale, Va., for Mrs. Zita L. Clexton, Arlington mother of six children. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Clexton, wife of Capt. Edward W. Clexton of the Navy Budget Office here, died Friday at Bethesda Naval Hospital after a lengthy illness.

A native of Alameda, Calif., she attended elementary schools there, and was graduated from Ogontz College, Philadelphia. She later studied abroad while traveling with relatives. For the past 11 years the Clextons have lived at 4225 Lorcom lane, Arlington.

Her children are Nancy, 16, and Zita, 15, pupils at the Convent of the Visitation; Julia, 13, Mary, 12, and Catherine, 8, students at Immaculata School here, and Edward, jr., 10, who attends St. Agnes School in Cherrydale.

Bill Bullitt's Flight To China Is Mystery

By Marie McNair

A LOT of people would like to know what William C. Bullitt is going to do in China.

The former Ambassador to the Soviet Union, later to France, hopped a plane Friday bound for the Orient and according to rumor it's not to be just an overseas jaunt and back.

MRS. McNAIR

Bill Bullitt is going as a private citizen, but the reason for the trip still remains a mystery.

It's no secret, however, that Mr. Bullitt's sympathies lie with Chiang Kai-shek in his struggle against the Chinese Communists.

Only a little more than a month ago Mr. Bullitt was up before the House Foreign Affairs Committee asking them to authorize 100 million dollars for immediate military help to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government. At that time he criticized Secretary of State Marshall, described him as a "master of military logistics but one who was sent to China under the hopelessly wrong estimate that the Chinese Communists were not really under Soviet control."

SOCIAL activity for the Nation's First Family is humming. President and Mrs. Truman were guests of honor at a dinner Friday evening given by Mrs. George Mesta. Saturday evening Margaret Truman entertained at a dinner for some of her young friends and yesterday the Chief Executive and First Lady, their daughter and a few friends set off before lunch for a Potomac cruise on the Williamsburg.

Next Saturday the President will celebrate his sixty fourth birthday It's a date he always shares with an old friend, Les Biffle, who's been lunching with him on that day for many years.

DID you know that Lord Wakehurst, chairman of the council of the English-speaking Union in Great Britain, has written a history of the Isle of Colonsay in bonny Scotland, locale of the great movie hit, "I Know Where I'm Going"? Quite a man, is this British visitor to our town who arrived Saturday with Lady Wakehurst on their six weeks' tour of the U. S.

His boyhood was spent in Sussex, he went to Eton and when World War I came along he joined up with the army, spent most of his fighting years in the Middle East.

Home again. What to do? Politics seemed the answer for Lord Wakehurst, and for a number of years he served as a conservative member of Parliament. Then he turned his eyes toward Russia, made two visits to that country and wrote a book on his experiences in the Soviet Union. That was in 1930 or thereabouts.

In 1937 Lord Wakehurst was appointed Governor of New South Wales and was in Australia all during the last war. Meanwhile there was a growing family of children—three boys and a girl. Henrietta trained as a social worker in Sydney and studied in New York. Cristopher was in the navy during the war and is now studying law at Cambridge. David is doing his trick as a soldier under the compulsory military training and Robert is still in school.

A camera fan, the Britisher took home with him from Australia a colored movie which he made of life "down under" and he's bringing to Washington one which he took recently in Great Britain.

Orange Blossom Parade

Miss Patsy Mattice Perry of this city became the bride of Dr. David Kruger of Alexandria, Va., at 6 Sunday evening, May 2, at the Shoreham Hotel. Dr. Hugo B. Schiff officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bershad Perry of Chevy Chase. She was given in marriage by her father. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kruger of Norfolk, Va.

Underwood and Underwood

MRS. DAVID KRUGER

For her wedding Mrs. Kruger wore white satin fashioned with a marquisette yoke, outlined in seed pearls, and a full skirt ending in a train. Her veil of illusion was worn with a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a white prayer book topped with white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Donna Smith of Philadelphia, maid of honor, wore pale pink taffeta with a matching shoulder length veil and she carried talisman roses and blue delphinium.

Morris Kruger of Baltimore was best man for his brother and the ushers were Louis Kruger, another brother of the bridegroom; Howard Perry, brother of the bride; Dr. Joseph Menaker, Dr. John High, Stanley R. Marcus, Daniel Kruger and Fred Rosenstock.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at dinner.

Adm. McNair Entertained By Boltons

A spring shower yesterday spoiled all chances of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Matthew Bolton giving their party in the garden as they had hoped to do.

And so—guests invited to meet Rear Admiral Laurence N. McNair, USN, and Mrs. McNair, could enjoy the flowering dogwood, the beds of iris and tulips, only through the windowpanes.

Admiral and Mrs. McNair are here from Lima, where the Admiral is representative of Mr. Bolton's engineering firm. They're staying at the Hay-Adams through this week, then they'll be getting back to Peru.

Pretty Mrs. Bolton wasn't able to come to her own party yesterday as she's recuperating from a long illness and a recent operation. But a very able substitute was her small daughter, 5-year-old Valerie.

The Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Ferreyros who've been making lots of friends since they arrived here in February, were there to meet the visitors from their own land. Admiral and Mrs. W. O. Spears came in and filling the McNairs in on Navy news were Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward.

Chief of staff and Mrs. Omar Bradley always find a warm welcome wherever they go and others there were Gen. and Mrs. A. C. Wedemeyer, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, squired by Ralph McBane; Admiral and Mrs. Clinton Braine, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Luttrell and Mrs. J. E. Saugstad whose husband is still abroad.

Joining the group were Capt. and Mrs. C. S. McDowell who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bolton from San Francisco, and later in the evening Mr. Bolton entertained at a supper party at the Columbia Country Club for a number of Admiral and Mrs. McNair's old friends.

Vanderlips Hosts At Supper Party

Col. and Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, jr., entertained at a buffet supper last evening for their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Barton Baldwin, of Syosset, Long Island, who are their weekend guests.

Others in the company were Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Fahnestock, also cousins; Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Welles and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Taylor.

North Winship Here Before Sailing

Mary Haworth's Mail

Offered Marriage by Lad, 21, Girl Admits He Has Valuable Qualities But Thinks His Personality Immature; She Likes Worldly Men

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Four years ago when I was a very uncertain 16, I met Jay, a forceful 17-year-old. We were acting together in a school play, started dating, soon agreed to "go steady" and this continued for two years, although meantime he had joined the service.

Although we were very much in love, as we understood the term, gradually I began seeing other boys—in fact, a great many—both before and after Jay got home. He knew about most of them, but I've since regretted not playing quite fairly—as to instances he didn't know about.

When I was 19 we finally broke off, agreeing that it was about time we got acquainted with more of the population, and I may say I gave the final push. Then ensued for me a period of varied and heavy dating with all sorts of men, which has given me a good idea of what I want in the man I marry.

Is She Asking For the Moon?

HOWEVER, three months ago I met Jay again and dated him a few times subsequently; and last week he asked to marry me. He has a very promising position in law, my parents like him a great deal and I do, too; but I'm not sure I can reconcile his somewhat immature personality with what I want my husband to be.

I've often met men who've seen the world, know what it's all about, and (more important) approach life with a certain amount of maturity that I feel is missing in Jay, although he is definitely ahead of many men four or five years older than he.

Jay has many qualities not easily found, that are very valuable to happy marriage; and I wonder therefore if I am reaching for the moon, or being overly-cautious—if that's possible in choosing a life partner. At present I am a college senior, working 30 hours a week in a very responsible enjoyable job that will be permanent when I graduate shortly. B. N.

Confuses Terms In Judging Boy

DEAR B. N.: Aren't you confusing maturity with sophistication, in weighing Jay's attributes and finding him wanting as compared to worldly-wise older men who've "seen life," as the saying goes, and seem to know what it's all about?

Maturity is one thing and sophistication quite another; and whereas maturity has to do with functioning strength of character, sophistication is, in essence, to be deprived of original simplicity or naturalness.

Maturity is a quality of personality composed of many elements, according to Drs. Edward Strecker and Kenneth Appel.

Among these elements are ability to stick to a job, giving more than is asked or required; persistence in carrying out a goal in the face of difficulties, or willingness to persevere until one has given all he has in the endeavor; determination, the will to achieve, to succeed:—"the will to life."

Lad's Much More Mature Than Girl

ENDURANCE is an attribute of maturity: endurance of discomforts, frustrations, hardships. So is the ability to size things up and make one's own decisions, which implies a considerable amount of independence.

The mature personality is cooperative, adaptive, capable of compromise; he is able to work with others, in organizations or under authority. He is flexible, he can defer to time, persons, circumstances; and above all, he is reliable.

Your reference to Jay's forceful character and many valuable traits suggest that he is mature beyond his years, far more mature than you, indeed, to judge by his poised perseverance in coping with the uncertainties of your frivolous performance; but if you don't love and admire him wholeheartedly, don't marry him.

In conclusion, I suggest that this ideal husband you have in mind is really a father-figure in disguise, and that in breaking with Jay a year ago, you were backing away from growing up,—from accepting the disciplines of mature-type fealty to one man for life.

M. H.

WHAT! ORANGE GROVES IN WASHINGTON?

You'll think so when you taste Minute Maid, the quick-frozen fresh Orange Juice

If you had your own orange grove, and picked ripe fruit off the trees, you couldn't get fresher, finer orange juice than you can now buy from your grocer!

The juice of selected grove-fresh oranges, as concentrated by Minute Maid, retains all the delicate flavor and healthful nourishment of the best fresh fruit.

Nothing is added to Minute Maid orange juice . . . nothing removed except the water you replace. One little can of Minute Maid makes one and one-half pints of delicious natural orange juice . . . as much juice as you could get from nine or more oranges.

That means Minute Maid actually costs less than the messy business of squeezing your own oranges . . . and gives you better, fresher juice as well!

Does all this sound too good to be true? Then let your own taste decide.

Buy just one can of Minute Maid at your frozen food store . . . if you do not agree that it is, in every way, the best orange juice you ever tasted, your dealer will gladly refund your money.

IT COSTS LESS. One can of Minute Maid makes one and one-half pints of orange juice. Minute Maid actually costs less, and gives you better, fresher juice.

IT'S EASY. Just add cold water to Minute Maid and you're ready to serve the finest fresh orange juice you ever tasted. No muss, no garbage, no tedious squeezing.

How to Remove Oil Stains

Some time ago I used oil on my toes and several of my sheets were marked with this heavy oil solution. They were laundered before I noticed the marks. Is there any way of removing this stain now? M. A. B.

It's possible that ntohing will completely remove this stain since the sheets have been washed. However, you might rub a little colorless vaseline or vegetable shortening into the strain, allow to stand for 10 minutes to soften the stain and then rub between the fingers. When the stain is loosened in this way, sponge or dip into carbon tetrachloride to remove the grease. When the stain is removed, wash as usual.

Will you please print a recipe for chocolate icing. One of the ready-mix powders does not leave a glossy surface. Also, there is difficulty in covering the sides of a cake smoothly since the icing settles so fast. A. S.

CHOCOLATE ICING

2 tablespoons butter or other fat
2 squares chocolate
2 cups confectioner's sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons milk (approximately)

Melt butter and chocolate in top of double boiler. When melted, add sugar, salt and milk, one tablespoon at a time until proper consistency to spread is reached. Just before placing on the cake, add vanilla.

You will find that when the ready-mix icings become too stiff for easy spreading, if you add a few drops of hot water and stir they will become spreadable again. Thinning them will also give them a glossy appearance on the cake.

Can you tell me how I can renew an aluminum hammercraft roaster and lid and a 2 quart pot and lid? These items were loaned to me by my husband's mother who kept them in "new" condition. I loaned them to my neighbors and I used the roaster quite frequently during the war time when the special abrasive cleanser which keeps the shine on them was not obtainable. Grease has been burnt into the crevices until they are black spots. On the advice of a neighbor I soaked the pans in a solution of oakite and now they are in worse condition than before. I've got some of the special cleanser now and I tried polishing the pans up with it but it's a little too late now for such mild action. Do you think I can get it replated somewhere? As for writing to the company, I do not know their address and have not been able to locate any one who knows. M. T.

There is a degreaser on the market which should be helpful to you in softening the burned-on greasy deposit on your aluminum. Follow the directions which come with the product and if it doesn't entirely remove the deposit, it should soften it so that scouring with steel wool should finish the job. The product is on sale in the houseware departments of most department stores. I'm afraid replating would be more expensive than a new utensil.

Is there any way to remove enamel paint (white, for metal) from men's white shirts? The shirts have already been laundered and I've tried to remove the spots with turpentine, without any results. A. S.

Old paint stains are difficult if not impossible to remove. Possibly the stains can be softened by rubbing the spot with colorless vaseline or vegetable shortening to soften it. Let the fat remain on the stain for 10 to 15 minutes, occasionally rubbing the spot between the fingers. When softened, sponge with turpentine to completely remove.

Is there anything to stop a fur coat from shedding? My coat is four winters old and has been glazed and stored each year. But it has shed terribly this winter. H. B.

Suggestions from M. J. S., I. M. W., G. G. W., H. H. R., C. E. B., F. M. H., W. E. W. and J. E. McC. about country auctions have been forwarded to P. A. C., who asked about them. Many thanks to you all.

Would you please tell me where I could locate and buy unusual brass or copper drawer pulls? We canvassed Washington with no success. If I could just find a firm's illustrated book, I'd send for them, but furniture stores are loath to do this I've found. I want modern or Chinese modern pulls. S. K.

There is an upholstery supply store on E st. which sells new brass (no copper) drawer pulls. They can be reached by calling District 7447.

I have just received a hand-painted tole tray as a gift. It does not appear to be treated so that it can be used for serving. Can you tell me how to treat it at home so that we can use it for serving drinks, etc. E. F. D.

In most cases the paints on these trays are hard enough so that you can apply a coat of spar varnish over it which would provide a coating resistant to moisture. However, since some oils would not stand up under this varnish, I would suggest you try it on a spot on the back of the tray before applying to the front. If the surface seems affected in any way—do not apply the varnish.

Or, there is a plastic glaze on the market which can be applied over all oil paints and even water colors. For further information about the glaze, call Dupont 8363.

As much as most of us would dislike to admit it, spiders as a class are beneficial, for they live on flies and other insects. Few house spiders are poisonous or possess jaws strong enough to pierce the skin. About the only dangerous species in this country is the black widow and that seldom enters houses except if carried in with groceries. However, they are unpleasant to find in the house and can be destroyed. Spider eggs develop in the woodwork, under cracks in the wall paper and similar places. To kill them, force an insect spray liquid into all cracks and crevices either by spraying or using an oil can. Destroy the webs as soon as they appear by using the attachment of a vacuum sweeper and kill each insect found.

Those Between-Meal Snacks Make Teen-Age Girls Chubby

By Ida Jean Kain

Stop sipping chocolate sodas, teen-agers, and I'll tell you how to change bulges to curves on the order of Esther Williams—curves with streamlines.

If you'll stop piecing between meals, cut out the third helpings at meals, and swing through a trio of shaper-uppers, you can have super figures. And, girls, if you'll acquire good food habits now, you acn always have good figures, even when you're old ladies—of 35!

To throw a little light on the cause of your overweight, write down what you eat between meals . . . and tote up the calories. A chocolate soda contains from 300 to 400 calories, depending on how sweetly you smile at the boy behind the counter. And sundaes contain 350 to 450, depending on the amount of syrup. A banana split is loaded! A chocolate bar contains upwards of 400 calories. One ten-ager asked if gum contains calories, adding that she chews five packages a day! She's in danger of overdeveloping her jaw muscles!

Drink Milk Instead

Sure you're hungry after school, but how about a glass of milk? Sissy, you say? The football players drink milk! Or have an orangeade, or some fruit. If you make up your mind not to let between-meal eating put you in the fat polka class, you're on the right course.

Eating three good meals a day can help keep your weight just right. If you are really on the chubby side and need to cut calories, then have just one good serving of everything your mother has prepared for the meal, but omit the dessert. That's not easy to do, but you've got "stuff," haven't you? And your small brother won't kid you about dieting if he gets your share of dessert. Ask your mother if you can have atn apple, or an orange, or some other fruit.

Be sure to eat a good breakfast. That's every important, for it sets the pattern for the day. Have fruit, cereal with milk plus a glass of milk, or an egg and toast and a glass of milk.

Don't Overeat

If you carry your lunch to school, have one sandwich, plus a hard cooked egg or some cheese or luncheon meat, celery and raw carrots, and one or two fruits. But no sweets. Or if you eat lunch at home, eat whatever the family has, but no seconds. Follow that same plan at dinner. It's only evereating that adds up to bulges. You can break the habit.

Now for the shaper-uppers. Here's the technique—arms overhead, stretch up, centering stretch through the middle muscles. Then bend sidewards . . . that's so-o-o slimming. "Swim" the backstroke . . . make believe you're really swimming. Circle alternate arms back and pull as if against the resistance of the water. That straightens shoulders and adds curves in the right places. To slim hips, swing the leg from the hip, up in front, and away up and out behind . . . swing. Then roll to a smooth finish—straight across the hip span.

Variations on Cooking Themes

Fruits make excellent hot garnishes for a meat dish. Use spiced pear halves, peach halves stuffed with chutney or spiced sour red cherries.

Two cups of hot chocolate combined with a cup of hot coffee and a few drops of vanilla makes a delectable drink. Serve thin sweet crackers with it.

Serve carrots mashed occasionally; after they are cooked just put them through the ricer and then mix well with salt and pepper to taste and a little cream.

Make a spring salad by marinating cauliflower flowerets in a tangy French dressing and serve in lettuce cups with a dousing of mayonnaise and chopped chives, scallions or parsley.

Snap beans cut into small pieces and mixed with diced celery make a different and delicious vegetable dish. They may be served plain or in an herb-flavored cream sauce.

Waldorf salad, apple mixed with celery, walnuts and mayonnaise is particularly delicious when served on salad greens accompanied by a small ball or scoop of creamed cottage cheese.

A Summer Guest Book

A guest book is nice to have in the summer cottage. Have friends who stop with you write their names and the date of their visit therein. You will find enjoyment, and maybe a little amusement, in the little book as the years go by. It is a nice suggestion for a gift for the person who has just bought a summer home.

'Tawny Pipit' Is A Little Honey

By Richard L. Coe

THE HIPPODROME'S "Tawny Pipit" is a little honey—and very funny.

The mingled sense of respect and the ridiculous with which the Englishman looks at himself is his most endearing characteristic. He never flaunts this quiet wit of his. He lets you in on his unique humor cagily. It is always there in an Englishman, even on first meeting, but one must discover it oneself, tune in on the exact wavelength and listen carefully. It is, perhaps, the humor of a mature people. Certainly it is a humor mixed with innate pride.

"Tawny Pipit" epitomizes this English humor. It makes high sport of all things English, from government department to choral singing, but it does so with as much pride as disdain. It looks at an Englishman's England and seems to say isn't this absurd, isn't this nonsensical, but, yet, too, isn't it quite admirable?

It takes an extraordinary character to do this and make it palatable. Extraordinary? Unique, rather. The humor of nations is plain to see: our own, broad American fun, the sharp, bitter humor of the French; the heavy comic sense of northern Europe and the earthy lustiness of the Mediterranean lands. Only the English have this curious strain of bemused righteousness in their wit.

"Tawny Pipit" tells what happens when a rare bird is discovered nesting in a small rural village. A scientist proclaims (quietly, if excitedly) that this is only the second time in history that "anthus campestris" has been known to hatch her eggs in the island kingdom.

Lipsbury Lea—for that is the name of the village and it is supposed to be taken for the absurd invention that it is—rises to protect its birds. A retired colonel, wonderfully stuffy, marvelously admirable, tells his neighbors how they are to guard the nesting pipit.

A lofty academy of ornithologists breaks up its torpid session with muted excitement. Army maneuvers are skilfully detoured. A ruling of the Ministry of Agriculture is circumvented via the old school tie. The vicar and the village schoolmistress uplift their charges with the event transpiring in the meadow.

Of them all, though, my favorite is the church organist who composes an anthem in honor of Lipsbury Lea's visitor. In a delightfully amusing setting that parodies a hundred Anglican anthems, she exults:

"It's a very great honor we're all agreed.
They came to Lipsbury Lea to breed."

Yes, there's a villain, too, a greedy bird-fancier who masquerades in a clerical collar. And since this is wartime England, there is that little sureshot of the Soviets, the lady who killed 100 Germans, for whom there is a celebration and appropriate remarks from the colonel, remarks which, I'm sure, would prompt no parliamentary investigation as to the un-Englishness of the colonel.

The story was written by Charles Saunders and Producer Bernard Miles, who also plays Col. Barton-Barrington. There is a slight touch of romance (after the heroine kisses a handsome Tank Corps captain for rerouting his machines, the hero pouts: "Your captain friend's back for another pipsy.") Miles also directed his whiff of a brain-child and for his contributions, J. Arthur Rank should allow him another go on his independent own.

Yes, by all means you should see "Tawny Pipit," but as a caution I would warn you not to expect anything thunderous or terrific. It's simply a minor, tiny gem whose puckish gleams will delight your eyes.

"TAWNY PIPIT." J. Arthur Rank release produced and directed by Bernard Miles. Screenplay by Miles and Charles Saunders. Music by Noel Newton-Wood played by the London Symphony Orchestra under Muir Mathieson. At the Hippodrome.

Guppies Turn Home Into Aquarium

Pvt. Franklin P. Emerson, of the Police Department's accident investigation unit, has learned what a bowl of guppies can do to a man.

Emerson's home at 1825 Ingleside ter. nw., has practically become a tropical fish aquarium.

The 36-year-old policeman regards his former partner, Pvt. Earl King, as likable enough but there is one thing for which he can never forgive him.

Emerson

Received as Present

King generously gave Emerson's 5-year-old daughter, Carole, the guppies on Easter, 1947. If Emerson had known then what he knows now he never would have let Carole accept them.

Since then, one might say, life has become just a bowl of guppies for him and his family.

Emerson first added to the 3-gallon guppy bowl by buying a 10-gallon bowl into which he placed two pairs of red swordtails.

The guppies have multiplied to 300; the swordtails to 200, and there are now 12 tanks, including a 135-gallon unit.

The policeman, slightly bewildered, could hardly explain how his collection grew so fast.

"My wife, Frankie, and I would start out to a movie. But if we even went near a tropical fish store we'd end up by spending the show money for more fish."

All Kinds of Food Bought

Of course, with the fish there had to be odd-looking contraptions to keep water flowing, the tank at just the right temperature, plus books on fish habits and a dozen kinds of food.

"Carole," Emerson proudly pointed out, "even knows the names of the various species of fish." There were nearly a thousand fish the last time he counted them.

Think he's had enough? No indeed. Emerson said that he's going to move out to Montgomery County, Md., soon, and adds, "I'll probably be able to have some pools out there."

Taft Predicts Vote Soon On Anti-Lynching Bill

Cleveland, May 2 (U.P.).—Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio's native son presidential aspirant, said today that an anti-lynch bill would be brought before the Senate this month and he predicted that the Republican majority would bring it to a vote despite filibustering.

The senior Ohio Senator made a last-minute round of speaking appearances in Cleveland's Negro district today, in winding up his campaign in this area against Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota for 23 of the State's 53 delegates in Tuesday's primary.

GWU Hillel Foundation Established

More than 1000 persons yesterday attended ceremonies marking formal establishment of the George Washington University Hillel Foundation.

Morris Gewirz, president of the board of governors of the Hillel Corp., presented the keys to the building at 2129 F st. nw., to Rabbi Samuel Berkowitz, director of the Hillel Foundation on the GWU campus.

Dr. Burnice Jarman, university registrar, extended a welcome on behalf of Cloyd Heck Marvin, university president. He pointed out that such institutions "contribute to the character-building" of students.

The Hillel foundations, named for a noted Jewish rabbi of Biblical times, are supported by B'nai B'rith, oldest Jewish philanthropic and service organization in the country. The first foundation was set up about 20 years ago on an Illinois campus. More than 175 have been established since in all parts of the country. They provide a center for cultural and social activities for students.

Greetings were brought by Harry Wender, chairman of the D. C. Recreation Board and president of the men's B'nai B'rith Argo, and Mrs. Nathan Simkowitz, president of the women's B'nai B'rith Argo. The two organizations purchased the structure.

Course Begins Today In Auditory Training

A five-man course in auditory training will begin at the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, 2431 14th st. nw., at 7 p. m. today.

Classes, to be held Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8 p. m., are to aid those with a moderate hearing loss by helping them to get maximum use of their residual hearing.

The course is designed to improve speech perception, increase tolerance for sound, and to achieve a more thorough coordination between lip reading and hearing. Instructor is Mrs. Edna K. Monsees, director of the Hearing Rehabilitation Center.

Kirkpatrick's Recital Opens Music Festival at Gallery

By Donald Engle

At the National Gallery of Art, the outstanding attraction for the month of May is the Fifth American Music Festival, comprising five Sunday programs of orchestral, chamber, vocal, and piano music.

This series had an auspicious beginning last evening, with a recital by one of our most gifted American pianists, John Kirkpatrick. His program was drawn from the past 50 years, representing the American musical scene during each decade of that time with compositions by MacDowell, Griffes, Harris, Palmer, and Persichetti.

While the same basic criteria obtains in evaluating music of any period, there are certain factors connected with the output of our own time that make it more difficult.

For example, the total percentage of modern music offered Washington audiences so far this season has been small, yet repeated hearings are an absolute necessity in forming a valid opinion. Last evening's performance of Persichetti's Sonata No. 3 was more intelligible than a first hearing at the gallery in December, but more acquaintance is necessary for thorough understanding.

Furthermore, earlier music of little value has been eliminated over a period of time, while the purely test-tube material that our composers are turning out in their search for new sonorities, new rhythmic and harmonic freedoms, is still with us. Thus of the three sonatas heard last night, the Palmer opus seemed most consistent in maintaining the style in which it was cast, the Harris work is more loosely put together, while Persichetti is definitely trying out new harmonic ideas, keeping one foot anchored on the sonorities of the past. All three composers prefer to exploit the percussive qualities of the piano, passing by many of the subtle tonal colorings their forerunners preferred.

The exquisite impressionism of Griffes' Three Tone-Pictures, and the naive, whimsical atmosphere of a handful of MacDowell pieces, offered a pleasing contrast to the works already mentioned. In all these, Kirkpatrick's playing was frequently brilliant, and always authoritative and carefully controlled. We can think of no other artist capable of a more sympathetic understanding and enthusiastic performance of modern works.

(Correction: As every Arlingtonian knows, Washington-Lee High School is not in Alexandria, as inadvertently stated in this column last week. Our apology to Miss Booker and her Arlington choristers.)

Howard to Open 6-Day Fine Arts Festival Today

Howard University will present a six-day "festival of fine arts" beginning at 11 a. m. today in the Andrew Rankin Chapel.

Dean Warner Lawson of the School of Music, director, announced that the festival will include the dance, art, drama and music. Lectures and seminars are also scheduled.

Mme. Rajan Nehru, wife of the Minister from India, will speak on the art of India before the opening of an exhibit on contemporary Indian paintings Wednesday.

At 8:30 p. m. today the Howard University Modern Dance Group will perform under the direction of Mrs. Maryrose Allen. Tuesday night at 8:30 a new play, "Bayou Legend," by Owen Dodson, will be given. The university choir will give a concert Friday night.

The public is invited to attend.

Truman Uses Powers For Election, ADA Says

Americans for Democratic Action accused President Truman yesterday of pursuing nomination for a new term "with the power of his office." The group said he had the right to run but not the right to do it that way.

A statement from the ADA executive committee through Leon Henderson, national chairman, conceded that Mr. Truman "if he insists, can win the Democratic nomination."

Cancer Curb Pamphlets Distributed

The District Health Department has begun distribution of "The Cancer Bulletin," a professionally informative digest of the Nation's accumulated knowledge on cancer.

They are being sent to every practicing physician here, physicians in residence at the hospitals, internes and medical students. Prime purpose of the project, fathered by Dr. Jay McLean, director of the department's Bureau of Cancer Control, is to further early recognition of the dread disease.

Covered files of the complete set of 25, slick-paper digests, with color illustrations of cancer growths, were distributed to students at George Washington University and Georgetown University medical schools. A similar allotment awaits students of Howard University, Dr. McLean said.

Mailing of first bulletins, Vol. 1, No. 1, of the series to the District's 1324 practicing physicians had begun, he said. They will be mailed weekly, one successive bulletin at a time, until the complete sets have been distributed.

"The bulletins should be of great value to our doctors since they contain much information the physicians could not get in their schooling," declared Dr. McLean.

The Cancer Bulletins were originally published by the Committee on Cancer of the Illinois State Medical Society. Purpose was twofold, to prod physicians to be alert for cancer and to provide them with the latest information available for early diagnosis.

Barbers Take Firm Stand Against Reds

The Maryland-District of Columbia Barbers' Association yesterday took a firm stand against communism.

Meeting in tenth annual convention, the group decided to fight communism although their newly elected president, Tony J. Durso, secretary-treasurer of the District Board of Barber Examiners, said that to his knowledge there are no Communists among local barbers.

In other actions, the association decided to invite the Virginia barbers to join the association, favored action by Congress to increase license examination fees and elected Durso and other officers.

Fred B. Driscoll was named secretary-treasurer; William C. Brandt, recorder, and J. C. Swain, first vice president.

'Voice' Power Overseas To Be Upped

By The Associated Press

The State Department is taking prompt steps to step up the power of the "Voice of America" behind the Soviet iron curtain and elsewhere overseas.

Officials said yesterday a three-million-dollar supplemental fund now in the congressional mill will bring:

1. An early increase in the power of radio transmitting stations which relay American official broadcasts to eastern Siberia. This may help overcome "jamming" of programs, which officials said was continued despite an American protest to Moscow a month ago.
2. A start toward building new and more powerful relay stations in Europe.
3. Shipment of more American books and magazines to United States libraries abroad. There are 30 such information centers now. An increase to 84 is scheduled.
4. Addition of special regional news for Europe, the Near East and Latin America to the daily wireless bulletin supplied foreign officials and publications.
5. Expansion of radio, photo and motion picture staffs which were cut back a year ago.

The three-million-dollar supplemental fund is contained in a 969-million-dolar catch-all appropriation bill carrying money for many Government agencies. The Senate, before recessing Friday, sent the bill back to a conference committee to consider changes. Both Senate and House, however, have agreed to the State Department fund.

The Washington Post

WORLD-WIDE — Martha Ann Myers, 6921 Georgia ave. nw., May Queen at Nativity Church, places floral wreath on a statue of the Blessed Mother. The service is part of world-wide observance by Catholics in May, the month of the Blessed Mother. Similar May Day processions will be held at other Washington Catholic churches during the month

British Claim First Gas Turbine Auto Engine

Birmingham, England, May 2 (AP).—Invention of the world's first gas turbine engine for automobiles was claimed tonight for two British scientists.

Patrick Johnson, head of the government-owned Power Jets Research Co., described it as a long step toward a "motor car of the future" without gears, clutch or radiator.

He said it may prove to be the link between internal combustion and practical propulsion by atomic power.

The engine weighs 250 pounds and develops 35 horsepower. Johnson said it would run on anything that will burn readily — "from kerosene to old candle-ends." Its "natural" fuel is diesel oil, but Johnson commented:

"I would say that in 10 or 15 years' time we will be happily using coaldust to run our cars. If the atomic age is here by then, we may do it with small pieces of uranium."

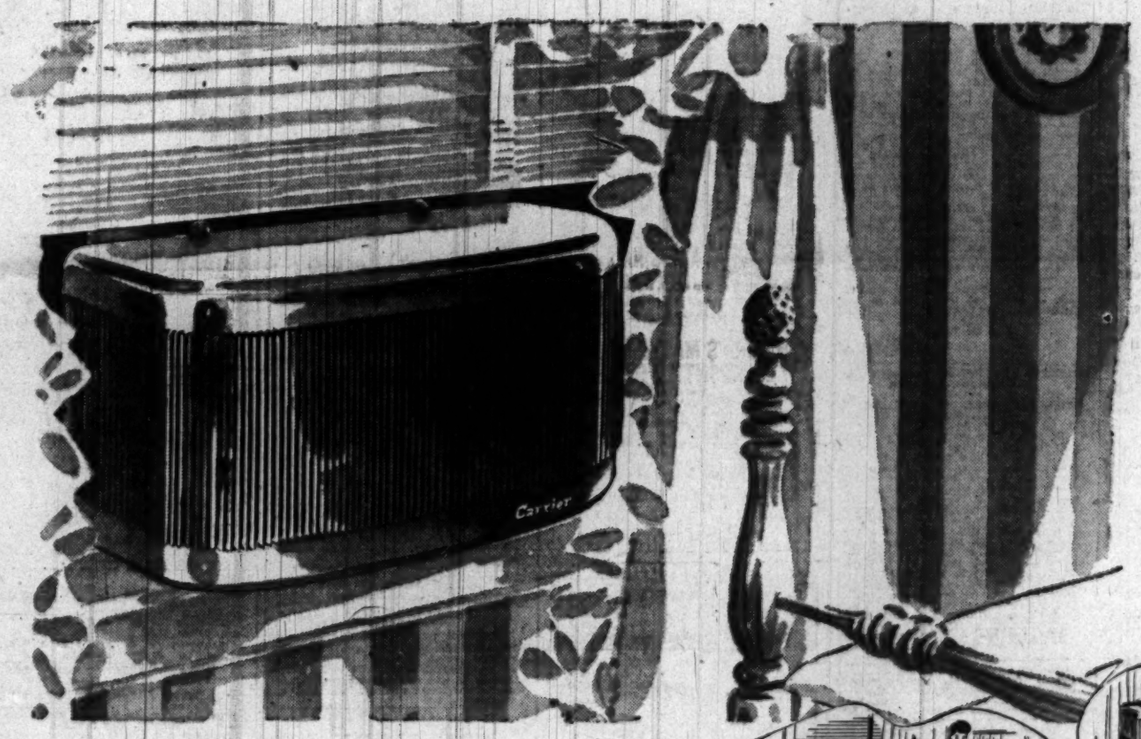
They Keep Temperature Cool and Constant; Dehumidify, Filter, Ventilate, Circulate Air!



Don't simmer this summer—have Carrier air-conditioning installed in your home and office. No frigid temperatures, either, with Carrier; you choose the climate you want—Carrier provides it night and day. Besides a cooler room, Carrier gives you a healthier room; dust, pollen and stale air are removed through constant circulation, and humidity is lowered, because a quart of moisture is extracted every hour. What's more, outside noise is reduced, since windows and doors are kept closed. Installation is made quickly—just bring us your room measurements and window locations; we'll suggest the air conditioner which will best meet your need.

District Lonely Hearts Club Combats Ills of 'Isolation'

The Washington Post

Mrs. Claudia L. Sloane, 22, of 2019 5th st. South, Arlington, Va., is shown being interviewed by Miss Mary Chamleers, secretary for Arts and Sciences Registry, 1323 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Crowded Washington is one of the loneliest communities in the land.

So say a group of college professors and a psychiatrist.

They believe loneliness in the Nation's Capital is a health menace. And they have an unusual antidote.

Loneliness, they say, is a malignant outgrowth of the cold, complicated, impersonal life of a big city.

It makes a person feel rejected, inadequate and inferior. These mental states are breeding grounds for alcoholism and other mental ills.

The tensions of urban life become all the more acutely disturbing to a person who is isolated, repressed without any satisfactory means of expression.

Two of the project's sponsors are Dr. Michael Miller, psychiatrist, and Dr. Charles Hutchinson, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Maryland.

Purpose of the nonprofit registry, they explain, is to help individuals meet others with similar interests, whether it be sports or Sanskrit, chess or the atom.

The plan is to counsel and direct persons to appropriate groups, or where necessary, to form new ones.

A survey indicates, these scholars report, that it takes at least two years for a newcomer to get socially adapted in Washington. Many never do.

Via the registry, a person could become adjusted in two weeks, they say.

Cosponsors of the project include Ralph Lewis, guidance consultant for the YMCA; Dr. Thaddeus Malinowski, American and Maryland University professor of sociology; Dr. Peter T. Lejins, chairman of the District chapter of the American Sociological Society, and John E. Bentley, dean of American College of Arts and Sciences.

Communists Deny 'Agent' Charge Here

Vigorous denial was voiced at a local Communist Party May Day rally here last night that the Communist Party of America is an agent of a foreign government.

The denial was made by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, member of the Communist Party National Committee. She and German Communist Gerhart Eisler, who is out on bond following conviction on charges of falsifying a passport, were among four speakers at the rally, held in the National Press Building auditorium.

Heckled by Veterans

The rally was marked by one heckler who shouted, when Eisler began to speak: "Don't believe him—don't believe his lies." The heckler, who said he was a veteran who saw combat service in North Africa and Italy, then rose and walked from the hall.

Approximately 500 persons, including at least one investigator of the House Un-American Activities Committee, were present.

Mrs. Flynn, who first sprang to prominence as a campaigner for the International Workers of the World in pre-World War I days, denounced the Mundt-Nixon bill, now before Congress, as "thought control" and "fascist."

The measure would outlaw "any conspiracy" to establish a foreign-controlled dictatorship in the United States. The Communist Party could operate legally, however, by severing foreign ties and registering its full membership annually with the Government.

Not to Register to Lie

"We are not going to register as agents of a foreign government, or any combination, when we are not. We are not going to register to a lie," Mrs. Elynn said. "They can throw us into jail. They intend to throw us into a concentration camp whether we register or not."

"I am a German Communist," Eisler said. I love to be a Communist."

He said he wanted to go back to Germany and help rebuild the country.

"I have no contempt for your Congress. I have for certain Congressmen, but not for your democratic institutions or the American people.

Other speakers were George Meyers, labor secretary of the Communist Party of Maryland-D. C., and William C. Taylor, chairman of the Communist Party of the District of Columbia, who presided.

Gen. Eichelberger Gets Army Paper Boost for SCAP

Tokyo, May 2 (U.P.).—A local boom for Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger to succeed Gen Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander in Japan reached the pages of the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes today.

In an interview headlined "General Eichelberger Successor to SCAP?", the Eighth Army commander presented his views on the policies headquarters would have to follow in the event MacArthur leaves Japan.

The writer built a case to show Eichelberger as highly qualified for the position.

Many observers in Tokyo believe MacArthur feels the challenging phase of his job here is over and that he wants to leave for a new assignment or retirement regardless of the outcome of the Republican convention.

Silk Panties For Women Felons Irks Scotswoman

London, May 2 (U.P.).—A Scotswoman complained today that the government permits women convicts and air service girls to wear lipstick and silk panties, while other women have had to fall back on patched old bloomers.

Mrs. M. D. Canning, Glasgow, wrote the Reynolds News there is no such thing as bulgy bloomers for criminals and service women, "thanks to the amazing tolerance and generosity of hard-working, law-abiding tax payers."

"This new brand of so-called social justice is a cockeyed affair," she wrote.

As the wife of a worker getting only a little more than $12 a week, Mrs. Canning said she has been forced to join the "bloomer brigade."

'Iolanthe' at Rockville

The Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Iolanthe," will be presented by the Christ Church Players of Rockville, Md., Wednesday and Thursday at 8:30 p. m. in the Pinecrest Elementary school auditorium. Woodmoor and St. Lawrence drives, Silver Spring.

Surgery Knife Flicks Cure Dope Addict

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—An almost instantaneous cure for narcotics addition has been accomplished by a few flicks of a brain surgeon's knife.

The cure was achieved—somewhat as a by-product—in a partially paralyzed patient operated on for relief of intense long-standing pain.

The operation is called prefrontal lobotomy. The surgeon merely drills small holes at each side of the skull and cuts the pathway to the front part of the brain.

The operation short circuits the part of the brain that causes some persons to worry excessively. It has proved successful in relieving some types of insanity and in halting unbearable pain—or the fear of pain.

The patient was a Buffalo, N. Y. man, paralyzed from the waist down. He developed the sensation of intense pain in various parts of his body. These were controlled by tremendously large injections of morphine amounting to 42 grains daily.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. T. H. Mason and W. H. Hamby said the operation was decided upon because of its known success in relieving intractable pain.

"The patient was discharged on the eleventh day in good condition. Five months have passed since the operation and he requires no opiates."

Cadets to Stage Competitive Drill

The annual George Washington High School competitive cadet drill will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night under the lights of the school stadium.

Col. George A. Patrick, commandant, said the evening drill will allow parents and friends of competitors to be present.

Prizes will be awarded to the best-drilled private, squad and platoon of both the boys' and girls' corps by Alexandria Post, 24, American Legion. The Commandant's Cup will be given the winning company.

Magician to Perform At Auto Trade Dinner

Feats of magic will highlight a dinner meeting tonight of the Washington Automotive Trade Association at 6:30 p. m. in Hotel 2400.

Amateur Magician R. A. Shaw, sales manager with Frank Small, jr., Inc., auto agency at 215 Pennsylvania ave. se., will perform. His program, "Now You See It, Now You Don't," will follow a business meeting scheduled to begin at 7:45 p. m.

Fee for the dinner is $3, payable at the hotel, according to announcements sent the membership by Fred L. Haller, secretary.

Fingers Stuck, Pianist Delays Music Contest

Emmettsburg, Iowa, May 2 (AP).—A youthful pianist's hand became stuck in a communion glass holder on the back of a church pew and delayed the State high school music contest yesterday.

The pianist stuck three fingers in the holder, and when he tried to free them in order to accompany a tuba solo, he found that they were stuck.

The contest was delayed while several unsuccessful attempts were made to free the youth's hand. The holder finally was filed off at a hospital across the street.

The youth returned, with slightly swollen fingers, in time to accompany the tuba tooter.

Publicity Called Chief Weapon of Un-American Unit

The House Un-American Activities Committee is using its "chief weapon" against subversives when it exposes them in the press, Representative Vail (R., Ill.) said yesterday.

In answer to charges that the committee finds persons guilty in the press without giving them an opportunity to clear themselves, Vail said.

"If a press release is issued, the supporting facts are included and they have been invariably substantiated in later committee hearings and court trials."

Vail spoke yesterday over Ed Hart's program on WINX.

Prices Slashed By Inland Steel

Chicago, May 2 (U.P.).—Inland Steel Co. tonight announced price reductions on most of its products which it said would approximate a $3,500,000 annual saving to customers.

President Wilfred Sykes said most reductions were made to meet "competitive figures" of other steel makers who cut prices.

However, Sykes said the price on enameling sheets—used for stoves, refrigerators and other consumer goods—was cut $4 a ton "as against the $2 reduction announced by our competitors."

Silver Spring Man Heads Area Civitans

Trenton, N. J., May 2 (AP).—Dr. Bruce Benjamin of Silver Spring, Md., was elected governor of the Chesapeake District of Civitan Clubs today at the end of a district convention. He succeeds Kirk Wallace of Alexandria, Va.

George Badran of Norfolk, Va., was reelected a lieutenant governor. New lieutenant governors chosen were Raymond Ottley of Alexandria, Irving Abb of Frederick, Md., and Russell Thornton of Washington. Isaac Goad of Washington remains secretary-treasurer.

The district covers Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia and New Jersey.

The records the studio gave us were of a rib program some wags made for fun on a dull afternoon.. One of those burlesques a bored bunch of radio people put together sometimes.. And we got it by mistake ...I can't figure any other explanation for it.
Oh, no, Uncle Ralph—
I played it for Mr. Blatus. Yes. And you've got to find out who those actors were ... No, no! We didn't lose the Blatus account. No!
Blatus wants to sponsor that show!
But that was Mr. O'Malley's radio show—
Barnaby, stop bothering Uncle Ralph. He's phoning his advertising agency—
Yes, find out who made it—
But, Mom, it was my Fairy Godfather—He made it!

You Might as Well Quit, Bertha; 'Twas Ever Thus

A friend of mine who lives in a large apartment house is silently praying that Mr. Fay succeeds in smashing our local numbers racket. He says:

"We have a day worker who comes in twice a week to tidy up. Every day for years she's made a point of reminding us that the only number she plays is the number of our apartment. Since she always lost on it, I felt obliged to give her a compensatory tip each time I paid her.

"It got to the point where I grew ashamed of my apartment number, and even considered moving, to get a new one.

"But finally, there came a happy day when the number 'hit,' and I had visions of being able to end my years of tipping. But when Bertha showed up for work the next day, her first words were:

"'Mister Tom, ain't that just my luck to be so sick yesterday that I couldn't even get out of the house to play that dratted number'?"

DISCOVERY

Norman Duberstein of 639 Ingraham st. nw. writes:

"Seven-year-old Michael and 4-year-old Ellen asked me for my streetcar pass last Sunday, explaining that they wanted to spend the day with Capital Transit.

"They pointed out that the pass states that 'On Sundays and legal holidays, two children under 12 years of age may ride free with pass holder.' Technically the kids appear to be absolutely correct."

Not only technically, but actually, Norman. That stipulation has been on the passes for years, and it means what it says.

But inasmuch as many parents still aren't familiar with the holiday bargain rate, your children have probably done them a good turn by calling attention to it.

REBUTTAL

The District Liner who defended the ancient art of hitchhiking brings a prompt reply from Maj. G. W. Edgerly of 3908 McKinley st. nw., who says:

"I don't think we should pick up hitchhikers. The thumbing habit is a vicious and annoying manifestation of a spirit all too rife in the world today: the 'gimmie' spirit which in part underlies communism.

"My car is a mobile extension of my home. In it, my family and I have the same right of privacy as in my home.

"No self-respecting person would thrust his presence into that privacy without invitation nor, in the absence of a grave emergency, solicit the privilege of doing so.

"Occasionally, I do invite guests to share my car; but I do the inviting, not they."

This round goes to the major on my scorecard.

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

This actually happened to two of our prominent citizens, who prefer to remain anonymous. We'll call them Fred and Joe.

Fred drove his 1947 Cadillac over to Frederick (Md.) and checked in at one of the leading hotels there. He turned over his entire key ring to the doorman, so that the car could be taken to the garage.

A few minutes later, Joe drove up to the same hotel and left his 1948 Pontiac with the doorman.

At dinner time, Fred and Joe happened to meet, and the two old cronies were delighted at the prospect of spending the evening together. But first Joe wanted to check on his brand new car.

To his dismay, he found his Pontiac still parked in front of the hotel. An attendant stood on the sidewalk with some keys in his hand and a puzzled look on his face.

When he explained that the keys wouldn't fit the Pontiac, Fred suddenly came to life.

"Those aren't Joe's keys," he exclaimed, "they're mine. Where's my Cadillac?"

The attendant said that another man had taken the Cadillac to the garage, but Fred insisted that was impossible because the keys were right there in his hand.

So the entire company adjourned to the garage to settle the point—and there they found the Cadillac, with the Pontiac keys in its ignition.

CONVERSATION PIECE

(The scene is The Washington Post's composing room; the foreman is talking to one of the printers):

Foreman: You'll have to stop working on those proofs in five minutes, and get started on those classified ads.

Printer: I can't stop here in five minutes, boss; it'll take me longer than that to slow down.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Moss Hart announced that Mary Boland will have one of the leading roles in his new play . . . Hart first learned of Miss Boland's desire to return to Broadway when she tried to rent her Hollywood home to him. "This is such a lovely house," said Hart, "why would you want to leave it?" . . . "Because when I come home to it at night, after a day at the studio," explained the theater-struck Miss Boland, "there's no one saying to me 'Darling, you were great tonight. You milked the most wonderful new laughs out of your lines.'"

MOVIES: Ray Dodge, former track star who entered the medal and loving cup manufacturing business, makes the Oscars which are awarded by the Motion Picture Academy each year. Dodge's plant is in Florida, and last week he told a New York visitor: "When you get back to New York, if you see Luise Rainer will you please tell her to get in touch with me?" . . . "I will," said his friend. "But why?" . . . "The Oscar she won for 'The Good Earth' was sent to me for inscription," explained Dodge. "That was 11 years ago. I think it's time she called for it."

BOOK DEPT.: Dorothy Detzer, author of the new book about Washington, "Appointment on the Hill," listened to a group of luncheon speakers paying tribute to her book. Mention also was made of the fact that in these critical times so many people are writing books . . . Miss Detzer, in her speech of acknowledgement, said: "I came across a translation of a carving made on stone in the year 4000 B. C. It read, 'Things are in a very bad state. There are signs that the world is coming to an end. Everyone wants to write a book.'"

Inquiry on Thomas Dormant

By Drew Pearson

Two years have now passed since this column exposed the fact that Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma was gambling on the commodity market while making Senate speeches calculated to influence the market. The story at that time was vigorously denied. And since Senators believe each other rather than a mere newspaperman, naturally they did nothing about it.

However, six months have now passed since Senator Thomas brazenly reversed his denial and publicly admitted that he had been speculating. As a result, a Senate subcommitte supposedly has been investigating Senator Thomas.

But nothing has happened. Reams of additional information regarding Thomas' amazing deals in cotton, silver, and the weird characters witn whom he gambled, have now been furnished Senator Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the subcommittee. Ferguson is an able Senator. He has a record for cleaning up graft in Michigan.

But so far his committee has been silent. Not long ago, Ferguson issued a report on Howard Hughes in which he discreetly omitted the name of Senator Brewster of Maine, despite the fact that serious charges had been made against Brewster.

However, Brewster is a Republican, and so is Chairman Ferguson. Thomas of Oklahoma is not. He is a Democrat and usually Democrats are fair game for Republicans—unless senatorial courtesy is involved.

However, just in case the Senate committee still makes an official pretense at being interested in the gambling of Senator Thomas, here is something else.

Queer Friends

In 1941, one Mickey Rosner, with an FBI record, walked into the office of A. L. Stamm & Co., New York commodity brokers, in company with Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, and opened an account. He also asked that he receive duplicate copies of all trading statements, implying that one was for the Senator from Oklahoma.

Later the account was allowed to lapse. But in 1946, Rosner reopened his account with Stamm. This was at about the time the Washington Merry-Go-Round published its first expose of Thomas' speculating and when the Senator was hitting the market hard.

Rosner opened accounts not only for himself, but for his wife, child, brother and other members of his family. Then, after running his profit up to $75,000, he was suddenly wiped out in a slump.

This brought howls of anguish from Senator Thomas' interesting friend. Telephoning the brokers from Washington, he charged that they had failed to give him sufficient time to cover his margins, threatened to have them investigated by Senator Thomas.

Mickey's Record

To fully appreciate the high, upstanding company Thomas picks for himself, you have to look at Mickey Rosner's record. In 1925 he was convicted of obstructing justice, but the verdict was reversed. In 1936 he fenagled $2500 out of the Lindbergh family for information on the kidnaping case from Owney Madden and Salvy Spitale—information which he never produced. Also in 1936 he was ousted as police chief of Long Beach, N. Y., after a scandal.

Then, in 1939, Rosner strangely turned up as lobbyist for the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, and used the office of Senator Thomas to help block a bill requiring wool products to be labeled.

All this would not surprise those who know Thomas well. It's just another chapter in his amazing intrigue with farm lobbyist Ralph Moore, Tom Linder of Georgia, A. G. MacDonald, the Texas agricultural commissioner, and Dyke Cullum, who recently cornered part of the dried-pea market. The really surprising thing is that the Senate has done nothing to protect its own good name in connection with this Senator.

Palestine Bargaining

A British rumored plan to hold up Uncle Sam for more Marshall Plan aid by bargaining over Palestine has been reported to President Truman by Senator Harley Kilgore (D., W. Va.).

Kilgore criticized the British for arming and training King Abdullah's legions, and warned the President of a report that Britain intended to press for more United States aid in return for using its influence to make Abdullah behave.

"There's nothing shaking on that," Truman replied.

He added that if the British tried to high pressure us, their action would backfire.

Prisoners for Peace

Europe's former prisoners of war are organizing an international peace movement which has just spread to the United States. The men who spent years in German or Jap prison camps had plenty of time to think about war and they are now organizing to try to avert war.

Spearhead of the movement in the United States of America is Jean Henri Michel, a French artist who spent seven years in a Nazi POW camp.

Michel came to Washington recently, set up headquarters in an upstairs room, has paid his way by selling paintings. He has designed a peace statuette which he hopes to sell as a radiator mount for automobiles.

Tidy attire

I may not be particular . . . About the way I dress . . . But I must say I am opposed . . . To downright sloppiness . . . I do not like to look clothes . . . That seem to hang and slide . . . As though they have no use except . . . To cover up the hide . . . The coat or trousers, dress or gown . . . That cause a guy to gape . . . Because they are not worn with care . . . Or do not fit the shape . . . I hate to see a dangling tie . . . Or gaze at dirty shoes . . . And sloppy sox on either sex . . . Are nothing to amuse . . . I do not favor fashion plates . . . To decorate the street . . . But I believe we all should try . . . To be a little neat.

Jackie Green

Popular Comedian

"The Thomas expert was far too conservative! He merely told me that Thomas treatment would remove dandruff flakes and that I would be pleased with the results. I'm not just pleased—I'm delighted—in fact tickled pink! I look forward to each enjoyable treatment—I like the way it leaves my scalp tingling with the grandest, freshest, healthiest feeling imaginable. Furthermore, it has brought me peace of mind about my hair—I have quit worrying about it," so says Jackie Green, popular comedian.

So why don't you come to the Thomas office today and see for yourself how this reliable, 24-year proved treatment works. See how it can help you, too, to solve your hair problems. Consultation is given in private, without charge or obligation.

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

and its people who enrich our cultural and scientific heritage

The Smithsonian Institution . . . founded on money left our government by James Smithson, an Englishman . . . a son of the Duke of Northumberland and a lineal descendant of King Henry VII. A noted chemist and mineralogist, he never visited the United States . . . yet he left his fortune for the establishment of an institution "for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

The Smithsonian Institution . . . during the recent war, performed notable service in furnishing the Armed Forces with urgently needed technical information of all sorts. Also handled were a number of research projects . . . as well as the publication of a whole series of pamphlets on many of the little-known war areas.

The Smithsonian Institution . . . Astrophysical Observatory . . . studies the sun. Three observing stations are maintained . . . in Chile, California and New Mexico . . . from which daily reports are sent to Washington. These studies may lead to the harnessing of the sun's energy to serve man's needs . . . and the accurate long-range forecasting of weather conditions.

The Smithsonian Institution . . . National Museum . . . houses many fascinating exhibits . . . Theodore Roosevelt's famous collection of wild animals . . . interesting inventions . . . flying machines of the earliest era of man's conquest of the air . . . a group of wax figures of all the Presidents' wives, dressed in their own gowns . . . and thousands of other historical and scientific exhibits.

For over one hundred years the Smithsonian Institution has existed as a national foundation . . . dedicated to the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." Established in 1846 . . . on money willed to the United States by James Smithson, an Englishman . . . the Institution has grown from a modest beginning to encompass many fields of scientific and artistic endeavor. Much more than a museum, exhibiting the remains of the Past . . . the Institution also concerns itself with the Present and the Future . . . During its century-long life, it has sent over fifteen hundred expeditions to all corners of the globe. The tangible results of these explorations may be seen among the collections on display in the National Museum . . . which are viewed annually by hundreds of thousands of people. In addition to carrying on scientific research, Smithsonian workers operate many of Washington's most interesting and informative exhibits. The National Museum, the National Gallery of Art, the Zoo in Rock Creek Park, the Freer Gallery and the National Collection of Fine Arts are among our city's most popular cultural centers. The Hecht Company is indeed proud to salute the people of this fascinating American foundation . . . who for over a century have done so much to enrich our scientific and cultural heritage.
